LEWIS SAVED BY NEW DEAL

NAVY BUYS BEEF OF ARGENTINA ON ROOSEVELT O. K.

U. S. Live Stock Men Protest Order.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today declared himself to be in favor of the navy buying Argentine canned beef, because it is cheaper and better than American canned beef. The President's attitude caused an outburst of protests from senators from western stock range states and from other American beef interests.

While he expressed himself as in sympathy with buying American, the President took exception to the house amendment to the navy appropriation bill, now pending in the senate, which would prohibit purchase of foreign canned beef by the navy by imposing a duty of 15 cents a pound on the product.

Mr. Roosevelt showed his interest in Argentine beef at the outset of his press conference by outlining his views without being questioned on the subject. He also released a letter of April 13 to Secretary of State Cordell Hull in which he ordered the navy to purchase Argentine canned beef as against American beef.

Good Neighbor Policy.

The President's interest in Argentine beef is rooted in his good neighbor policy. He has been seeking to overthrow the sanitary convention which forbids, as a public health measure, the importation of dressed Argentine beef because of the presence of the hoof and mouth disease in that country. Canned beef does not come under the ban.

At the war department it was learned that the army uses fresh beef largely, but when it uses canned beef for troops and CCC camps it purchases the American product. The war department reported that American beef was not considered inferior food.

The President said that the lowest American price for canned beef is 23 cents a pound. Argentine beef can be purchased for 15 cents a pound, including a 6 cent duty. The house proposal to raise the duty to 15 cents a pound would put the Argentine beef at a disadvantage as compared with the American price of 23 cents a pound.

President's Letter to Hull.

In the letter to Secretary Hull, the President said in part:

"I am impressed with the fact that the price quoted by the Argentine Meat Producers' Coöperative is $0.157 per pound against the lowest bid on an American product of $0.2361. After payment of the duty of $0.06 per pound on Argentine canned corned beef, the net cost to the government would be about $0.197 per pound.

"It is also of moment that at the present time there is a decided difference in the quality of the Argentine product and that packed by American packers. An examination made of samples of domestic and Argentine corned beef shows that the Argentine product is of greatly superior quality and it is the navy department's policy to procure for the enlisted men a high quality of food when it can be obtained at a reasonable price on a competitive basis.

Sees No Violation of Act.

"Sympathetic as I am with the spirit of the buy American act the facts compel me to direct the secretary of the navy to award the contract for this canned corned beef to the Argentine Meat Producers Cooperative, the low bidder. Under the circumstances, I feel that by so doing the intent of the buy American act has not been violated."

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee, said that American packers can virtually no beef and the only way the navy can get an adequate supply is by Argentine purchases.

Western Legislators Protest.

The indignant outburst against the President's preference for Argentine beef as compared to American came chiefly from western congressmen.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] said he would press for adoption of an amendment to the pending navy appropriation bill to prohibit the purchase. He collaborated on such an amendment already introduced.

"If we are to have the American navy fighting on foreign beef," declared Senator Alva B. Adams [D.,

PRESSURE USED TO HELP C. I. O. WIN COAL STRIKE

Control of Miners in Balance.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—The full extent of the pressure exerted by the Roosevelt administration to compel submission by the soft coal operators to the demands of John L. Lewis, dictator of the C. I. O. and of the United Mine Workers, was revealed today.

Dr. J. R. Steelman spoke for Roosevelt.

The inside story leaked out as many of the operators appeared ready to sign new contracts with the U. M. W., although southern operators continued to threaten to bolt the program.

[Details in financial section.]

The administration's efforts enabled Lewis to circumvent the Wagner labor relations act. The sole issue in the strike which kept the entire bituminous coal industry and 460,000 miners idle for six weeks was Lewis' demand for contract provisions denying to members of the rival Progressive Mine Workers, an A. F. of L. affiliate, their rights under the Wagner act.

Threatens C. I. O. Existence.

To Lewis this issue was of tremendous importance. Not only the United Mine Workers' union but the very existence of the C. I. O., of which the U. M. W. is the financial backbone, was at stake.

With Lewis in this desperate situation, the Roosevelt administration moved heaven and earth to save him, just as it saved him in the automobile strike in 1937, a few months after he had exacted $600,000 from his miners to help finance Mr. Roosevelt's campaign for reëlection.

The automobile manufacturers vowed that they would never negotiate with the C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers as long as the sit-down strikers retained illegal possession of their plants. But Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan [now attorney general] "in the name of the President of the United States," ordered the automobile manufacturers to negotiate, and the company officials said they were left with no alternative.

Ultimatum to Operators.

Today it was disclosed that Dr. John R. Steelman, labor department conciliator, also speaking in the name of "the President of the United States," delivered a dramatic ultimatum to the coal operators at their conference with Lewis and the miners' committee in New York at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

He demanded that such operators and associations represented by the Appalachian conference as were in agreement with Lewis sign separate contracts and begin operations immediately. Unless they did so, Dr. Steelman told them, the full resources of the United States government would be used to feed, clothe, and house the striking miners until an agreement could be reached.

After the conference, Dr. Steelman was asked by newspaper reporters whether President Roosevelt or Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins had suggested the demand he made upon the operators.

"I was speaking for the government," Dr. Steelman replied.

Gives Lewis Leverage.

At this same press conference, early yesterday morning, Lewis announced that the miners would accede "to the request of the government, which they regard as a command."

The operators remained silent when Lewis interpreted the government's request as a command.

Lewis, however, delayed taking action with the individual operators and associations in the 8 state Appalachian area in the hope of making a deal with the conference as a unit. The operators, apparently hoping to save as much as possible of the Appalachian conference, capitulated to Lewis' demands today. Many individual operators, however, announced

Bribe Scheme in Insurance Fund Exposed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 12.—[Special.]—A confession by a civil service employé has involved at least forty of the eighty auditors for the state workmen's compensation insurance fund in a $3,000,000 fraud. This was announced today by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

Joseph Malone. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The confession was made by Joseph Malone, 47 years old, of Brooklyn, who has been an auditor for the fund since 1935.

After confessing, Malone pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with accepting a $40 bribe from A. Marchetta, clothing contractor of Manhattan. Malone was admitted to $2,500 bail by General Sessions Judge Cornelius Collins. Dewey told the court Malone will assist in other prosecutions.

Method Is Explained.

The auditors, according to Dewey, accepted bribes ranging from $20 to $700 from employers. In return they certified the employers' pay rolls as being much lower than they actually were. As a result the payments to the state insurance fund for workmen's compensation were substantially reduced.

The auditors involved in the fraud, said Dewey, were known among themselves as "regulars." When the books of an employer willing to pay a bribe were to be examined, he said, it was arranged that a "regular" be assigned to the job.

Dewey declined to explain how the assignments were arranged, but said certain employers appeared to have been able to get a "regular" to look over their books each year.

Admits 100 Bribes.

Malone, Assistant District Attorney Bernard Katzen said, admitted he had taken more than 100 bribes and named fifteen employers who had paid him.

Malone was tried last month on a charge of accepting $100 from the Little Countess Girls Coats, Inc., of Manhattan, but the jury was unable to agree.

Since the fund was started, Dewey said, more than fifty employers have been convicted and $100,000 has been recovered for the state.

Dewey announced that early arrests would be made of the auditors involved in Malone's confession.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Sprays of purple and lavender lilacs became the messengers of friendliness yesterday at the bedsides of more than 13,000 patients in 86 Chicago hospitals.

The occasion was the first day of the eleventh annual "Share the Lilacs" program, an event made possible by 81 garden clubs in Chicagoland, eight railroads, and the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE. The tremendous distribution culminated months of planning by thousands of men and women, and by scores of garden club committees in the suburbs. A second cargo of the blossoms will be distributed Tuesday to more than 50 hospitals.

Started by an Editorial.

The lilac distribution campaign was started by the guild and THE TRIBUNE following an editorial, "Lilacs and What to Do with Them," which appeared in this newspaper in the spring of 1929. Since that time lilacs have been distributed each year to invalids, cripples, orphans, shut-ins, and sick persons throughout the city.

Before 8 a. m. yesterday, school children and troops of Boy and Girl Scouts had joined in the pleasant task of collecting the fresh blooms. On the north shore, members of the Young Men's Business club of Evanston loaded their cars from the garden of the old Benjamin Volman estate in Wilmette.

In Elgin, two frail ladies of the Old Peoples home, 97 and 86 years old, strove with the heavy branches, while a few blocks away, little boys from the Chicago Junior school clambered up stepladders to cut down the thick mauve fronds.

Commuters Bear Burdens.

Commuters, hurrying into the city, burdened their arms with bouquets. Engineers on the Illinois Central, Rock Island, Aurora and Elgin, North Shore Line, Burlington, South Shore line, North Western, and Pennsylvania railroads generally shepherded hundreds of lilac-stuffed boxes.

A fleet of Tribune trucks met all incoming trains. Then, laden with fragrance, they shuttled back to the Tribune loading platform to be dispatched throughout the city. Before 3 p. m. their errand of kindness was accomplished.

"Despite the cool weather, and frost in many regions last night, it was the most successful lilac day since the idea developed," Theodore V. Purcell, president of the guild, declared.

Here are notes of reporters who accompanied the floral messages and witnessed their success.

JOY IN SETTLEMENT

John Glazewski, working at the Chicago Lighthouse Settlement, 3323 W. 22d street, was particularly happy over his lilacs. He is blind, and although he couldn't see the purple blooms he could smell their fragrance.

The lilacs brought visions of his far distant home and mother to Wesley Phillips, who has been blind for thirteen years. He said his mother always loved to see their lilac bushes blooming in the spring time.

CALUMET DISTRICT JOINS

Industrial Calumet, in Indiana, responded enthusiastically in its first coöperative "share-your-lilac" campaign with THE TRIBUNE. Civic groups and garden clubs in Crown Point, Hammond, and Gary had sent thousands of the blooms into Chicago.

Crown Point had provided for patients in the county tuberculosis sanitarium Thursday night and early today its lilac committee put a truckload of the blooms on a Chicago bound Pennsylvania train. Mrs. Joe E. Brown was chairman.

Gary's response yesterday was

KING GEORGE, A RULER 2 YEARS NOW, GIVES SAILORS EXTRA RUM

ABOARD EMPRESS OF AUSTRALIA, May 12.—(AP)—King George of Great Britain had orders issued to the convoying cruisers Glasgow and Southampton today to splice the main brace in celebration of the second anniversary of his coronation.

This meant that every man on the two warships escorting the king and Queen Elizabeth on their voyage to North America got an extra issue of rum, a traditional special occasion treat for men of the British navy.

Promptly at noon the two cruisers appeared out of the mist through which the Empress of Australia has been proceeding slowly since yesterday, drew alongside their majesties ship, and, as the king and queen stood on the after deck with their suite, fired the royal salute of 21 guns in celebration of the anniversary. Many congratulatory messages were received by the king and queen.

Due to delays caused by fog the Empress of Australia is not expected to reach Quebec before noon Monday. The ship was forced to halt late tonight because of another heavy fog.

[Other news about the king will be found on page 7.]

MINERS SPARE ROBINS; CARRY COAL BY HAND

La Crosse, Wis., May 12.—(AP)—Workers at the Cargill Coal company loaded their trucks by hand today while a mother robin who ignored a small forest of trees in the vicinity raised her brood in the yard's portable automatic coal conveyor.

Undaunted when a drive chain ripped two nests from a precarious perch in the steel framework, the bird built a third a few inches under the whirring chain.

After one baby robin appeared and a second was expected shortly, Dell Pierce, yard foreman, ordered the conveyor left idle so the young family could enjoy peace and quiet.

Plumbers Go in for Style; Ride to Work in Taxicabs

St. Joseph, Mo., May 12.—(AP)—St. Joseph plumbers are going about their work in style. The operator of a large plumbing concern has stored his trucks and is sending his employés to and from work in taxicabs. The reason? A cab price war has reduced fares to 15 cents.

Youth Fails 2 Thieves; They Get 1-10 Years

Two escaped inmates of the state training school for boys at St. Charles relied on their youth yesterday to get them out of another jam. They pleaded guilty to auto theft, hoping for probation, return to the institution, or, at most, light sentences. They were jolted when Circuit Judge William J. Fulton in court at Geneva sentenced them to one to ten years in the state prison.

Judge Fulton declared:

"These boys are hardened criminals. They had records and gave no appearance of being sorry for what they had done. I think they were not the proper subjects for probation."

Caught Two Days After Escape.

Those sentenced were Elmer Lepley, 18 years old, of Chicago, committed originally to the St. Charles school as an incorrigible and returned last July as a parole violator, and Edward Stempkowski, 17, of East St. Louis. They broke out of the institution with two younger boys on March 28, stole an automobile, and were headed for Chicago when caught two days later.

The younger boys with them—Samuel Campbell, 15, of Chicago, and Robert Johnson, 16, of Christopher, in Franklin county—will be returned to St. Charles. Judge Fulton dismissed auto theft charges against them.

No Sympathy for the Hardboiled.

"I don't know what the plans of the older boys were after their escape," said Judge Fulton, "but from their attitude I think it would have meant trouble for some one if they had gotten away. I have more sympathy for youngsters than for older men, but not for a hardboiled nut that doesn't care for anything."

Judge Fulton, who lives in Sycamore, in De Kalb county, is the father of two sons and a daughter.

Joins CCC to Go Straight.

Walter Lawruk, 20, of 1235 North Marshfield avenue, yesterday was given until May 12, 1940, to prove that his recent character adjustment is a lasting one.

Lawruk, twice sentenced last year for minor offenses, was arrested April 28 for larceny of a typewriter a month before. The arrest took place in the CCC camp in Skokie valley, near Glenview. Lawruk, arraigned before Judge J. M. Braude, admitted the charge. He added that he had joined the CCC after the theft with the intention of "going straight."

After testimony by a board of education investigator indicated that Lawruk's change of attitude was genuine, Judge Braude continued the case to 1940. Lawruk promised to remain in the CCC for two more years.

NEW CALIFORNIA ACT BARS SUITS FOR BALM, BREACH OF PROMISE

Sacramento, Cal., May 12.—(AP)—Gov. Culbert L. Olson signed into law today a bill eliminating breach of promise to marry as a cause of legal action. The law also bans suits for alienation of affection, and for seduction of a person over the age of legal consent.

CHICKENS, COWS WORK OVERTIME TO MAKE NEWS

Here's good news for people who like plenty of butter on their toast, and those who prefer eggs morning, noon, and night.

There has been more butter stored away all over the country thus far in May than in any other May in history, and there are more than enough eggs to go around.

Butter stocks, as of May 1, totaled 70,861,000 pounds, compared with 20,144,000 pounds a year ago. The egg reserve figures were not available last night, but an all time hatching record is said to have been established last month. Chicago receipts of eggs have been about 30,000 cases a day. There are 30 dozen to a case, meaning daily receipts of 14,400,000 eggs. [For details turn to business section.]

CYCLIST APPLIES BREAKS (THAT'S RIGHT) AND STOPS

Richard Hohn, 27 years old, asked his brother Herbert to lend him his motorcycle last night. Herbert agreed. In front of their home at 6512 34th street, Berwyn, he told Richard how to keep the machine erect, how to start it, and how to swing corners.

Richard started briskly northeast in Ogden avenue for his first ride. It felt like flying and Richard was very happy until he recollected an odd fact—he had forgotten to ask his brother how to stop. He tried a few things that made the machine go faster.

When he came to Ridgeland avenue he drove against the rear end of a parked automobile in desperation. He stopped. Damage to the car and the cycle didn't amount to much, but Hohn has a dislocated collar bone and a fair collection of bruises and cuts.

NAZIS PUSH DRY CAMPAIGN; CUT WORKERS' BEER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 12.—Prohibition went a step further in Germany today when the German beer and tobacco industry decided to abolish the time honored habit of dispensing free beer and smokes to employés.

Instead of the so-called house drink—a certain amount of beer given to each employé every month—German breweries henceforth will dispense nonalcoholic drinks. The German tobacco industry has resolved to distribute cigars and cigarets only to its adult workers. Women employés and youths under 18 years are to be offered a warm meal a day or a bottle of milk instead of something to smoke.

amazing, said Mrs. J. R. Thompson of the Garden club.

Hammond's Edison club and Hessville Garden club combined to collect hundreds of blooms and bring them to Hammond's civic center, whence they were delivered to shut-ins at St. Margaret's in Hammond and St. Catherine's in East Chicago. Gary hospitals receiving blooms were Mercy, Methodist, and the colored hospital, St. John's.

ONE WAITS FIVE HOURS

A little old lady in ward 64 at the County hospital saw purple lilacs coming down the dusky corridor on a wagon yesterday. She held out her hand to touch one.

"I missed spring this year," she said. "I had to come here in February."

At the doorway where lilacs were being unloaded a woman stood alone. She pushed forward. "Please, ma'am," she said, "my husband has been sick for four years. Couldn't I have some for him? You see, he can't ever go out in a garden again, and we used to have one." She had waited five hours.

REMEMBERS HIS MOTHER

Old men and young boys occupy the fifteen beds in one of the wards of St. Luke's hospital. Suddenly a young voice called out, "Hey, lookit!"

One little boy gently took a big bunch of lilacs. He buried his face in them and breathed deeply. When he looked up his cheeks were pink and his eyes sparkled with joy. "I love lilacs." His expression suddenly became wistful and timid. "Do you suppose," he almost whispered, "my mother could have these for Mother's day?"

IN CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

There are about 145 little boys and girls at the Children's Memorial hospital. They are city children, many of them underprivileged. They have few visitors and scant pleasure. It was an astonishing thing to them yesterday—almost an unheard of thing—that any one should come to bring them flowers.

In the first ward were boys—tiny boys, as gay as their weak little bodies would permit. Michael, the liveliest, found casts on both legs only a slight hindrance to parading around the bed. He was the one who announced us. "Company!" he shouted loudly, "And bringin' flowers!"

GO QUICKLY TO BEDSIDES

Fragrant lavender blooms stood in doorways and hallways and on bedside tables of patients soon after the TRIBUNE car left the Women's and Children's hospital at 1606 Maypole avenue early this afternoon. Susie, a hospital worker, knew where the flowers were needed most. Quickly she transferred hundreds of branches of lilacs from their boxes to vases and wicker baskets and carried them into the wards.

"We've been hoping some flowers would come to us," said one patient, "ever since we read about them in the paper." Another remembered that she had been here last year when the lilac season arrived.

A JITTERBUG DANCE

Lilac day proved at the Federated Home for Dependent Children, 5726 South Michigan avenue, that a mass of color and the heady perfume of May bloom can swing a potent tune. The home is in the heart of the colored district.

With the first sight and sniff of the lilac blossoms the three bright eyed receptionists—Barbara, 6 years old, Freeman and Annie Lee, 5—turned into ecstatic jitterbugs.

"Oh, ma'am, this lilac day, it's better'n when Christmas and Santa Claus comes," chirped Barbara of the million dollar smile.

IN A CHARITY WARD

In the sterile whiteness of a charity ward at Passavant hospital yesterday spring blossomed in great clusters of blue and purple lilacs.

The patients had been sleeping, reading, or staring into space when the nurses carried in the flowers, gifts of Chicagoland homeowners. "Give us some!" "Bring them over here." "O, let me smell them!" were simultaneous outbursts from the beds.

"When I was a little girl in Poland," a white haired Jewish woman ventured, lifting her head with effort from the pillow, "my mother had a lilac bush that flowered blue like these. I used to think they looked like blue trumpets. That was when I was young," she explained quickly in embarrassment.

HOSPITALS URGED TO UNITE AGAINST REGIMENTED LIFE

Warned of Perils in Loss of Private Support.

The nation's 4,438 private hospitals were called upon yesterday to defend the American spirit of self-reliance and voluntary benevolence from federal regimentation.

Speaking in observance of national Hospital day at the Hinsdale sanitarium, Homer E. Capehart, sponsor of the Republican cornfield conference last fall on his farm at Washington, Ind., said no American group had a better record of unselfish service than doctors and nurses.

And yet, Capehart said, the health and hospital field faces the same problem of business, industry, labor, and farming—government destruction of the voluntary spirit, self-reliance, and private initiative.

Warns Hospitals of Perils.

Government invasion of private enterprise, he said, will leave the great American voluntary hospital system eventually without support.

Capehart set forth a six point course of action to preserve the American system from communistic or Fascistic tyranny:

"1. Business must be encouraged. The 12,000,000 unemployed must be given jobs in private industry.

"2. Taxes must be reduced, but never at the expense of the unemployed, the WPA worker, the aged, or the crippled.

"3. The national budget must be balanced, as any grammar school child knows that you cannot continue going into debt indefinitly without going bankrupt.

Calls for Real Security.

"4. We must find security for all our people—but not the jail type security. A man in jail has security. The government feeds him and clothes him and puts a roof over his head.

"5. We must stay out of war.

"6. We must encourage each individual—not discourage him."

Instead of encouraging, Capehart said, the government discourages the business, professional, and farming man by competing with private enterprise.

"Once a man accepts 'made' government work," said Capehart, "he is placed in a position where he has absolutely no future. We cannot live under two systems of government—the American system and the regimented system."

ORDER 2 HELD ON KILLING CHARGE.

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered George Zavakos, 2535 Foster avenue, and James Giannopoulus, 4549 North Damen avenue, both 20 years old, held to the grand jury on manslaughter charges. Robert Lannigan, 21, of 3748 North Troy street, died of a skull fracture after an altercation with the two youths on May 1 in front of 2409 Lawrence avenue.

U. OF C. DOCTOR WARNS OF PERIL IN BIRTH DECLINE

Population May Fall, Senators Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—Dr. M. Edward Davis of the Chicago Lying-In hospital and the University of Chicago this afternoon told a senate subcommittee that any further decrease in the American birth rate will lower the nation's population.

Dr. M. Edward Davis.

Dr. Davis appeared before the subcommittee considering the Wagner health bill to urge continuation of federal support for maternal and child care.

In 1925, he said, there were 3,000,000 births in the United States. Last year the number of births had fallen to a little more than 2,000,000, a decrease of one-third in thirteen years, he asserted.

Average Is 2.7 Per Family.

"The present average length of life necessitates that each family have at least 2.6 babies," Dr. Davis said. "It is not only necessary for the husband and wife to reproduce themselves, but they must provide for the inevitable loss of life that occurs prior to full maturity and for those members of our society who do not reproduce.

"The birth rate in America soon will reach that critical figure, for last year it was 2.7 per family. This decreasing birth rate must have a profound influence on our social and economic structures. It is already making itself manifest in many ways. The schools in several of our metropolitan centers have many vacant rooms in the first, second, and third years, for there are not enough little children to fill them.

Predicts More Vacant Rooms.

"As the years go by we will find more vacant rooms for older children, for there will not be enough youngsters to fill the available school facilities. This steadily declining birth rate increases the value of our mothers and children. We must provide every facility at our command to make child-bearing more safe, to decrease the hazards of birth and to assure the children that are being born a safe conduct into the world."

Dr. Davis said that European nations are subsidizing production of babies for cannon fodder, but the United States should be interested in the delivery of normal, healthy children to carry on the peaceful pursuits of democracy.

Says Deaths Are Preventable.

He asserted that in 1935 12,544 American mothers died in child birth and 125,000 babies died at birth. He stressed the fact that this loss of life is needless, unnecessary and preventable by proper medical and nursing care and establishment of facilities for handling complications.

The loss of life is only one phase of inadequate care, he said. Far more difficult to evaluate and tabulate are the mothers who suffer injuries which result in a life of invalidism and the many thousands of babies who suffer physical and mental injuries as a result of improper care, he declared.

HORNER SIGNS BILL GIVING WOMEN RIGHT TO SERVE ON JURIES

Springfield, Ill., May 12.—[Special.]—Beginning July 1 the women of Illinois will be eligible for jury service. Gov. Henry Horner assured this today when he signed two bills introduced by Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, which passed the senate on March 7 and were approved by the house early last Wednesday.

Mr. Horner signed two other measures, also sponsored by Ward, which will increase the state's monthly relief contribution for each of the months of May and June to $4,500,000. Until May 1 the donation had been $3,900,000. Had the new laws not been enacted it would have dropped to $3,000,000.

Freak Accident Causes Reports of Tunnel Blast

Police ambulances raced last night to Chicago avenue and State street on reports of an explosion in the subway tunnel under construction at that point. The reports were false. They started over a minor accident caused when an automobile ran over a cap on a pipe line connected with the tunnel. The pressure from the tunnel blew the cap loose and lifted the car off its wheels. The driver was Steve Zunic, 1410 West 19th street, a tunnel worker.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER.

The body of Mrs. Helen Mojonnier, 60 years old, 842 Columbian avenue, Oak Park, was found yesterday in the Des Plaines river at River Forest. Her husband, Timothy Mojonnier, said she had been suffering with insomnia for a year and had had a nervous breakdown two years ago.

Youth Ordered to Buy Ice Cream Every Day for Boy

Clifford Stenstrop, 18 years old, 2017 Milwaukee avenue, yesterday promised Judge J. M. Braude to buy an ice cream bar each day for a week and give it to James Devisme, 10, of 2435 McLean avenue. Judge Braude then continued a disorderly conduct charge against Stenstrop to May 26. Stenstrop, the court was told, struck Jimmy during an argument over use of a vacant lot for ball games. The judge told Stenstrop, a 200 pound truck helper, to let the younger boys play when and how they wanted.

BROTHER-IN-LAW GETS 14 YEARS IN MORDOFF KILLING

Jury Fixes Lightest of Murder Penalties.

A jury in the Criminal court of Judge Robert Jerome Dunne last night found John Quinn guilty of the murder of his brother-in-law, Dr. Gordon E. Mordoff, and fixed his punishment at fourteen years in prison. The penalty was the lightest that could be given a convicted murderer.

Quinn, who is 62 years old and a former convict, shot the physician Jan. 12 in his office at 1167 Wilmette avenue, Wilmette. He fled after the shooting, but was captured several hours later.

Makes Self-Defense Plea.

On Thursday he took the stand and claimed he acted in self-defense when Dr. Mordoff attacked him. He asserted he had long feared the doctor and accused him of mistreating Mrs. Mordoff, a sister of Quinn.

"He sent me a letter asking me to come to the office," the defendant said. "I took a pistol with me because I was afraid of him. When I went in he lunged toward a drawer and whirled around to face me. After that everything was all mixed up. I had no intention of killing him."

Assistant State's Attorneys Leslie Curtis and Richard Devine had asked the death penalty for Quinn. They said the known facts contradicted his story and they pointed to his record of two prison terms for assault and battery.

Dr. Mordoff was a central figure in 1936 in the sensational "Sonny Boy" paternity case. He contended that a boy, then 3 years old, was the son of himself and his wife. The child was known as Gordon Mordoff III.

The other claimant was Miss Margaret Mann, now Mrs. Alfred Fletcher. She claimed that she had left "Sonny Boy" as an infant with the Mordoffs and that they had refused to give him up when she was able to care for him. By a court decision, the youngster was given to Mrs. Fletcher.

Under the law Quinn will not be eligible for parole until he has served eight years and four months. He will then be more than 70 years old. He took the verdict of the jury without any show of emotion.

Ponders Proposal

GERTRUDE NIESEN.

Hollywood, Cal., May 12.—(AP)—Gertrude Niesen, screen actress, said today she had been informed Capt. Patrick Home, British army officer, was en route from London to Hollywood to marry her.

Capt. Home, however, may find his long journey a futile one, for Miss Niesen said she had not decided whether she would accept the soldier's proposal.

Miss Niesen met him when she was an actress in London.

POLICE, FIREMEN ASKED TO GO ON PAYLESS HOLIDAY

Mayor Explains City Need for Economy.

Mayor Kelly yesterday asked the policemen and firemen to take two weeks vacation without pay to aid in reducing the city's 1939 operating expenses by $5,000,000. Representatives of the policemen and firemen, with whom the mayor conferred for more than an hour, said they will report back next week with an answer.

The city has approximately $10,000,000 in unpaid bills. Contractors, knowing the city is slow pay, raise their prices so that the city pays more than private individuals. And the city has been ladling out vast sums for WPA projects to keep the projects going. If they stopped the WPAers would apply for relief, which would cost the city more than the WPA projects do. Finally, the mayor said, collections of back and current taxes have been slow.

Expects Men to Approve.

"I am confident that the police and firemen, as always, will be found willing to aid in the emergency," Mayor Kelly said. "Every one I have talked to so far has been sympathetic. Our employés will help us work our way out of the present difficulty."

On Thursday, representatives of thirty-nine unions with membership of 11,000 city employés agreed to ask their members to take payless vacations. The majority of the remaining 9,000 are policemen and firemen. If they are willing to take a similar cut the total saving will be nearly $2,000,000 for the 20,000 employés.

The mayor has announced that he also will ask employés of the water department, the Municipal courts and the board of election commissioners to join the other workers in the economy drive. Their compliance would cut costs about $500,000 more, resulting in a total saving on salaries of $2,500,000, or half the $5,000,000 which the mayor has set as the economy goal.

No Loophole for Suits.

The payless vacations affect only the civil service employés, there being no difficulty about economizing on noncivil service appointees who are subject to discharge at any time. Civil service employés will be asked to apply to the civil service commission for a two weeks' leave of absence. This, according to legal authorities, would leave no loophole through which pay for the vacations could be collected later by suits against the city.

Controler Robert B. Upham has instructed all city department heads to slash all nonpay roll expenses ruthlessly. Whatever surplus funds result from the mayor's economy drive will be applied against the city's $10,000,000 of unpaid bills.

The city plans to reduce its unpaid bills still further by raising tavern licenses from $600 to $1,000 per year. That would produce $1,800,000 more.

Crown May Queen

MISS VIRGINIA GAMBILL.

Miss Virginia Gambill of Centralia, Ill., was crowned May queen at the conclusion of the spring festival at the National College of Education, Evanston, last evening. The queen is chosen by vote of the junior and senior classes as the student "most representative of the ideals of the college," and the winner's name is kept a secret until the crowning takes place. In the queen's "court of beauty and honor" were Miss Patricia Manley and Miss June Zettergren, both of Evanston, Miss Madaline Trastek and Miss Amy Topic, both of Manitowoc, Wis., and Miss Patricia Clark of Highland Park, all elected by the senior class.

WORK ON TRANSIT ORDINANCE WILL START NEXT WEEK

Work on Chicago's traction ordinance will begin actively next Wednesday when the city council's local transportation committee meets with three negotiators of the transit lines. This was announced yesterday by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] following a meeting of the transportation committee at which four subcommittees were named.

Quinn said that controversies that may arise will be apportioned among and settled by the subcommittees, which will deal with legal and drafting, financial policy, labor relations, and service and improvements.

Philip H. Treacy, attorney for the Public Works administration, said yesterday that PWA might grant an extension beyond the July 1 deadline for council approval of the franchise. This deadline was a condition of PWA's $18,000,000 subway grant to the city.

5 MILLION BACK TAXES TO BE PAID COUNTY BY HOLC

Approximately $5,000,000 in delinquent taxes will be paid to the Cook county treasurer in the next few weeks by the Home Owners Loan corporation, the state's attorney's office disclosed yesterday. The payments will cover 23,000 homes on which the HOLC has made loans. The owners are delinquent in all or part of their property taxes levied since 1934. Of the total more than a million dollars will go into the city's treasury and about a million will go to the school board.

Under the plan, worked out by the state's attorney's office and the HOLC, the HOLC will pay the back taxes, including penalties, and will then bill the sums to the owners, who will be charged interest at 5 per cent annually on unpaid balances.

Some of the homes involved have already been forfeited to the county for nonpayment of taxes. The HOLC will have these forfeitures set aside and pay the delinquent levies. The state's attorney's office said that County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki had agreed to waive the cancelation fees of two or three dollars a property usually charged for setting aside forfeitures.

2 FREED SLAVES BUY TICKETS FOR WIGWAM FETE

Two slaves freed by Lincoln's emancipation proclamation yesterday bought the first tickets for Chicago's Wigwam celebration next Thursday. It will be held at 333 Lake street, the site of the building where Lincoln was nominated for President in 1860. The purchasers are Maj. John Roy Lynch, 91 years old, 4012 South Park way, and Wyatt David Goldsby, 92, of 3210 South Park way. Maj. Lynch said he served three terms in congress in the '70s from Mississippi.

RECOVER RIVER VICTIM'S BODY.

The body of George Mattan, 72 years old, 1506 South Kenneth avenue, was taken from the south branch of the river near Carpenter street yesterday by the Maxwell street police.

4 TICKETS FIGHT FOR BENCH SEATS IN 12TH CIRCUIT

G. O. P. Directs Its Fight Against Judge Wilson.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Eleven candidates on four bench tickets are battling for the three circuit judgeships in the 12th circuit. The campaigning is concentrated in opposition to Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet, who aroused the ire of officials in 1936 by enjoining raids on slot machines in Will, Kankakee, and Iroquois counties, which make up the 12th circuit.

Judge Edwin L. Wilson.

Republican nominees are refraining from personalities and anything smacking of politics. They are making the traditional campaign of handshaking and expressing the view that the bench should be kept remote from party politics. Judicial elections are held in June instead of at the general elections for this reason.

Charge Court Dictatorship.

The Republican party managers, however, are not so silent. At headquarters the accusation is being made that Judge Wilson's penchant for injunctions has led to some degree of government by court order in Joliet. An injunction issued by Judge Wilson March 13, this year, restraining officials from interfering with a saloonkeeper, John H. Williams, was cited today by Republican party chiefs. They assert this is court dictatorship.

The license of Williams' tavern was revoked by Mayor George T. Jones on the ground that liquor was being sold to minors. The usual procedure would be an appeal to the state liquor commission. Judge Wilson issued an injunction against the mayor, Arthur Blackburn, city clerk; David H. Lentz, acting commissioner of police; Nicholas Rothenberg, and Arthur S. Smith, the last three as members of the Illinois liquor control commission.

Officials' Hands Tied.

Lawyers here point to the text of the injunction as being broad enough to insulate the Williams saloon from police jurisdiction. It ordered the officials named in the court order to "desist and refrain from preventing John H. Williams from conducting a tavern and selling and dispensing malt beverages and liquors at retail, and from interfering with or molesting any of his patrons or employés."

Another case to which opponents of Wilson direct attention is that of Charles Costa, a saloonkeeper. In October, 1935, the mayor revoked Costa's license on charges he was operating after the closing hour of 1 a. m. An injunction was issued by Judge Wilson against the mayor and the chief of police. This court order, it is declared, snapped its fingers at the city ordinances of Joliet. It was issued Oct. 14, 1935, and it commanded the mayor and police to: "Refrain from molesting Costa or his employés." Police said Costa kept operating. The city waited until Jan. 1, 1936, and then did not renew his license, which closed the incident.

One of the first injunctions by Judge Wilson against city officials was during the reign of former mayor William Hennessy. A walkathon was billed for Joliet. City authorities decided to stop it. A Wilson injunction stopped the authorities.

In addition to the regular Republican and Democratic slates there are two others, the Non Partisan and the Peoples' tickets, making four in all. The four slates came into the field in the following fashion.

Old Republican Stronghold.

The Democrats encountered complications in getting up their ticket. The 12th Circuit is an old Republican area. Six years ago it went Democratic and elected as judges William R. Hunter of Kankakee, Claude N. Saum of Watseka, and Wilson.

This time Hunter is not a candidate. Judge Saum told his friends he did not care to run on the Democratic ticket with Wilson. Saum could have had the nomination. Instead he desired to run on the Republican ticket on a coalition basis. The Republicans, however decided to nominate a full Republican ticket.

As running mates for Judge Wilson the Democrats nominated Samuel Shapiro of Kankakee and Wilfred S. Kay of Watseka. But Shapiro and Kay declined to run on the Wilson ticket. When they withdrew, the Democratic organization replaced them with William J. Parrish of Momence and Herman W. Danforth of Danforth.

Later Danforth notified the county clerk he didn't want his name on the ballot, but his name had been certified to the secretary of state. His name is on the ballot.

Republican Nominees.

Republican nominees are James V. Bartley of Joliet, Luther B. Bratton of Kankakee and Roscoe C. South of Watseka. The custom is to place one man from each of the three counties on each slate.

Judge Saum, who has a strong following, entered as a nonpartisan Others on his ticket are R. C. Schoenstedt of Joliet and A. D. Henry Streator of Kankakee. Then there is a People's ticket of two. On it are entered William R. McCabe of Lockport, former state's attorney of Will county and former state legislator, and Elmer Taylor of Watseka, state's attorney of Iroquois county. Both sought nominations on the Republican ticket but withdrew in favor of Judge Saum, who was on the Democratic ticket from the same county.

Judicial Candidates Assail Motives of Their Opponents

REPUBLICANS.

A charge that the Democratic control of the Cook county courts is forcing regimentation on the people was made last night by Joseph Z. Willner, a nominee on the Republican judicial ticket in the June 5 election. He spoke before the Evanston Women's Republican club at the Georgian hotel in the suburbs.

"Control over the judiciary," he said, "whether national or local, has permitted the present Democratic administration to dominate the rights, lives, and liberties of the people. This is dictatorship regardless of what glossing name its apologists give it.

Full Control of Laws.

"Control of the courts, particularly in Cook county, has fastened a degree of regimentation on the people. For a dominant political party to force laws through and have them enforced is bad enough, but when the interpretation of such laws is also controled through men placed on the bench by that party, then dictatorship in the fullest sense is with us.

Two other Republican nominees, Thomas H. Slusser and Hector A. Brouillet, addressed a meeting at 2537 West 59th street, in the 15th ward. Attorney Herbert M. Wetzel offered a resolution that precinct workers in that ward should offer their services free of charge in the campaign, since the party is hampered by lack of funds.

Plea to Other Wards.

The resolution was passed unanimously and copies will be sent to the other forty-nine wards, asking all Republican precinct workers to give their services free.

Other judicial candidates spoke before meetings at 4220 Lincoln avenue, 47th ward, and at 9008 Commercial avenue, 10th ward.

DEMOCRATS.

Twenty-one candidates on the Democratic slate for Circuit and Superior court judges spoke last night at four meetings in Chicago. They praised the Cook county Democratic organization for placing Republican judges on the ticket and attacked the motives of the regular G. O. P. leaders in forming a straight party slate.

"I feel a debt of gratitude to the Democratic party," said Judge Michael Feinberg of the Circuit court, a Republican. "They refused to keep me off their list of candidates. The regular Republican organization is trying to defeat me because I have always done my duty."

Deserve Votes on Record.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington of the Circuit court, a Democrat, asserted that the Democratic party stands for the principle of reëlecting qualified judges regardless of their party affiliation. Another Democrat, Judge John Prystalski, said that all the Democratic nominees deserved votes on their records.

Judge Grover C. Niemeyer of the Superior court, a Democrat, declared the Republican leaders were striving only to "build up morale."

No Need for "Hullabaloo."

Judge Kickham Scanlan, a Republican veteran who is on the Democratic slate, asserted there was nothing unusual about a coalition ticket. Many times, he said, coalition had saved good judges for the county. There was no need, he added, for the "hullabaloo" over this one.

One of the meetings was at 9138 Houston avenue, on the far south side. The others were on the northwest side; in the 26th ward, at 1143 Chicago avenue; in the 32d, at 2040 North avenue, and in the 35th, at 3084 Milwaukee avenue.

TWO POLICEMEN ARE OUSTED FOR VIOLATING RULES

Policemen Bernard Dorgen of the Rogers Park station and Carl E. Storz of the Morgan Park station were discharged yesterday by the police trial board for violations of civil service rules. Dorgen was found guilty of being intoxicated while on duty. Storz was found guilty of threatening William J. Matthews, 5222 Indiana avenue, colored, with his revolver and forcing him to surrender $1. The trial board fined Albert L. Madden, also of Morgan Park, three months' pay after he admitted standing about 200 feet away when Storz accosted Matthews. He said he did not see the money passed.

PICK ROOSEVELT FOR THIRD TERM, BROWDER'S PLEA

Young Communists Hear Leader's Appeal.

New York, May 12.—[Special.]—With a variation of Alexander's Ragtime Band for its theme song, the young communists' league opened a four day convention today at the Center hotel, after hearing Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party, advocate the reëlection of President Roosevelt.

The tradition against a third term in the presidency must be set aside and President Roosevelt must be reelected, declared Browder in his speech delivered last night in Madison Square Garden, because leftist elements in the country, he said, can have no hope of receiving any representation from a Republican.

"It must therefore look for a victory of the New Deal wing in the Democratic convention," said Browder, "or, failing that, face the alternative of breaking up, dispersal and defeat without a fight, or the launching of a new party of its own.

Hits Garner-Glass Forces.

"Between a Garner-Glass-Wheeler Democratic party and a Hoover-Dewey-Taft Republican party it has no choice. The radical one-third of the voters find it necessary therefore to wish for and work for victory of the Roosevelt wing in the Democratic convention. But, having as yet no guarantee of such a victory, it must prepare for alternative action in case of defeat at the hands of the Garner-Glass forces."

Browder declared there has arisen a rapidly growing mass demand that the President shall be a candidate to succeed himself. He asserted the critical condition of the world and of the nation, which he said demands continuity and stability of leadership of the government, renders dangerous any step which would break up the present majority coalition.

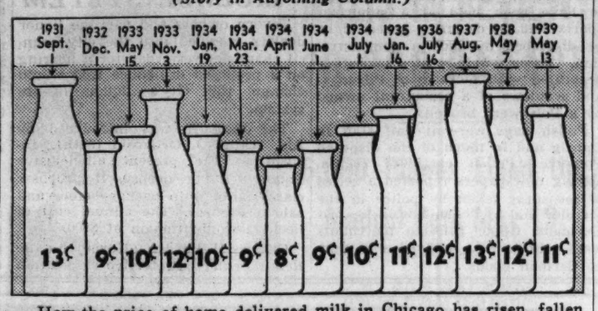
Open with Songfest.

When today's meeting was called to order by Gil Green, league president, an outsider might have taken it for a general rallying of ardent jitterbugs, for the first order of the day seemed to be a songfest. Ragtime vied with swingtime as the delegates gave their all to numbers entitled "O, Comrades, Together We Are Building the Brotherhood of Man" and "O, We Have Come Together from the Rockies and the Plains."

Really whipping into it, they used the refrain of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" to sing "Come On and Join; Come and Join the Y. C. L."

Fluctuations of Milk Prices

(Story in Adjoining Column.)



How the price of home delivered milk in Chicago has risen, fallen, gone upward again, and then dropped once more since 1931. The reduction of 1 cent announced yesterday came as a surprise.

HURL STENCH BOMBS INTO STORES THAT SELL CUT RATE MILK

Stench bombs were thrown last night into four south side food stores. Two are known to have been selling cut rate milk. The stores are Weiss' food mart, 1134 West 63d street; Sam Callas' food and fruit shop, 1447 West 63d street; Andy McConnochie's grocery, 7301 South Racine avenue, and John Fabik's shop, 5249 South Kedzie avenue.

Weiss and Callas told police they had been selling milk at two quarts for 15 cents. The stench bomb thrown into the Weiss store failed to explode and was recovered by Detective Frank Kehoe of the Englewood station. It will be turned over to the bomb squad.

Close Inquest in Slaying of Walkathon Promoter

The inquest into the killing of Charles Hayden on April 9 was closed yesterday after Sergt. Michael Fleming of the Fillmore street station testified no progress had been made in finding the slayers. Hayden was shot while standing across the street from a ballroom where he and a partner operated a walkathon. He was not robbed, Sergt. Fleming told the jury, which returned a verdict of murder by persons unknown.

JURY TO TAKE UP ANNENBERG CASE IN CHICAGO JUNE 5

The federal grand jury here will begin its investigation into alleged income tax deficiencies of Moses L. Annenberg, wealthy publisher, on June 5, it was announced yesterday by United States District Attorney William J. Campbell.

"The files have been submitted to me by Attorney General Murphy for a full and complete investigation of possible criminal intent to avoid payment of income taxes," Campbell said.

The alleged deficiencies, said to amount to $500,000, are for 1933-'36.

"I have not arrived at an opinion on the evidence submitted," Campbell said. "So far as the office here is concerned this is just another tax case and will be handled in the same way as others."

Campbell will go before the grand jury to present the case, aided by several special assistants.

SEN. TAFT CALLS G.O.P. VICTORY IN 1940 IMPERATIVE

New Haven, Conn., May 12.—[Special.]—Portraying conditions in Washington as disorganized and inharmonious, United States Senator Robert Taft [R., O.], told the Yale Political union tonight that the election of a Republican President in 1940 is imperatively demanded. "If we go on with an unbalanced budget the whole economic system of the country will be broken down, automatically taking with it the political system," he said. "The real remedy for the current industrial condition is to put men back to work by encouraging private enterprise."

MILK PRICES CUT CENT A QUART AT HOME AND STORE

Action Is Surprise After Drivers Reject Slash.

BY HAL FOUST.

Retail milk prices were reduced a cent a quart in Chicago and suburbs yesterday, a cut that will save consumers in this area about $2,000,000 a year.

The decrease came as a surprise. A reduction, possibly as much as 2 cents, had been expected if the milk wagon drivers had accepted a proposed wage reduction, but union members voted earlier this week to reject the lowered wage scale.

The new prices, 11 cents a quart for home delivered milk and 9 cents for that purchased at stores, are the lowest since the industry was in turmoil in 1934 under federal control. At that time, with labor, dealers, and farmers suffering from a disrupted market, milk was being sold at a wide range of prices with the average 9 and 10 cents.

Distributors Claim Losses.

The big distributors, in labor negotiations and in legislative hearings, have reported a loss in their fluid milk operations of a fraction of a cent on every quart sold.

"We have had no reduction in the cost of delivering milk," C. L. Dressel, president of the Borden-Weiland company, said yesterday. "Therefore, a price cut at this time can be justified only as a gesture to meet competition from dealers who do not pay union wages and are thus able to charge less for milk.

"As long as our home delivery wage cost remains at 4.01 cents a quart, the highest in the United States, and our total labor cost continues at 6.47 cents a quart, we will not be able to achieve sound prices for Chicago consumers."

Smaller Concerns Fall in Line.

Smaller companies are following the lead of the Borden-Weiland and Bowman Dairy companies in reducing the milk price, according to Paul Potter, executive secretary of Associated Milk Dealers, Inc.

The wage cut proposed to the drivers was from $48 a week plus an average of $4 in commissions to $40 a week plus commissions. A similar decrease in wages in the Calumet [Indiana] district last summer was followed by a 2 cent reduction in the retail price of milk.

The most Chicago ever paid for its milk was in 1920 when prices ranged from 14 to 16 cents a quart. From 1923 to 1930, the charge was 14 cents at the doorstep and at the stores. It was 13 cents in 1931; 9 and 10 cents in 1932; 10 to 12 cents in 1933; 11 cents in 1935, 12 cents at the homes and 1 cent less at stores in 1936; 13 and 12 cents starting in August of 1937; and 12 cents at the homes and 10 cents at the stores, beginning in May, 1938.

Farm Price Unchanged.

Prices paid to farmers were not affected by yesterday's changes. Farmers are seeking higher prices through a bill for a milk control law pending in the legislature. An investigation of the operation of similar laws in eastern markets showed that they tended to boost housewives' costs approximately 2 cents a quart. The investigation was made by a committee headed by Dr. H. A. Ruehe of the University of Illinois.

TELLS OF PAYING BRIBE TO GET IN CITY SANITARIUM

Charges that he paid $50 to an unidentified Democratic precinct captain in an unsuccessful effort to gain admission to the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium were made yesterday by Oscar I. Middleton, colored, of 5607 Prairie avenue, before a legislative investigating committee. He said he was able to enter the institution only after having written to Mayor Kelly.

The committee was named Monday to investigate charges that the sanitarium discriminated against Negroes. Bills now pending in Springfield would increase the sanitarium appropriation from $2,850,000 to $3,000,000 for each of the next two years. Testimony also was heard yesterday from social workers and physicans that there was need for more facilities for Negro patients.

Elroy C. Sanquist, chairman of the legislative committee, said another meeting probably would be held next week. The hearing was in the sanitarium office at 2049 Washington boulevard.

ROBBED OF $300 IN OFFICE.

Herbert Y. Hart, 34 years old, 4055 North Mason avenue, president of the George E. Hart, Inc., 1320 North Cicero avenue, was robbed of $300 by two bandits while he was alone in his office yesterday.

BRITAIN AGREES WITH TURKEY ON MUTUAL AID PACT

Will Co-operate to Guard Their Security.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 12.—Another step in the new British policy of abandoning its former objections to continental commitments was taken today with the announcement in the house of commons that the British and Turks will sign a long term mutual assistance pact in the interests of their national security.

Last month the British government, supported by France, gave guarantees against aggression to Poland, Rumania, and Greece, the three European nations which form a barrier east of Germany.

Temporary Deal In Effect.

Announcement of the Turk agreement was made by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. He said that definite terms of the pact still are the subject of consultations but that, pending the drafting of the accord, the Turks and British agreed that if there was an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean area they would coöperate effectively and lend each other all assistance.

Chamberlain refused to define what exactly was meant by the term "Mediterranean area," but he said it did not exclude the Dardanelles and the Black sea.

Permission for passage of British warships through the Dardanelles to go to the assistance of Rumania should that country be attacked is presumably the crux of the agreement. Without Turkish friendship and an open Dardanelles, observers point out, Britain's pledge of security to Rumania and Poland would be worthless.

Seek Balkan Security.

Chamberlain declared that both governments recognized it was necessary to reinforce the security of the Balkans, and the Turks and British are consulting also about achieving this purpose speedily.

This presumably means that they will try to prevent the disintegration of the Balkan entente—Jugo-Slavia, Greece, Turkey, and Rumania—through Jugo-Slavia's disaffection and tendency to join up with the Rome-Berlin axis, and also to persuade Bulgaria to join the entente.

Chamberlain concluded that certain matters, including a more precise definition of what conditions would bring the reciprocal engagements into operation, require closer examination before completion of the agreement.

Chamberlain's announcement that the Turks had joined the team against Reichsfuehrer Hitler received cheers even from opposition members, for fears have been aroused over the guarantees to Poland, Rumania, and Greece. Many politicians, even on Chamberlain's side, have been thinking that they were hasty guarantees which could not be carried out easily. David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister, recently received no answer to a query as to whether Chamberlain had consulted the general staff before giving the guarantees.

Situation Called Critical.

It is believed that the British made approaches to the Russians when they had gotten out on a limb over the Polish and Rumanian guarantees. But they could not accept the Russians demand for an all-inclusive agreement because the Japanese had told London they would not like any British guarantees for Russia even if confined only to the European scene.

Some British strategists think the situation is more than critical for England even with the Turk agreement. They believe Gen. Francisco Franco, the Spanish dictator, already has joined the Italian-German military alliance and that the Mediterranean now can be closed with the big guns the Germans have mounted on the Spanish peninsula. Thus the British fleet might find itself bottled up in the Mediterranean, according to these experts.

Conscription Takes Men, So British Women Get Jobs

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Because compulsory military training is taking young men, the British treasury today recalled women employés who had been dismissed when they married. Banks, businesses, and insurance companies were expected to follow suit.

GERMANY TAKES A CENSUS, EVEN OF PIGS AND BEES

Asks Data on Race and Religion.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 12.—Germany today started taking the biggest census it has ever taken. The population of Pan-Germany will be catalogued according to race. The census takers also will record all the live stock of the country, including cattle, pigs, geese, ducks, chickens, and bees.

Quiz on Racial Antecedents.

A questionnaire on racial antecedents and professional training must be filled out. The Nazis hope the census will provide them with a full list of quarter-Jews, some of whom so far have escaped detection.

For the minority in Germany the census is of great importance. Especially the Poles and Danes are watching the outcome closely. They assert that they have been intimidated and will not dare reveal their real race for fear of losing their jobs or having their children deprived of the right of apprenticeship.

Call Fears Unjustified.

Nazis declare these fears are unjustified and that everybody must list his true origin. Under the heading, "mother's tongue," is a note warning those whose mothers spoke Mazurian to list this as a separate language and not as Polish. The Poles claim that Mazurian is a Polish dialect, just as Bavarian is a German dialect.

The census will also provide the German government with accurate figures on religious organizations. All persons are ordered to list the names of religious associations to which they belong.

BRITISH-TURKISH PACT ANGERS NAZIS; CHARGE IT STIRS UP UNREST

BERLIN, May 12.—(AP)—Deutsche Dienst, Nazi commentary service, indicated Germany's dislike of the British-Turkish mutual assistance declaration tonight and said Britain had stirred up unrest, insecurity, and the fear psychosis behind which it hoped to do political business.

The service, which is distributed by DNB, German official news agency, ridiculed the British-Turkish agreement as a precipitant, provisional declaration which must give the world the impression that an outbreak of war is just a question of days.

Making no secret of its regret that Turkey had abandoned its neutrality policy, Deutsche Dienst found some comfort in the situation by observing:

"We can no longer be shaken by anything. Germany and Italy not only are two inseparable comrades in battle, but also an invincible bulwark."

FRANCE, BRITAIN PUSH NEAR EAST WAR MEASURES

BEIRUT, Lebanon, May 12.—(AP)—French and British preparations to protect their eastern Mediterranean coastlines against attack are being pressed in close working unison. Bomb shelters have been constructed in the principal cities of Palestine and Syria, and anti-aircraft guns have been mounted at strategic points in both territories. An air raid drill with a twenty-minute blackout was conducted here last night.

VICTIM OF FALL DIES.

Mrs. Mary Hintz, 80 years old, 537 West 154th place, Calumet City, died in County hospital yesterday. She was injured in a fall May 3.

FRENCH CHAMBER BACKS PREMIER'S WARLIKE POLICY

Gives Him 367 to 233 Confidence Vote.

PARIS, May 12.—(AP)—Premier Eduard Daladier's government won a parliamentary vote of confidence today on its policy of resistance to any effort to dominate Europe by force.

The chamber of deputies balloted 367 to 233 in suppor' of the premier, who is governing France with semi-dictatorial decree power.

Even those who voted against the government made it clear that they had done so not because they were against the premier's foreign policy, but because he had insisted upon linking it in the vote to a domestic program they could not support.

The premier had insisted that France's present strong foreign policy would have been impossible without his domestic policy of heavier taxation and longer working hours.

Turkey's demands for the Republic of Hatay were reported tonight to have delayed a French-Turkish mutual assistance agreement similar to the one announced today between Great Britain and Turkey.

An authoritative source said France and Turkey had been carrying on two parallel negotiations:

1. For coöperation in the Mediterranean in case of war.

2. For disposition of Hatay [formerly the district of Alexandretta], claimed by Turkey but forming a part of French mandated Syria.

Since an accord has not been reached on the second point, this source said, the projected French-Turkish statement had been withheld.

HITLER ACCUSED OF SETTING STAGE FOR DANZIG VOTE

30,000 Nazis Are Sent to Area, Poles Charge.

WARSAW, May 12.—(AP)—Wieczor Warszawski, Polish nationalist newspaper, charged today that 30,000 Germans had been added to the population of the Free City of Danzig in what it described as an invasion of armed squads. The paper denounced any effort by Germany to resort to a plebiscite there. The newspaper said most of the Germans entering the city were Hitler troopers and members of Blackshirt units in civilian clothes.

Wieczor Warszawski asserted that Germany obviously was thinking in terms of what it called a spontaneous plebiscite in Danzig, which was taken from Germany under the treaty of Versailles and which Reichsfuehrer Hitler now demands be given to Germany, together with a fifteen mile right of way through the Polish corridor.

Calls Plebiscite Farce.

Denouncing any effort of Germany to resort to a plebiscite, the newspaper said:

"In a place where an incautious word may bring a bullet in the head or deportation to a concentration camp, a plebiscite would be no more than a farce."

The Polish press generally carried on front pages rumors of a plebiscite in the Nazi dominated Baltic port. Newspapers also printed warnings to Germany against applying pressure or force on Poland.

Poland today solemnly observed the fourth anniversary of the death of Joseph Pilsudski, who became its president after the nation's restoration following the world war.

All places of amusement were closed, memorial services were held in churches, and a three minute silence began at 8:45 p. m., the hour Pilsudski died.

Nazis Ban Pilsudski Memorial.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, May 12.—(AP)—Police in Nazi dominated Danzig prevented Poles in the free city from holding an open air memorial service tonight for Poland's hero, Marshal Josef Pilsudski.

Poles said the police explained the order banning the service, which was to have been held at a suburban sports field, by declaring peace might be disturbed by such a demonstration. Three windows of a bookstore decorated with pictures of Pilsudski and windows of a restaurant owned by a Pole were broken.

Polish flags were at half staff in Danzig and in much of the disputed Pomorze [Polish corridor] region. Danzig newspapers reported a series of measures taken by police in the corridor and in Polish Silesia against Germans. Upper Silesian merchants were said to have started a boycott of German goods.

HEAR PROPOSAL FOR NEW LIQUOR LICENSE SYSTEM

Tavern owners and package liquor dealers crowded into the city council chambers yesterday for a hearing on a proposed ordinance that would change the city's liquor license system.

The measure was introduced by Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th]. Instead of the present all-inclusive liquor vending license, it proposes classification into package store and saloon licenses. The annual cost of licenses would remain at $600.

Charles H. Borden, attorney for the Retail Dealers' Protective association said if taverns were prevented from selling beverages to be consumed elsewhere they would lose 20 to 30 per cent of their business. Many owners go broke, he said, and more than 15,000 persons would be thrown out of work. Herman Weiss, attorney for the Illinois Retail Package Store ambassador to London, urged that package sale of liquor by saloons be stopped. The council committee on licensing took the matter under advisement.

Envoy Kennedy's Wife Plans Brief Trip to U. S.

BRITAIN TO BUILD AIR FORCES FOR ITS LITTLE ALLIES

Muddling Ended; Planes to Be Given Away.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 12.—The collapse of Great Britain's airplane building program in 1937 and 1938 as a result of ministerial incapacity and all around muddling now has been rectified and Britain rapidly is building up a formidable air force, according to impartial experts here.

Early difficulties in mass production have been ironed out, with the result that Britain is turning out at least 600 planes per month and now is planning to supply European nations it hopes to line up in an anti-aggression pact, it is said.

Planes to Be Given Away.

Planes are to be sold to the smaller nations on the British side of the fence, but it is indicated that Britain does not expect ever to collect for them. The cost is to be written off as part of the expense of forming the bloc against the dictators.

Experts assert that the original airplane factories and the new shadow factories are operating on two and one-half shifts a day—twenty hours—beyond which efficient and economical operations are impossible.

The shadow factories are duplicates or triplicates of existing plants originally built to establish a huge reserve of potential production but which now are said to be working at top speed.

Original Plan Shelved.

The original plan to hold back output for fear that planes would become obsolete within a year is reported to have been shelved in favor of the plan to supply allies with modern aircraft. In this connection, it is noted that Rumania has just been granted a $25,000,000 credit by Great Britain for purchases here. These involve armaments.

France, which still is reported to be lagging in production, also is to get British machines, it is said. France is counted upon to supply other types of armaments which it is said to be better equipped to produce than Britain.

Some experts declare Britain now has an airforce strong enough to offer stiff resistance to a German lightning war. It is pointed out that Britain's vital industries are being well dispersed, which would make them more difficult to cripple than is generally supposed, and it is said that Britain has a sufficient supply of bombers now to launch devastating reprisals on Germany for any damage done here.

Says Britain Can Whip Nazis.

One expert who has been studying British air production for two months on behalf of a foreign power expressed the opinion to THE TRIBUNE correspondent today that Britain now is in good enough shape to whip Germany if the latter started anything. He based this opinion on the assumption that Germany has no resources for a long war and that a lightning war no longer is the threat it once was.

Observers here declare that Britain is speeding production of war planes by omitting a number of gadgets included in American planes which are said to be unnecessary for the short distances which would be involved in an air war on the continent. Heaters and automatic pilots are cited as two features not needed which have been dropped by the British.

Earlier lack of coöperation and working at cross purposes are said to be things of the past here as far as aircraft construction is concerned. The building program is being given the right of way in all departments, it is declared. Some 2,000 firms now are working on air orders and production is still gathering force as a result of the speed-up, experts claim.

Blame Baldwin for Muddling.

Britain's air program got off to a bad start as a result of the failure of Stanley Baldwin, now Earl Baldwin of Bewdley, to do anything about it when he was prime minister. As a result, Germany got two years' head start. The 1937 goal of 1,750 planes was not reached until the end of March this year.

Criticism of muddling in the program reached white heat a year ago, with the result that Viscount Swinton was forced to resign as air minister. Production still was kicked around until the crisis over Czecho-Slovakia last summer, after which it began to pick up speed under Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood. He was given almost unlimited funds to push production at all possible speed.

SOVIET WARSHIP WITH 200 ABOARD FEARED WRECKED

OSLO, Norway, May 12.—(AP)—Reports persisted in Northern Norway today, despite soviet Russian denials, that the soviet guard ship Turja had been wrecked in the White sea with the loss of all 200 men aboard. Three Norwegian sealers have returned home in the last three days and reported having found five bodies of Russian marines and a quantity of wreckage. The Oslo newspaper Tidens Tegn published an interview with the skipper of the Norwegian whaling ship Skander, who said he found three of the bodies and transferred them to a Russian torpedo boat. He expressed the belief they were from the Turja.

Starlet Wins Divorce

JACQUELINE WELLS.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 12.—[Special.]—Jacqueline Wells, film starlet, won a divorce today from Walter Brooks III., grandson of the late Edward T. Stotesbury of the J. P. Morgan company. She charged Brooks with cruelty, testifying that he twisted her arm and made her get out of his auto.

Their marriage two years ago was the result of a romance that started when the socially prominent Philadelphia youth worked a day as a film extra for a lark. On the set he met Jacqueline, one of the 1934 Wampas Baby stars, and from then on spent much time on the set—not as an extra, but as an ardent suitor.

Jacqueline filed suit for divorce a year ago and several reconciliations were reported.

ROTHSCHILD SET FREE BY GERMAN SECRET POLICE

VIENNA, May 12.—(AP)—Baron Louis Rothschild, 56 years old, a member of the family of noted bankers, was released by the Gestapo [secret police] today. He had been a prisoner since April, 1938. He left immediately by airplane for Zurich, Switzerland, from where he planned to go to Paris.

Rothschild for 13 months was confined to two rooms on the top floor of Vienna's Metropole hotel, where the Gestapo holds numerous political prisoners. It was believed the German government had confiscated his fortune. Friends intimated he would sue to recover the lost property, although the legal channels open to him were obscure.

Louis is a brother of Baron Eugene Rothschild, who was host to the duke of Windsor when the duke came to Austria for several months of voluntary exile after his abdication from the British throne. Soon after Louis' imprisonment it was reported the duke pleaded with German authorities for his release.

German Fisherman Slain by Poles, Nazis Report

BERLIN, May 12.—(AP)—DNB, official German news agency, today reported that a German fisherman was shot and killed by Poles while crossing the river Obra in his boat.

FRANCO HONORS NAZIS IN REVIEW; 10,000 PARADE

6,000 Planes Lined Up; Madrid Fete May 19.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, May 12.—Gen. Francisco Franco today reviewed 10,000 men of the air force and anti-aircraft units at Barajas airdrome. He made the review an occasion for further grateful farewells to the German and Italian troops who fought for him. Gen. Franco also announced that the Madrid victory parade would be held May 19.

With Spanish courtesy, 4,000 Germans and more than 2,000 Italians today were given places of honor and allowed to dominate the show. The review provided an impressive demonstration of German, Italian, and Spanish military might. More than 200 pieces of artillery and at least 1,000 motor vehicles of all sorts rolled by in perfect alignment. Six thousand warplanes of all types were drawn up in the background. None of the planes took to the air but they were reviewed on the ground by Gen. Franco.

Two Hour Procession.

Thousands of Madrid residents began flocking to the airdrome at 7:30 o'clock this morning, but only those invited were allowed to pass the control points on the road which was closed at 11 o'clock. The review began at 1 o'clock and lasted until nearly 3.

Motorcycle companies, communication units, field kitchens, ten light batteries of Italian anti-aircraft guns, nine batteries of heavier Italian guns and ten German batteries, all equipped with detector apparatus and searchlights, rolled by.

With Gen. Franco in the reviewing stand were Gen. Kindelan, head of the Spanish air force, Gen. von Richthofen and Col. Hans Seidmann of the German Condor Legion, and the German ambassador.

As a prelude to the review Gen. Franco presented military medals to the German and then to the Italian officers and men who distinguished themselves during the war. All through the ceremony the Germans were given the place of honor.

The review marshaled the greater part of the German forces now in Spain and it was the greatest concentration they will show before their final farewell review in Leon, supposedly on May 22.

Tells of Bonds With Italy.

Further evidence of the solidarity existing between Spain and Italy was given yesterday in a speech by Ramon Serrano Suner, minister of the interior. Speaking at a farewell luncheon in Logorno for Italian volunteers, Suner said:

"In the name of the Spanish people I express most profound gratitude for the aid which you have given us. This noble people always will know how to honor your generous aid."

PAPER IN BRITAIN SAYS ENVOY MAY MAR ROYAL VISIT

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 12.—British anxiety about the outcome of the visit to America by King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth was voiced again today with bitter criticisms over the attitude of the British embassy in Washington, D. C., toward American newspaper writers and broadcasters. The king and queen now are on the high seas, scheduled to arrive in Quebec, Canada, on Monday. They will cross over into the United States June 7.

Fear was expressed in reports cabled to London that the feud developing between Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, and his wife on one side, and American newspaper men on the other concerning arrangements for the reception of the king and queen may wreck the whole show.

Snobbery Is Charged.

Viscount Rothermere's Daily Mail, which two months ago called on Whitehall to drastically revise press arrangements for the tour, today printed a long dispatch from its Washington correspondent declaring that American newspapers were angry at the "snobbery" and "tactlessness" of the Lindsays and warning that unfavorable publicity for the visit already was resulting.

"If this be so," the Daily Mail said editorially, "then it is to be deplored. American newspapers and writers at the capital have great power. Their position in the fabric of the nation is a peculiar one. Here in Britain newspapers long have been accustomed to official tactlessness and even rudeness . . . not so in the United States."

Draws a Distinction.

The Daily Mail drew a distinction between the royal trip to Canada and the United States. "The visit of the king and queen to the dominion of Canada is a state one and rightly surrounded by the panoply of state," it said, "but they will be private guests at the subsequent visit to Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt.

"People in this country won't thank officialdom for introducing the starchier side of palace etiquet to a country which is periodically agitated as to whether its ambassador to London will wear knee breeches to court."

DIES OF HEART AILMENT.

Mrs. Ida Fermier, 66 years old, died yesterday of a heart ailment in her home at 1128 North Mason avenue.

presents here each day observations intended to be of value to those it seeks to serve.

THREE OF A DIFFERENCE.

By CALEB

ALIKE in their objective . . . homekeeping content . . . unlike in their approaches thereto . . . are three distinctive, charmingly decorated and furnished home-interiors now being shown on our eighth floor. Joining one of the interested visitor-groups, the other morning, I found much to account for the expressions of approval that punctuated their progress through each.

Trend House, for example, aptly expresses the success with which our buyers and designers, many months ago, completed their studies in England, and made selection from the Classic revival in furniture design which distinguished the reign of William IV. Trend House vividly embodies the new spirit of elegance that directly followed the Napoleonic wars. Its 19th-century English furnishings are of mahogany and rosewood, enhanced by schemes of gold, gray, white, terra cotta, turquoise and pink. These conspire with formal draperies and luxurious floor coverings to set period home-furnishing on a new pedestal of meaning.

Modern House is in interesting contrast. Its rooms offer an ensemble of modern Louis XV inspiration, specifically suited to keep company with the Swedish Modern design introduced by us a year ago. Here, living room, dining room and bedroom pieces are in harvest-finished fruitwood, set off by accents of almond green and carmine rose in upholstery, curtains and carpetings. There is a peculiar graciousness in the furniture lines themselves that we haven't seen rivaled in a long time.

Thrift House, true to its appellation, is a direct bid to all young matrimonial venturers wisely committed to the budget plan. In attendance is an expert secretary, to counsel on color schemes . . . for the furnishings here are duplicable in various color arrangements. Featured, too, is an aisle of timely shopping displays, and price-tags of easy visibility for the practical-minded passerby. In short, this particular exhibit is as self-explanatory as experience and ingenuity could make it.

As I reviewed this trio of gracious displays, and ran their gamut of invitation, somewhere in the back of my mind echoed an old line from one of Longfellow's songs. "Stay, stay at home, my heart, and rest: homekeeping hearts are happiest." And I thought of how much the modern furnisher has done to enrich homekeeping happiness with beauty, cheer, convenience and simplicity that today doubly justify that admonition!

PRESIDENT NAMES ADMIRAL LEAHY ISLAND GOVERNOR

Porto Rican Post Given to Retiring Navy Chief.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today announced that he will name Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, governor of Porto Rico. The admiral will take his new post probably in July after retiring from the navy, Mr. Roosevelt said. Admiral Leahy reached the retirement age of 64 years on May 6.

The President said Leahy would remain as chief of naval operations until after congress adjourns.

Says Winship Wants to Retire.

Leahy will succeed Blanton Winship as governor of the Caribbean island, which was acquired in the Spanish-American war. He will be its first naval governor. The post previously has gone to retired army officers and civilians.

Winship, who has held the governorship for four years, was judge advocate general of the army at the time of his appointment to the island. Mr. Roosevelt, in announcing the selection of a navy man as Winship's successor, said the governor long has wished to retire. This announcement was news to Winship's friends.

Plan U. S. Stronghold.

Leahy's appointment puts two veterans of the highest posts of the army and navy in command of key Atlantic and Pacific defense positions. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former army chief of staff, is field marshal of the land forces of the Philippine commonwealth.

Admiral Leahy will take over the governorship of Porto Rico as the navy launches plans to make the island an American Gibraltar in the Caribbean.

As part of this program, the army has created a department of the Caribbean with headquarters on the island.

SENATE PASSES SECOND PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

Washington, D. C., May 12.—(AP)—With only five minutes of discussion and without a dissenting vote, the senate approved President Roosevelt's second government reorganization plan today.

The plan will become effective July 9, sixty days after being submitted, unless both chambers, disapprove in a concurrent resolution, move up the date, or adjourn. It provides for switching a score of bureaus from one department to another and for abolition of the bituminous coal commission. Duties of the commission will be lodged in the interior department.

The first reorganization plan, approved by the house on May 3, is scheduled to become effective on June 24. That plan would coördinate welfare, lending, and public works activities under three new agencies.

THOMAS HOWELL FILES CROSS BILL SEEKING DIVORCE

A cross bill for divorce was filed in Superior court yesterday in behalf of Thomas M. Howell, millionaire speculator and sportsman. He also filed an answer to the suit for separate maintenance brought April 8 by his wife, Mrs. Pauline E. Howell, 2708 Lakeview avenue.

Mrs. Howell's bill charged desertion and asked an injunction preventing dispersion and concealment of Howell's assets, which were placed at more than ten million dollars. Howell made his fortune as a grain trader.

Mrs. Howell charged her husband deserted her in December of 1934.

NAVY BUYS BEEF OF ARGENTINA ON PRESIDENT'S O. K.

Roosevelt Explains the Purchase Order.

Colo.], "we might as well go a step farther and have our battleships built in England or get our armor plate from Belgium. We're trying to maintain a higher standard of living in this country, but we can't do it without paying for it."

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.] commented that the government did not necessarily buy from the lowest bidder in its domestic purchases, but bought from those who maintained specified wages, hours, and working conditions under the Walsh-Healey act. "When we're struggling to help our own industries, unless the margin of difference is outrageous, it seems to me we ought to buy American products," Connally said.

"It's bad precedent for government buying generally to pass deliberately over an American product for one of a foreign country when we have a far superior product," said Senator Styles Bridges [R., N. H.].

Nebraska Represents It.

Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] expressed the opinion the American farmer is entitled to the American market. Senator Dennis Chavez [D., N. M.] said he would vote for legislation that would oblige the government to purchase army and navy food from American producers.

"I resent the President's statement and action," bluntly asserted Representative John M. Coffee [D., Neb.]. "The American live stock industry, with its burdens of taxes and labor standards, can't compete with peon labor of Argentina and shouldn't be required to do so."

"The President," said Representative Frank O. Horton [R., Wyo.], "is making a contribution to depressing American beef prices and preventing reëmployment of Americans."

American stock men have been protesting the administration's authorizations of live cattle imports under the Canadian reciprocal trade treaty when there are more than enough cattle in the country to support its population. From April 1 to May 11 47,885 head of cattle came into this country from Canada.

STOCKMEN INDIGNANT

Denver, Colo., May 12.—[Special.]—Fernand Edwin Mollin, secretary of the American National Live Stock association, protested here tonight in behalf of his association against the statement made by President Roosevelt that Argentine canned beef is cheaper and better than American canned beef. The live stock association has a membership of some 50,000 cattlemen and 125 cattle associations.

"We're indignant at the President's action," said Mollin. "We're amazed that the President would use his high office to put obstacles in the way of American cattle producers who have had the heavy burden of taxes and debt. We're indignant that they should be kept from enjoying the full American market.

"We are notifying the President by telegram that there is no question that American beef, which is corn fed, is superior to Argentine beef, which is grass fed.

ARGENTINA PLEASED

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 12.—(AP)—Foreign Minister José Cantilo said tonight President Roosevelt's order for the United States navy to buy Argentine canned beef was "a fine gesture" which "may become an important precedent in friendly relations between the two countries."

His evident pleasure at the action was reflected even among the most severe critics of Washington's ban on imports of Argentine chilled beef on grounds that it is produced in a country where hoof and mouth disease is prevalent. Pending a trade treaty Argentina has restricted imports from the United States through penalizing measures, which are threatening to eliminate North American automobiles and trucks in this country.

CHICAGOANS PROTEST

Chicago live stock operators last night joined in the general protest against the navy's purchase of Argentine corned beef in preference to the American product.

Charles R. Rice, president of the Live Stock exchange, challenged the President's statement as to Argentine superiority. "The American farmer," Mr. Rice added, "needs all the market he can get, and the government, instead of giving business elsewhere, should be one of our best buyers."

Packing company officials had no comment to make at this time. Many of them handle Argentine beef.

Soviet Women Becoming Heavier, Commissar Finds

MOSCOW, May 12.—(AP)—S. G. Lukin, commissar of light industry, has discovered that soviet women are becoming heavier. He mentioned the demand for bigger sizes in clothing in a speech.

IL DUCE TO SPEAK TOMORROW; MAY REPLY TO ALLIES

ROME, May 12.—(AP)—Fascist sources tonight predicted that Premier Mussolini would answer recent statements by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and Premier Edouard Daladier of France on Sunday. On that day Il Duce will deliver a speech at Turin.

Mussolini's speech at a massmeeting there will open a week's tour of the Piedmont region. The tour is expected to take him close to both the French and Swiss frontiers with Italy and to include an inspection of Italian military establishments in those zones.

It also was considered possible that Il Duce might make some mention of the Vatican's overtures in behalf of peace. In some Fascist quarters it was believed he might strike a conciliatory note and open the way for negotiation of Fascist colonial demands on France.

WIEBOLDT SIGNS WITH NEW FIRM TO DO TRUCKING

Stores End Long Dispute with Unions.

The trucking business of the Wieboldt Stores, Inc., yesterday was given to a new, independent company, Metropolitan Deliveries, Ltd., it was announced by Werner Wieboldt, chairman of the stores. All the regular truck drivers and helpers hitherto employed by the stores will be given jobs with the new company, he said.

Seventy-five Wieboldt delivery trucks and trailers were taken over by Metropolitan Deliveries as part of the deal. In exchange for this equipment the stores accepted stock in the new company, it was said. Werner Wieboldt emphasized, however, that the new trucking concern is an independent company and is not affiliated with the department stores.

Ends Long Labor Dispute.

Signing of the contract at 6 o'clock last evening brings to an end the labor dispute between the Wieboldt stores and the American Federation of Labor trucking unions. The new company must negotiate a contract with the unions as one of the conditions of the transaction, Wieboldt said.

"Service will be much improved and expanded," said Wieboldt. "It is the latest step in improving our deliveries that began in 1885, when William Wieboldt, founder of the stores, hired one Charles Lind, owner of a horse and wagon, to make home deliveries."

The new trucking company is an expansion of the Templeton Trucking service that was founded in Chicago by the late Clifford Frank Templeton in 1898. Clifford Templeton, son of the founder, is president of the new delivery service, and Elmer E. Long is vice president and treasurer. The new company also will handle all deliveries for Charles A. Stevens & Co.

Hopes for Other Contracts.

Metropolitan Deliveries hopes to acquire contracts with other large department stores, it was said. The company is similar to the one large trucking company that handles home deliveries for all the large New York department stores.

The Templeton Trucking company that is to be merged into the new concern now has a contract with the A. F. of L. unions. This contract expires the end of this month. Union officials, informed of the deal before the signing of the contract yesterday, have agreed to sit down and negotiate new wage and hour contracts for Metropolitan Deliveries.

Plan for Settling Disputes.

The union also has agreed that any disputes that may arise in these conferences will be referred for final settlement to Mayor Kelly's arbitration committee that was appointed ten days ago to iron out the labor dispute between the Wieboldt stores and the union.

When police testified that they have failed to find the slayers of James Lawrence, Wieboldt truck helper slain by labor terrorists last April 12, a coroner's jury yesterday closed the inquest into his death. The jury declared Lawrence was shot by a person or persons unknown and directed the police to continue the search for two suspects.

JAP PILOTS AGAIN RAID CHUNGKING; FIGHT SKY DUELS

Chinese Aviators Try to Defend Capital.

SHANGHAI, May 13 [Saturday].—(AP)—Dispatches from Chungking last night said twenty-seven Japanese warplanes unexpectedly raided that provisional capital of China, target of devastating raids last week. No estimate of casualties was available.

Chinese planes were said to have engaged in a spectacular battle with the invaders. From 3,500 to 5,000 casualties were inflicted by Japanese raids on Chungking May 3 and 4.

Japanese bluejackets who yesterday suddenly occupied the Kulangsu international settlement at Amoy today began rounding up Chinese suspected of anti-Japanese activities there.

More Than 100 Seized.

More than one hundred were arrested in house to house searches through the little foreign area on an island of one and a half square miles in the harbor of Amoy, 600 miles southwest of Shanghai. Formosan secret agents who have been living in the settlement led the searches.

The surprise occupation, which created apprehension in other international areas of China, brought a warning from a Japanese spokesman that similar action against Shanghai's great international settlement may be necessary.

Slaying of a Chinese, Hung Li-hui, president of the Amoy Chamber of Commerce, while the Japanese naval commander was in the vicinity, was given as the reason for the occupation.

Land Without Warning.

Japanese said the incident entitled them to the right of self-defense and accused the settlement's council of failing to take steps against the assailants. The landing was made without warning to the council, which includes an American, one of seven Americans in the settlement.

Since Shanghai's international settlement has similar legal status, the occupation aroused speculation in Shanghai, where relations between Japanese and settlement authorities have grown better only recently.

President Takes Week-End Cruise on Chesapeake Bay

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt left the Washington navy yard this evening for a week-end cruise on the Presidential yacht Potomac in Chesapeake bay. Those who accompanied him are Solicitor General and Mrs. Robert Jackson, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. E. M. Watson, Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, personal secretary. Gen. Watson is a presidential secretary and Capt. Callaghan is the naval aid. The party will return to Washington Sunday evening.

Volume of Shakespeare, Printed in 1623, Is Found

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, May 12.—A well preserved volume of Shakespeare's plays was found in an old attic here today. The book was printed in London in 1623 by W. Jaggard, Ed Blount, J. Smith Weeke, and W. Aspley. The index lists 35 plays, but the volume contains 36. One play appears to have been inserted later.

All Dark Haired

Blondes? Never! Red heads? Not a chance! When University of Chicago students select a queen they pick a brunette every time.

When the present term closes five girls will take home crowns won in student competition during the school year. Each of the girls has dark hair.

The reign of the brunettes began last fall when Miss Jean Peterson, 5140 Woodlawn avenue, was chosen freshman beauty queen and queen of homecoming. Then, in the winter, along came Miss Charlotte Rexstrew, 8226 Sangamon street, a junior. She was named queen of the water carnival.

Miss Marion Elisberg, a senior, who lives at 5529 Hyde Park boulevard, in early spring was selected as head score girl for the annual Blackfriars' show. Last week two more brunettes triumphed. The Cap and Gown, yearbook, awarded campus honors to Miss Joan Lyding, a sophomore, of 7422 Bennett avenue. Miss Judith Cunningham, 1321 East 56th street, a senior, won the ultimate honor. She was pronounced B. W. O. C.—Big Woman on the Campus.

U. S. WITHHOLDS PASSPORTS FOR BUND CHIEFTAINS

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—Since early in March the state department has held up applications for passports for Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American bund, and two associates, it was disclosed today. It was pointed out that a passport is a discretionary matter and not a right of citizenship.

The state department postponed granting the passports because of an investigation of the affairs of the three men by New York City authorities. Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York telegraphed Secretary of State Cordell Hull today asking that issuance of the passports be postponed until the inquiry is completed. It was said the state department will comply with the request.

Meantime Kuhn began a suit in the federal court at New York demanding $5,000,000 for alleged libel in the motion picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." Kuhn, suing as an individual and as president of the bund, named the Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and Leon G. Turrou, former federal agent, among the defendants.

BAR FIGHTS BILL BANNING ESTATE TAX APPRAISERS

Opposition was expressed yesterday by the board of managers of the Chicago Bar association to a bill, passed by the Illinois senate Wednesday, which would make it impossible for County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and downstate county judges to employ so-called appraisers in inheritance tax cases.

Under the bill the power to assess the value of estates for inheritance tax purposes would be transferred to the attorney general's office.

The bar association started a study of the appraisement problem last fall after a preelection complaint that Judge Jarecki was wasting public funds for estate appraisal fees. The complaint was made by Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson, president of the Women's Civic council.

The bar report urged that the senate bill, introduced by Senator Nicholas L. Hubbard [D., Mount Pulaski], be referred to a committee for hearings. It said the bill opens the way for payment of appraisement and related fees in connection with every report of assessment and pointed out that the present law limits appraisers' fees, while the new bill "provides for fees to 'evaluators' whose functions are wholly undefined, and places no limitation on the amount of such fees."

VOTE TO INDICT ASSAILANT OF UNION OFFICER

Store Employe Faces Two Shooting Charges.

A true bill against Herman Brandt, a produce store employé charged with shooting a union organizer in a fight with store pickets, was reported voted yesterday by the grand jury on two charges of assault with intent to kill.

The jury voted a no bill on an indictment against Herman Wadler, owner of the produce store at 6520 South Cicero avenue, in front of which the fight took place on April 18. Wadler had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Fired During Picket Attack.

Brandt was charged with firing a shot while Wadler allegedly was being beaten by several of the pickets. The bullet struck and wounded Harry Thieme, 5361 South Artesian avenue, financial secretary of the egg inspectors' union, local 663. John J. Moran, business agent of the meat cutters' union, local 546, charged that Brandt also tried to shoot him, but had failed when the gun jammed.

None of the pickets whose alleged attack on Wadler precipitated the shooting have been arrested. Instead, after the fight, two Cook county highway policemen took up the job of guarding four union pickets who paraded in front of the store.

Both Thieme and Moran were charged with disorderly conduct after the fight. Neither, according to Brandt, was actively engaged in the fighting but refused to heed his cry to halt as they came toward the pickets who were slugging Wadler. Their case, which has been held on call pending yesterday's grand jury action, probably will be heard in the Felony court Monday.

Attempt to Organize 24.

Four unions—the egg handlers, the meat cutters, the teamsters, and the grocery clerks—are attempting to organize Wadler's twenty-four employés. Wadler said he has told his employés they may join the unions but they have refused to do so.

On April 22, Wadler filed a petition in Circuit court for an injunction against the pickets. He charged his truck drivers were being intimidated and pursued and that the tires of their cars were being slashed.

MORE TROUBLE FACING IRENE'S HOME FOR DOGS

Attendant Accused of 2d Animal's Theft.

The scene was the Evanston Municipal court. The time was 9:30 a. m. yesterday.

Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin was there, in a silver fox cape. Judge Harry H. Porter was there, in a black robe. Samuel Curran, superintendent of Mrs. McLaughlin's dog shelter, was there, in high dudgeon.

Evanston's famous dog case was on the docket. Did or did not Mr. Curran cause to have snatched, abducted, and kidnaped one Major, a Sunnybank collie belonging to Mrs. Agnes M. Larsen of 838 Judson avenue?

The expectant crowd that packed the courtroom will have to wait a week for the answer, because Judge Porter continued the hearing to May 19. But if the proceedings were as drab as dog biscuit, there was plenty of excitement outside.

Assistant State's Attorney William C. Rotchford and Mrs. Larsen's lawyer, Sheldon Brown, have charged that Major was picked up by a truck driver for the animal refuge, the Orphans of the Storm. After court they said they had found the family that bought the dog for $5 from the Orphans of the Storm.

And, said Rotchford, another complaint charging larceny in connection with the seizure of a dog will be filed against Curran on Monday. This dog is Ronnie, an English setter belonging to Mrs. Florence C. McCarthy of 205 Kedzie street, Evanston. The dog was returned by a Highland Park family which Mrs. McCarthy said she understood had paid the refuge $15 for the animal.

Pleads Not Guilty.

Curran pleaded not guilty to the Larsen charge yesterday.

Outside court Mrs. McLaughlin termed the charge against Curran ridiculous. She dropped into the mayor's office on the way out of the city hall. She had been quoted recently as saying the mayor of Evanston was a dog hater.

"O," she said in some surprise. "I didn't mean you. I meant a former mayor."

Mayor Henry D. Penfield, who's been in office two years now, held out a pack of Mexican cigarets as a friendship offering. But Mrs. McLaughlin lighted one of her own.

GIANT BISCUIT CUTTER TO BORE SUBWAY IN LOOP

Cylindrical steel shields, shaped like giant biscuit cutters, will be used for tunnel constructions on subway sections south of the river, Philip J. Harrington, commissioner of subways and traction, announced yesterday. The method will be substituted for the combination of steel plates, steel ribs, and compressed air which has been specified for tunnel support on previous bids accepted by the city.

The steel cylinders will give greater protection against cave-ins over the tunnels under State and Dearborn streets, Harrington said. He pointed out that construction under State street probably will be in full swing next December when Christmas crowds throng the city and that maximum precautions will be required.

Harrington explained that the steel cylinders, 25 feet in diameter and 15 feet in length, will be used to cut tunnels through the earth. They are to be forced ahead three or four feet at a time by giant hydraulic jacks.

Kelly Leaves for Mayors' Meeting; Rossi Visits City

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco arrived in Chicago yesterday, accompanied by the California Greys, an honor guard of sixty uniformed men. He was on his way to the United States Conference of Mayors in New York City. Rossi visited Mayor Kelly in the city hall before going east. Mayor Kelly left yesterday afternoon to attend the mayors' conference. He was accompanied by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, president of the United States Association of Municipal Officers, which also will meet in New York.

Judge Harry H. Porter of the Evanston Municipal court yesterday continued for a week the trial of Samuel Curran, superintendent of the Orphans of the Storm dog shelter, on a charge of causing a dog to be picked up in Evanston. Left to right: Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, sponsor of the refuge; Miss Mildred Fitzhugh, its secretary; Curran, and Mrs. Agnes M. Larsen, the complainant.

DETECTIVE SHOT TWICE BY NEGRO BANDIT SUSPECT

Detective Thomas Brown of the Wabash avenue station was shot twice early today by a Negro gunman whom he sought to question at 44th street and Calumet avenue. The gunman escaped.

Brown, who is 31 years old and lives at 4711 Kenwood avenue, was touring the district with his partner, John Reid, in a squad car when he saw the gunman. The latter answered the description of a bandit for whom they were searching.

The two detectives alighted and identified themselves to the suspect as policemen. He immediately drew a revolver and fired four shots at Brown and Reid. One bullet struck Brown in the left thigh and another grazed his abdomen. Brown fired six shots and Reid three as the Negro fled. He stumbled as though wounded, but got away in the darkness. Reid took Brown to the Michael Reese hospital.

Faces Life Term for Killing of Woman Who Aided Him

Mineola, N. Y., May 12.—(AP)—Vernon Oldaker, 43 years old, race track habitué, was convicted of murder in the second degree tonight by a Nassau county jury for beating to death Anna Louise McKee, elderly spinster, with a hammer two months ago when she refused to lend him $5. Oldaker faces a prison term of 20 years to life, to be imposed May 18. Miss McKee often had befriended Oldaker. Psychiatrists said Oldaker was mentally unstable.

Get 12 Years for Burglary, Texan Kills His Attorney

Dallas, Tex., May 12.—(AP)—Guy Nabors, an ex-convict, appeared at the sheriff's office tonight, handed over a pistol, and said to Deputy Bill Decker: "I just killed Eddie Roark."

Roark, an attorney, recently defended Nabors in a burglary trial. The man was convicted and sentenced to twelve years in prison. He was at liberty pending an appeal. Roark's body was found in a house to which Nabors directed officers.

Former Convict Gets Life Term for Murder of Wife

Graham O'Hara, an ex-convict, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy for the murder of his wife, Nellie, in their home at 2150 South 50th court, Cicero, last Feb. 23. O'Hara pleaded guilty. His step-daughter, Betty June, 14 years old, told of finding her mother fatally injured after a quarrel with O'Hara last Feb. 23.

JANITOR SERIOUSLY BURNED.

Isaac Bechtell, 78 years old, a janitor living at 6634 Lowe avenue, was burned about the head, neck, and arms last night when a spark from an electric pump which he was operating in the basement at 730 West 65th street ignited a pocket of sewer gas.

JUGO-SLAVIAN REGENT AND HIS PRINCESS PAY A VISIT TO POPE PIUS

VATICAN CITY, May 12.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII. today received Regent Prince Paul and Princess Olga of Jugo-Slavia in his Vatican apartment. They were together for about 20 minutes before members of the prince's suite were admitted.

The pope wore a white cassock. Prince Paul was dressed in the uniform of a cavalry general in the Jugo-Slav royal guards. Princess Olga wore a formal black gown and veil.

Earlier Msgr. Giovanni Montini of the papal secretariat of state presented the prince with the insignia of the Order of the Golden Spur.

BOY OF 14 JOTS DOWN NUMBER OF BANDITS' CAR

Joseph O'Rourke, 14 years old, watched with interest yesterday as three men loaded suits, hats, and coats from the tailor shop at 3111 North Cicero avenue into an automobile. As the men drove away he jotted down the license number and then went into the shop. There he found the owner, Samuel Zitminsky, and Eugene Jaeger, 4252 Henderson avenue, on the floor, their hands and feet bound with wire. Police traced the license number and found it was stolen. Zitminsky said the bandits took $15 and clothing valued at $2,000. Young O'Rourke lives at 3050½ North Laramie avenue.

FOUND DEAD IN LOT.

Carl Krasa, 55 years old, 215 West 105th street, was found dead last night, presumably a victim of a heart attack, in a lot at 10718 South Michigan avenue.

THREE INQUIRIES SEEK CAUSE OF GRANARY BLAST

Ninth Victim Dies; Eight Believed in Ruins.

Three investigations to determine the cause of the blast that started a $4,000,000 grain elevator fire Thursday were under way yesterday. While all the experts have agreed that the explosive material was floating dust, there are only guesses as to why it ignited.

One of the inquiries is being conducted by Dr. David J. Price, engineer of the federal department of agriculture. The second is being handled by Assistant Corporation Counsel Earl R. Downes, and the third by the coroner's office.

Ninth Victim Dies.

David Marvin, 28 years old, 10132 Ewing avenue, was the ninth victim of the fire. He died last evening in the South Chicago hospital. Marvin was an employé of Rosenbaum Brothers, operators of three of the destroyed elevators. Seven of the 22 others injured were still in hospitals.

None of the investigators was able to make a close examination of the five elevators that were destroyed. The buildings, at 102d street and the Calumet river, were a mass of burning débris and grain last evening. Several fire companies were still pouring streams of water on them.

It was impossible to dig for the bodies of the eight men who were in the Calumet A elevator of Rosenbaum Brothers and supposedly were killed by the explosion. It was not certain that the bodies could be recovered today. Apparently they are deep in the débris, which must be removed with steam shovels.

James M. Shaffer, superintendent of terminals for the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, which owned the Calumet elevators and leased them to Rosenbaum Brothers, said that his original estimate of a $500,000 loss to the railroad was too small. He added that it was uncertain whether the grain storage facilities would be rebuilt.

Favors Plan for Firemen.

Mayor Kelly expressed approval of an idea, first broached yesterday in THE TRIBUNE, that the fire department should have an airplane with two-way radio connections, from which the senior officer at a large fire could direct operations.

Aviators who flew over the elevator fire while it was at its height said they believed some of the efforts of the firemen on the ground were wasted. They noted particularly that streams of water were in some instances directed where they would do little good.

"I am in favor of anything that will increase the efficiency of the department," said the mayor. "But the feasibility of any change in equipment must be determined by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan."

The commissioner was slightly injured in the fight against the fire and was in bed yesterday. He was not available for comment. It is known, however, that he is in favor of two-way ground radio equipment.

STUDY LAWS ON STOCK DEALS OF STATE OFFICIALS

Courtney's Men Learn Penalties Are Provided.

State's Attorney Courtney's investigation of financial transactions involving public officials and several corporations, including an insurance company and a utility company, was turned yesterday to a study of the laws governing Illinois regulatory bodies.

Assistant prosecutors were reported busy comparing their information in regard to the financial deals with statutes governing the conduct of members of such bodies. In some respects the statutes are strict. They require probity and provide punishment for members found guilty of violations of their provisions.

Won't Talk of Slattery.

Courtney's staff continued its policy of refusing to divulge the individuals and firms under investigation. The prosecutors would not talk about Senator James M. Slattery, who declared on the floor of the senate Thursday that newspaper reports of the investigation indicated "an obvious attempt to besmirch my name by baseless innuendo and unfounded charges."

Previously Senator Slattery had told of making a gift of $25,000 in currency to three of his daughters. One daughter, Mrs. Norbert J. Johnson, purchased Commonwealth Edison stock with the money and later sold it. The senator, who was at the time chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, said that she cashed the check received from the broker after the sale, and put the currency back into his safety deposit box, from which he had taken it when the stock was bought. He has maintained there was nothing wrong with the transaction.

The matters under study by the state's attorney's men include the legislation creating the commerce commission, which is an important factor in the fixing of utility rates and the issuance of utility securities. Specifically, the law forbids any member or employé of the commission holding any other office or position of profit while connected with the regulatory body.

Act Carries Own Provisions.

The utilities act carries its own provisions for punishment of those who fail to obey commission orders or violate any of the sections of the act. It provides for a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year.

The malfeasance and misfeasance statute of criminal code was also under study by the prosecutors in their inquiry. It provides that every person holding "any public office, whether state, county, or municipal, who shall be guilty of any palpable omission of duty," may be fined not exceeding $10,000 and removed from office.

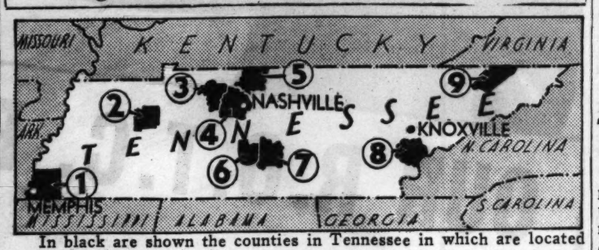
Charge Politicians Benefit from WPA



In black are shown the counties in Tennessee in which are located WPA projects which benefited political figures, according to charges made before a house of representatives committee in Washington, D. C. 1—Shelby county, where Whiteville lake is situated; 2—Carroll county, Clear Creek lake; 3—Cheatham county, Marrowbone lake; 4—Davidson county, three mile steeplechase; 5—Sumner county, Twin lakes; 6—Bedford county, a lake as yet unnamed; 7—Coffee county, Lake Tullahoma; 8—Blount county, Laurel lake, and 9—Hawkins county, a lake being built at Pressmen's home.

CHICAGO FLYING SCHOOL TO TRAIN AIR CORPS PILOTS

First Class Will Begin Work July 1.

Preparations were being made yesterday at Curtiss airport, Glenview, for the opening on July 1 of one of the civilian flying schools at which army air corps fledglings will receive their first three months of training. This and eight similar schools are a part of the army's general rearmament and air corps expansion program.

The first class will consist of 25 to 30 cadets. Six weeks after this class has begun its work a second class of 30 cadets will arrive, and new groups will come every six weeks thereafter for at least a year.

As each group completes its flight training and ground school work here it will be sent to Randolph field at San Antonio, Tex., for a second three month course in basic flying, training of a considerably more advanced type. The final three months will be completed at Kelly field, also near San Antonio, where advanced military flying is taught.

Seek to Increase Graduates.

The purpose of the civilian schools is to increase the number of graduates of the air corps training center at San Antonio. Hitherto half of Randolph field has been devoted to preliminary flight training. The maximum number of graduates that can be put through the school in a year under the old arrangement was 550. By training cadets through the primary stage at the civilian schools, 1,000 can be graduated.

The Glenview school will be operated by the Chicago Aviation corporation, headed by Daniel Peterkin Jr. of the Morton Salt company; Dean Owsley, north shore flying enthusiast, and Harold Darr, veteran airport operator and airplane dealer. Their school is the only one north of the Mason-Dixon line that is to train air corps pilot candidates.

"While our facilities are of the best," Darr explained last evening, "our weather is considered poor. It almost licked us when we went to Washington to seek a contract."

Plan 65 Hours of Flying.

Darr said the school will give the candidates sixty-five hours of flying, of which forty will be solo and about twenty-five dual instruction. In addition, they will have 225 hours of ground school. Their general course will be supervised by a regular army staff.

Barracks for the cadets already are under construction just south of the main hangar on Curtiss field. And classrooms are being fitted out in the hangars where Vincent [Casey] Jones will have charge of the ground school work.

The nine civilian flight instructors will include Dwight Morrow, Slim Savage, Edward Hedler, and Bailey Wright, all veteran flying instructors.

SCHOOL TYPEWRITERS STOLEN.

Kirkland, Ill., May 12.—[Special.]—Four new typewriters were stolen from the Kirkland High school last night by robbers who smashed the plate glass in a door.

Informant Fired

Washington, D. C., May 12.—(AP)—Members of the house committee investigating the WPA expressed fear today that the dismissal of a Tennessee state employé who gave information to committee investigators would hamper the inquiry.

Eugene R. Kuhne, fish technician of the Tennessee conservation department, who was quoted by investigators as saying WPA funds had been used to improve property owned by politically prominent persons, was discharged yesterday. The committee immediately asked him to appear for questioning.

Kuhne in a letter to committee investigators charged that Gov. Prentice Cooper, George L. Berry, former United States senator, and John Harton, state treasurer, had profited by WPA projects. Among these were the building of dams, a steeplechase, and the creation of lakes.

"We've already experienced difficulty in getting information," said Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.], acting chairman, "because so many people who have the facts are afraid to talk for fear of losing their jobs. This occurrence in Tennessee undoubtedly will increase our difficulties."

VETERAN POSTAL INSPECTOR GIVEN POST AS CLERK

John R. McWhorter, who for the last twenty years has been serving the Chicago postoffice as an inspector, has been assigned as a clerk in the railway mail terminal here, it was learned yesterday. Robert E. Lewis, acting inspector in charge of the Chicago office, declined to discuss the transfer. McWhorter also declined to discuss his removal.

McWhorter is 53 years old and lives in Crystal Lake. He has worked on many of the major postal prosecutions in the Chicago area, including those leading to the arrest and conviction of Charles "Limpy" Cleaver and the indictment of the late John "Boss" McLaughlin.

Inspector Lewis also disclosed that Inspector George McGrath, assigned here for the last six years, was "no longer in the service here." In the absence of Inspector in Charge A. A. Imus, Lewis said he could not comment officially about the case. McWhorter has been replaced by Inspector Cecil R. Gant and McGrath by Inspector L. C. Kirkpatrick.

FORMER CONVICT GETS CHAIR FOR POLICE KILLING

Steve Cygan, 35 years old, convicted slayer of Policeman John Chiska, was sentenced yesterday to die in the electric chair June 16. The sentence was pronounced by Judge Walter T. Stanton in Criminal court in accordance with the verdict fixed by a jury last Jan. 18.

On April 5, 1928, Cygan killed Chiska when Chiska questioned him and two companions about the robbery of a jewelry store at 2218 North Lorel avenue. The killers fled. A year later Cygan, under another name, was sentenced to the Michigan state penitentiary at Jackson for robbery.

His identity was disclosed by finger prints. He was returned to Chicago after his release from prison a year ago. Chiska's daughter, Lauretta, of Hinsdale, was in court. She said yesterday would have marked the 59th birthday of her father.

RELIEF IS IN SIGHT FOR A HUSBAND WHO PAID $35,000

Seeks Cancellation of $10,000 Maintenance.

A husband who paid his wife approximately $35,000 in eleven years under a separate maintenance decree found prospect of relief yesterday in the court of Judge Oscar F. Nelson. Judge Nelson indicated that he would favor canceling an arrearage of $10,250 and also would approve a reduction of the basic rate.

Albert Hewitt.

The husband is Albert Hewitt, 74 years old, 2629 Lincoln avenue. He was in court with his wife, Mrs. Jennie Hewitt, 6717 North Artesian avenue. Her attorney, Louis W. Reinecker, asked that Hewitt be held in contempt of court for failing to keep up payments. He also sought a judgment against Hewitt for the $10,250.

Payments Cut in 1924.

Under a decree entered Nov. 21, 1924, Hewitt was to pay his wife $75 a week. This was reduced to $200 a month in 1934. The next year Hewitt lost his position as secretary-treasurer of the Acacia Park cemetery, and stopped making payments.

Attorney Ewart Harris, representing Hewitt, contended that Mrs. Hewitt's claims could not stand in court because she had been delinquent in pressing them, having waited more than four years since payments lapsed.

"In my opinion," said Judge Nelson, "this woman has practically waived her right to the money by her delay. On the other hand, the man should have asked for relief when his income stopped."

Supported by Property.

Hewitt has been living on the income from a piece of property he owns and from four others held in join tenancy with his wife.

"If a judgment is entered," commented Judge Nelson, "foreclosure proceedings would be started against this man's real estate and that would deprive him of all income and nullify any effort he might make to comply with the court order compelling him to support his wife. It would be like taking away a carpenter's tools, then ordering him to build a house."

The court permitted Harris to file a petition asking that the arrearage be wiped out and that maintenance payments be modified. Then he continued the case to May 26 for another hearing and possible decision.

CONTRACT SIGNED FOR TVA TO BUY TENN. ELECTRIC

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 12.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley authority and public power interests in east and middle Tennessee today formally signed a contract with the Commonwealth and Southern corporation for purchase of practically all properties of the Tennessee Electric Power company. The latter is a subsidary of Commonwealth and Southern.

The $78,600,000 transfer is contingent upon "entactment by congress of supplementary legislation making available financing for the acquisition of property by the authority.

Transfer of the properties is scheduled to take place in New York on payment of the entire purchase price June 20 "unless another date not earlier than June 1 or later than June 30" is agreed upon. TVA will pay about $44,500,000 of the total price and the agencies approximately $34,100,000.

RAPIST GETS LIFE TERM; NOW FACES A MURDER TRIAL

Samuel Hryciuk, 19 years old, was sentenced yesterday by Judge George Fred Iush to life imprisonment for rape. He was convicted by a jury on May 3 on a charge of attacking a widowed mother in Humboldt park. Hryciuk is accused of numerous attacks on women and of committing other sex crimes. He is scheduled to go on trial June 14 before Judge James F. Fardy for the slaying of Mrs. Bertha DeMeyer, 67 years old. She was strangled on Nov. 11, 1937, in her home at 1657 North Troy street. Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Freedman said the state will ask the death penalty.

GETS ONE TO TEN YEARS FOR 'SALE' OF A POLICE JOB

Judge William J. Lindsay in Criminal court yesterday sentenced Joseph Kostner, a former Democratic precinct captain in the 23d ward, to one to ten years in the penitentiary. Kostner was convicted May 5 of a confidence game charge in connection with the sale of police jobs.

John Paveska, 1342 South Komensky avenue, testified he paid Kostner $1,000 to get him a police job that failed to materialize. Kostner is a former assistant custodian in the sheriff's office and had served as an assistant Municipal court clerk. He lives at 1342 South Pulaski road.

Kostner is the first person sentenced to the penitentiary as the result of the state's attorney's investigation into charges of the sale of police jobs in connection with the recent police civil service list.

7 POLICEMEN GET SUSPENSIONS FOR TAVERN LAXITY

Apparently irked at the laxity of police in the loop district in enforcing the 1 a. m. closing hour for taverns, Commissioner Allman has suspended two sergeants and five policemen of the Central station, it was learned yesterday. The Central station embraces the loop district.

Sergt. James G. Colman and Policemen William Smith and Andrew Nolan were ordered suspended for one day in an order issued Thursday by Allman. Late yesterday Allman ordered Sergt. Lawrence Gorey and Policemen Martin Culliton, John Smith, and James Reidy suspended.

Allman said the suspensions were ordered for the good of the service. He would not comment on reports that he was annoyed because taverns were permitted to remain open after the closing hours of 1 a. m. on weekdays and 2 a. m. on Sundays.

Police from the Central station early yesterday arrested Louis Nathan, manager of the 606 Club, 606 South Wabash avenue, and Andrew Fensk, bartender at 169 North Franklin street, for operating after closing hours.

RUSH STREET'S GAY DRINKING SPOTS ARE DARK

The usually gay Rush street night club belt was glum early today as tavern keepers and other liquor dispensers generally obeyed the 1 a. m. closing edict issued last week by Commissioner Allman.

Straight taverns were closed tight, except in cases of a few cautious cheaters. Only customers well known were admitted. The drinking spots that shut down at 1 a. m. piled chairs on bars and opened screens so police could see they were obeying the law.

Many of the night clubs made a pretense at obeying the law by closing the bars, but quietly serving drinks at tables. On the whole, however, Rush street was dead. Even the outside lights were out or dimmed.

James Joyce's New Book Stirs Literary Storm

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Finnegans Wake," by James Joyce. [Viking, $5.] Published Monday.

"Finnegans Wake" has taken James Joyce seventeen years to write.

James Joyce.

His "Ulysses," banned for many years from entry into the United States until it was adjudged a great work of art by a judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, has unquestionably had more influence on the modern novel and modern short story than any single English book of our age. From it stems the whole "stream of consciousness" school of writing.

The influence of James Joyce is not to be confused with the influence of Marcel Proust, the great French novelist. Briefly, Joyce slashed through the conscious mind of his characters into their subconscious. Marcel Proust made infinitely real every minute stimulus to the conscious mind.

And here we may as well explain the fundamental difference between James Joyce's new work and the writing of Gertrude Stein, which will be hastily pigeonholed together by some. Gertrude Stein rebuilds the English sentence to her own ends. James Joyce rebuilds the English word to his.

James Joyce took seven years to write "Ulysses." It is inconceivable he would spend seventeen years writing mere gibberish—which "Finnegans Wake" appears to be on first sight, for it is written in a language which is certainly not recognizable English, but a sort of international conglomerate, privately created.

A week's intensive work on "Finnegans Wake" has left your literary editor utterly baffled, but with a conviction that, given time to read it as one would a foreign language, translating each word and then putting the words together and translating that language's idiom, AND if one also had Mr. Joyce's erudition, the reader would recognize it as a great work of art. With a few faint glimmerings and help from Joyce scholars, the reader CAN believe, as one of the scholars says, that "words of seventeen tongues have been identified" because he hears echoes of all the foreign languages which he knows. He also can believe that the whole book is a dream, as the learned say, and the inchoate words are the half-realities of a half awake mind's weird remodeling of its contents.

"Finnegans Wake" looks like chaos, as did "Ulysses" when it appeared. But maybe it is cosmos, and this week does mark, as some declare, the publication of the most important book of our day.

Jane Carlyle's Biography

"Jane Welsh Carlyle," by Townsend Scudder. [Macmillan, $3.50.] Published Tuesday.

Thomas Carlyle, in his day, also was called incomprehensible—not so much for the way he wrote, although that was looked upon with suspicion, but for what he wrote about. But there was nothing incomprehensible about the gifts of his wife, Jane Welsh Carlyle. They were nature's most delightful—a fine emulsion of feminine charm and intelligence.

Jane Carlyle's diaries and her letters are to this day a joy to read. "One had to sow letters in order to reap them," her excellent biographer observes, and Jane found an increasing pleasure in their composition. "She wrote as she talked," says the author, "putting into each description so much of her own liveliness and vivacity that the whole account sparkled like sunlight shining on what might otherwise appear a dull enough ditch of water."

Thanks to his sourve material, Mr. Scudder has been able to put words into the mouth of his heroine which are none of his imagining, but fact, and thus to enliven an already lively record. Through these pages pass the great of all of Europe and famous Americans [Emerson was one of their first visitors] as they did through the rich lives of the Carlyles. Mr. Scudder has written a delightful biography of a delightful woman.

Letters of Emerson

"The Letters of Ralph Waldo Emerson," edited by Ralph L. Rusk. [Columbia University Press, 6 vols., $30].

Many of the almost 5,000 letters printed or listed in these volumes were written to Thomas Carlyle. Indeed, Matthew Arnold hazarded the opinion that even Thomas Carlyle might live in the long run, not by his shelf full of essays and histories, but "by such an invaluable record as that correspondence between him and Emerson."

Like Jane Welsh Carlyle, Emerson was a joyful, rather than a meticulous, letter writer. "In general, what Emerson thought of the drudgery of correcting a book was doubtless at least apropos to the revision of letters," says Mr. Rusk. "It was disgraceful when you thought you had done your writing to waste your time in parsing and spelling and punctuating, repairing rotten metaphors, bringing tropes safe into port, and other such tinkering arts. . . . One was not writing them [letters], at least, for a future generation."

Here is gathered the whole miraculous flow from Emerson's always flowing pen, and reproduced literally, without revision or editing. It is, authorities declare, "the first extensive edition of the letters of any author prepared with the aid of photostatic or photographic reproductions of practically all of the manuscripts used in the text."

A Rare Reality in This

"Purslane," by Bernice Kelly Harris. [University of North Carolina Press, $2.50.] Published last Saturday.

Regional in the same sense that "The Yearling" was regional is this first novel, and also universal. "Purslane" leaves the reader with the same sense of utter reality that was felt in Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' fine novel.

"Purslane" tells of the day by day life of a large clan of simple farm folk in the Carolinas—"the common purslane, a pot herb." It is rich with detail of action and speech. It records nuances of local phrasings, but it does not give the reader the impression that he is reading dialect. Indeed, after the few strange words have worn their little ruts in his brain, the reader does not feel he is reading about or listening to Carolinians any more than to Iowans or Texans or New Englanders or any others who live by the earth.

The characters eat regional food, but they butcher their hogs as any Kansas farmer does. Their preacher's parishioners show their respect and affection for him with the same kind of Christmas donations that any other farm community offers its spiritual leader. The neighborhood robs its own meager storage chests to feed and clothe the new starving tenant family as readily as any other sympathetic community. And over all love is as beautiful and as tragic there.

The south of "Purslane" is a south that readers rarely meet in novels.

German Purge of Culture and Exiles It Made

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

"Escape to Life," by Erika and Klaus Mann. [Houghton-Mifflin, $3.50.]

Culture, driven into exile, has always met the challenge of little minds by rising to newer heights. This story of the purge of German culture, told in the form of brief biographical sketches, reveals great opportunities for another renaissance. For here are Mann and Toscanini and Feuchtwanger and Bergner; here are Einstein and Busch and Schnabel and Reiniger . . . great minds from every field that breeds and is itself propagated by genius. Here they are, refugees from a pagan ideology, voluntary exiles because they could not be true to their ideals and at the same time accept life at home.

"Escape to Life," written by the eldest son and daughter of Thomas Mann, is important for its implications and for its recording of a vital period in the world's cultural, as well as political, history. The account of the Manns' departure from Germany, the story of Remarque's saucy but subtle reply to an invitation to return to Berlin, the portraits of these refugees, the spirited summing up of a challenge to the world to make use of this talent, all make this book worth while.

A View of America

"I Think Aloud in America," by Odette Keun. [Longmans-Green, $3.]

Turning her back on a continent made untenable for her by its plague of isms, Odette Keun looks to the land that may be the cradle of a new world society—America. What she finds here is sometimes surprising to those of us who live in its midst, sometimes amusing, sometimes challenging.

The author uncovers much to criticize and much to praise. Both her praise and her criticism, however, have value only in proportion to the validity of their background. Too often this background is that of the usual foreign visitor who does not understand certain traits and institutions and therefore misconstrues them and arrives at a misleading conclusion.

When Miss Keun considers individuals and their wants, however, she is on firm ground, and on that ground she builds her castle for the future—a sort of superagrarian America, in which there will be no one too rich, no one too poor, and in which individualism will at last come into its own. It is a readable book and a well flavored cure for mental drowsiness.

Picture of Nazi Pogrom

"The New Inquisition," by Konrad Heiden. [Modern Age, 50 cents.]

A rather typical product of the new age of pamphleteering, this little book paints for us once more the morbid and unpleasant picture of the Nazi pogrom. It is definitly polemic, yet a certain restraint gives it a stature it might otherwise lack. From the mystic midnight blood oath of Adolf Hitler's special guards to the author's conclusion that this robot of ruthlessness will eventually be Hitler's own assassin, the book is written in a minor key. Its documentation is not scholarly and its contribution not new, but it is interesting as another reaction to the world's most important human struggle of today.

Comprehensive Story of Ku Klux Klan Supplies Valuable Link in U. S. History

"Invisible Empire," by Stanley F. Horn. [Houghton Mifflin, $3.50.]

Few men are now living who held membership in the old Ku Klux Klan [1867-'71]. For that matter, few men still live who could tell of seeing those hooded legions filing silently into southern towns where carpetbaggers, scalawags, and unruly freedmen held sway in the chaotic times of the so-called reconstruction period. Historians had begun to despair that a comprehensive account of the Invisible Empire and its doings ever would be written.

Stanley F. Horn.

The great majority of Klansmen carried their secret to the grave. But during the last twenty-five years Stanley Horn has been piecing together the story from those who would talk. It begins with the formation of a fun making club called the Kuklos clan, in Pulaski, Tenn., in 1867. The narrative continues through four years of thrilling adventure, terror, and bloodshed. It ends with the disbanding of the Klans, which came about voluntarily when local government was restored to the south. From the standpoint of American history, this is one of the most valuable books of the year. C. L.

Ruth St. Denis' Life

"Ruth St. Denis, an Unfinished Life," by Ruth St. Denis. [Harper, $3.75.]

The name of Ruth St. Denis long has been synonymous with the dance. In this, her autobiography, she gives not only a rich history of the dance in America—as developed by her and Ted Shawn, her estranged husband—but a rich, vibrant document in what might be termed human questing.

Perhaps it is Miss St. Denis' mysticism and addiction to eastern philosophy or perhaps it is the creative struggling of the artist that gives her autobiography its feeling of restless, dissatisfied groping. She admits this, writing that she is "an artistic circuit rider" and laying the blame on some innate, unknown flaw. She wrote this book, she says, "to find out where the trouble lurks."

She has tried hard. She seems to omit no detail of private or public life. She is reticent on only one point, the cause of her schism with Ted Shawn and the downfall of Denishawn house, where many of the foremost dancers of today learned of dancing as an art and a creed.

All in all, it seems to be the humble autobiography of a proud woman and an uncompromising artist. M. W.

Guides to Eastern U. S.

"Discovering Long Island," by William O. Stevens. [Dodd Mead, $3.]

"Long Island," by Russell Doubleday. [Doubleday-Doran, $1.25.]

"Life Along the Connecticut River," by Marion Hooper. [Stephen Daye Press, $3.75.]

"Connecticut River," by Marguerite Allis. [Putnam. $3.]

For the fourth time William Oliver Stevens has successfully captured the charm of a locality with typewriter and sketch pad and put it in book form. His volumes on Nantucket, Annapolis, and Williamsburg are well known. His newest subject is Long Island, famous for its homes—suburban villas and magnificent estates—its beaches, and its historic background. As in his other books the author's pen and ink sketches add much to the charm of this entertaining volume. He has chapters on the island's state parks and its products, much about sports, and comments on the world's fair.

Russell Doubleday's "Long Island" is called "an unconventional excursion with a camera around New York's neighboring isle." It's a little volume of photographic reproductions of the island's most interesting attractions, both historical and modern. It should be a convenient and valuable aid to a motor trip.

"Life Along the Connecticut River" is a handsome volume of 200 photographs by Lewis Brown, Ralph Day, Cortlandt Luce, Newell Green, and R. D. and M. E. Snively. The text is by Marion Hooper. It has an introduction by Charles Edward Crane. It takes the reader on a photographic voyage of 400 miles down one of America's famous rivers, through a valley with a million and a quarter inhabitants.

Another armchair voyage down New England's most important inland waterway can be taken in Marguerite Allis' "Connecticut River," This is a combination history and guidebook to one of America's loveliest valleys. It is a story of this region from the time of the first white settlers down to modern days. It is told in transportation eras—canoe, sailboat, steamboat, railroad, and automobile days. Miss Allis has illustrated her entertaining book with her own photographs. A. C.

A Drama of Emotions

"A Hawk Among Sparrows," by Desmond Hawkins. [Knopf, $2.50.]

This is a tale of a mental and emotional drama developed within the narrow limits of a single house on the outskirts of an English village on the moors. The people concerned are Edith Sparge, her husband, the young maid of all work, Ellen, who is a relative, and a roomer named Kipter.

Kipter is the hawk among sparrows. He has come there to study the bird life of the great surrounding heath, but is finally intrigued and decoyed by Mrs. Sparge, a former actress and a woman of small mentality and tremendous avarice. There is silent rivalry between her and little Ellen for his affections. The older woman, of course, has all the feminine weapons, and complete ruthlessness besides.

The action culminates in a terrific scene between Kipter and Edith Sparge. The final pages of the story show that with the hawk gone the female sparrow is once again in command of the destinies of her family. E. W.

OUR R.O.T.C. BUILDS character!

Do R. O. T. C. cadets have to join the U. S. army? What are the chief aims and benefits of R. O. T. C. training? How many boys in Chicago are receiving such training?

In the Color Graphic section of tomorrow's Chicago Sunday Tribune, John A. Menaugh will bring you an illustrated story of Chicago's R. O. T. C. You will learn which high school has the largest unit—which one is 100% military—who runs the R. O. T. C.—and what it is doing to develop leadership and character among its membership.

The NEW Book By

"AN AMERICAN DOCTOR'S ODYSSEY"

Throughout his exciting and adventurous career Dr. Heiser has kept a careful check of practices designed to better the health of the average man — which generally is below par. Today in his middle sixties Dr. Heiser, hale, hearty, and limber as a youth, engages in vigorous sports and leads a life of the most strenuous activity. Thousands have asked him for his own personal "recipe" for health, and now in You're the Doctor he gives it to you. The amazing thing is, his program is utterly simple and practical! Written in the same inimitable style as An American Doctor's Odyssey, rich in anecdote, fascinating observation, and shrewd wisdom, You're the Doctor, best of all, is fun to read. Ask for —

WAITING HITLER'S DECISION.

Chamberlain and Daladier do not make Herr Hitler's position an easy one. The British prime minister in a public speech said it would be a deadly mistake to assume that Great Britain and France were not in earnest in their promises to Poland. "It would be a frightful thing if Europe were to be plunged into war on account of a misunderstanding."

The French premier in a declaration to the chamber of deputies said that France would make no concessions in fear of consequences and unqualifiedly reaffirmed the pledges to defend Poland, Rumania, and Greece.

It is all too apparent now that the European atmosphere is charged with ultimatums. Hitler has said that Danzig must be placed in the German state and that there must be a German path across the corridor. Poland has said that it will not accept an agreement based on these demands and that "we do not know the conception of peace at any price." The British and French have said to Hitler publicly that Poland is to be the sole judge of a question threatening its independence and that upon Poland's decision they will act at once.

Herr Hitler in his succession of triumphs has never before encountered precisely this situation. It is probably nearer the fact to say that he has never run into anything at all like it. If the governments opposed to him are to be taken at their word they have come to the moment of decision and action. They will not refuse to fight now in the hope that by yielding they will avoid a war later.

Some one must wriggle out of this situation. Some one must withdraw. Poland's friends are not, publicly at least, urging its government to conciliate Hitler. They are not urging Germany to negotiate. They are not going back to Munich. Hitler must be thinking fast and it is not being made easy for him. He can have war or he can have peace. His reputation for invincibility requires Danzig.

ASYLUM FOR THE OPPRESSED.

The politicians who propose to admit 20,000 children of oppressed German families who are victims of Nazi persecution must have known that they were presenting a very difficult problem to the judgment and sympathy of the country, and that they were doing it with an immunity afforded by the apparent humanity of their proposal. They had nothing to lose, they risked nothing, and if thoughtful opposition raised points against them that opposition could be made to appear unkind and inconsiderate of human needs.

Sympathy and good judgment sometimes must come to different conclusions and, difficult as it may be, sentiment cannot wisely be allowed always to prevail. It is proposed that the immigration laws be modified to permit 20,000 child victims of racial persecution and intolerance to enter this country under security agreements and pledges which will insure that they are cared for and trained for useful lives.

Presumably, they are not all orphan or dependent children but children who will be given up by parents, relatives, or guardians that they may escape to a safer, better land and a life of hope rather than one of despair. It will be conceded that the humanitarian impulse which would thus extend asylum to the children would naturally later go out to the families from whom the children had been taken. The reunion of families, both to give the children their natural care and to rescue the adult victims of the same tyranny, would have every claim upon humanitarian feeling that is presented by the situation of the children themselves.

In extending the hospitality of the country even to include families, it may be said that the numbers would be so small that their absorption into the life of so great a nation would be easy and unnoticed. However, the country will have modified its laws to offer refuge to a comparatively small number of the many victims of persecution, not only in Germany but elsewhere throughout the world. The proponents of the pending proposal for the benefit of these selected children will contend that this is to be a strictly limited project, but such humanity must violate its own principles when it excludes the equally deserving many from the benefits granted the fortunate few.

In older days America was truly the asylum for the oppressed. They could come from almost any land, they were welcome, and they did their part in making this nation great. The time came when it was regarded as unwise to permit unrestricted immigration. America had to think of itself if it were to continue to be a country which assimilated its various elements and produced a homogeneous people, living together with common understanding, without prejudices and without transferring here influences which produce discord in Europe.

Americans would be unwise if they should pretend too much that they have escaped all the consequences of racial and nationalist prejudice. They have not. They do struggle against this. General opinion condemns the evil spirit, the laws forbid discriminations, and we think that American fair mindedness, toleration, and friendliness will prevail and will continue to regard these baser emotions as detestable. Nevertheless, there must be some consideration given the actualities and the United States should be very careful not to allow special sympathies to produce conditions here which will provoke the very thing to be avoided.

If the immigration laws are not modified the limited asylum afforded by America will be open to those fortunate enough to have advantage of it. The country then will not have committed itself to any change of policy. It will not be exposed to the incoming of aliens in greater numbers than the people of the country have thought was wise. The tyrannies of other lands have not changed the reasons for which American laws were enacted. These reasons remain the same and they took into consideration then, as they should now, the welfare of the United States.

These things cannot be said in any manner which will not be offensive to the people who want to change the laws. Their desire is to bring in the oppressed of one land, making a beginning in the most appealing manner by taking the children. That, it will be admitted, does not solve the problem in that land or in any other. But it does begin to take away from this country any defense against the suggestion or demand that its offer of asylum be unlimited. The reception of a few only emphasizes the claims of the many, not only in Germany but wherever man's brutality has crushed innocent people. The rejection of the proposal may seem unkind, but in the end it will be an avoidance of a problem for which America cannot assume responsibility.

THE ART OF BENDING.

The state department in Washington is greatly concerned lest American men and women behave like American men and women in the presence of England's king and queen. A brochure has been prepared by the department telling Americans how to conduct themselves when the great moment comes. We are not, it seems, to say "pleased to meet you, King." We are not to ask questions. We are not to speak first. After making our preliminary bows at a distance of six feet from the royal presence we are to approach to the three foot mark. At this point we are to await a signal from George. If he enjoyed the first effort he will extend his hand, the signal for an encore.

These bows are not just ordinary neck work which can be improvised on the spur of the moment. The neck is to be stiff. The humble American subjects are to bend low from the waist, the hands held at the sides. The same procedure in general is provided for the amusement of the queen. We are warned that on this occasion the American custom of kissing the lady's hand is out. It was nice of the state department to remind us of this. We can only hope that in the excitement of the moment our ingrained habit will not betray us to the annoyance of the queen.

As for the American ladies, they are to curtsy if they wish to do so and know how. The ground rules require the left foot to be planted behind the right. We don't know why and the state department won't tell. Sometimes, greatly daring, we almost permit ourselves the hope that some American lady will curtsy with the wrong leg forward just to see what happens. Maybe the outcome will be nothing worse than a foreign entanglement.

The state department's conversational guide is the only section of the memorandum about which any doubts might be raised. We are not to ask questions, Mr. Hull says. This prohibition is far too sweeping. Obviously we are not to ask our guest when he intends to start paying us the money he owes. Obviously, too, it would be impolite to ask him if he ever saw better bowing in a democracy or nicer foot work by strictly amateur ladies. But we don't think he'd object too much if the chairman of the foreign relations committee asked him how about a real tight offensive and defensive alliance; and if the chairman of the appropriations committee inquired whether a couple of billion and the United States navy would do as a starter when the war begins. Maybe it's the state department's idea to avoid any chance that he might turn down the offers.

THE BROOKINGS TAXATION REPORT.

[Peoria Journal-Transcript.]

There are two opposed views of taxation—one that taxes should be levied only for revenue, and as little of that as can possibly do the job, and the other that taxes can and should be used to eliminate "inequalities and underprivilege."

Dr. James D. Magee, acting for the Brookings institution and making his report to that organization, has finished his report on taxation in this country. It is a long report, detailed and documented, but it concludes—in effect—with the recommendation that we must make the decision at once whether we will continue with the revenue idea of taxation or the curative theory of making levies.

The report also finds—as many business men have insisted—that our present system of taxation strangles enterprise and terrifies economic chance-taking. It proposes abolition of the undistributed profits taxes, and the capital stock and excess profits taxes. It urges either that capital gains and losses be ignored in computing both corporate and individual income taxes, or else that if capital gains are taxed, capital losses also be allowed as deductible over a period of two years. Surtaxes in the upper brackets of income should be reduced, the report concluded and the social security system should be put on a pay as we go basis.

All of this, unquestionably, is in line with what business leaders have contended for the last six years. Consequently, we may expect the report to go into the White House wastebasket. It is in direct opposition to the President's theory of taxation—as revealed in many of his speeches. Furthermore, acceptance of it by him as worth anything would, inevitably, have a bad effect upon his relations with congress. Many congressmen, it must be borne in mind, are more avid New Dealers than the President himself. That is to say, they have been more vocal in their promises to constituents to "soak the rich" than he has. Naturally, if he were to accept the Brookings conclusion as worth even a passing thought he would lose much of the support he needs from these members of both houses.

At present the country is definitly committed to the theory that taxation is a remedial device—designed to punish those who make too much money. Anybody who argues that effective limitation of profits means that capital will coyly seek tax exempt bonds or similar low yield investments is ignored by the taxation for punishment theorists. Since the Magee conclusion is that business and government suffer by virtue of this tendency of 1939 capital to stay out of enterprise because of its fear of taxation, it will be ignored by all New Dealers from the President down to the humblest burocrat in Washington.

The Brookings institution has performed a worthy public service, but it will get nowhere.

DAYS OF FILIAL EMOTION.

The lore of Mother's day: This national custom had two founders—Frank Hering, who broached the subject in a speech in a Kansas City lodge of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, in the fall of 1904; and Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who selected the second Sunday in May as a memorial to her mother, in 1908. She caused the matter to be brought to the attention of congress in 1914. In that year the first national Mother's day proclamation was issued by President Wilson.

On Feb. 18, 1934, Postmaster Farley authorized the issuance of a Mother's day stamp. When the stamps appeared with a design based on Whistler's portrait of his mother, many artists denounced Mr. Farley for having permitted the mutilation of a masterpiece. A vase of flowers had been added to the design; the picture in the background had been omitted; Mrs. Whistler's feet had been cut off; the footstool upon which they rested had been removed; the draperies had disappeared.

On Oct. 15, 1937, President Quezon of the Philippines abolished Mother's day on the theory that fathers had equal rights. He arranged for an equitable adjustment of the filial emotions on Parents' day, to be observed on the first Monday of December.

Father's day—the third Sunday in June—got started in 1922. In this year, also, the custom of Dad's day at football games was originated at the University of Illinois. On June 11, 1938, Gov. Cochran of Nebraska refused to issue a Father's day proclamation, on the ground that the special day business was being overdone and should be discouraged.

The folklore of these occasions includes cynical myths, in general circulation, to the effect that Mother's day was a stroke of commercial propaganda by the florists, and that Father's day was a bit of master minding by the necktie manufacturers.

WISH YOU WERE A MAN?

A grudge against Fate that I used to bitterly nurse has all of a sudden gone exactly into reverse,
I don't wish I were a man—not in times like these!
Not when the world's afflicted with the war disease.
No, sir! Because if you are a man you can be got at and ordered to put on a uniform and go somewhere to be shot at.
And if you refuse because it's ridiculous, you feel,
Why, the chances are you'll be chucked permanently into the bastille,
And people will cry Shame! Is your patriotic quotient nil and zero?
For you are a man and dead or alive you must strive to be a hero,
Subject to command to leave your land to prove you love it
Which is absurd and dangerous and I don't want any part of it.
Yes, it is a paradox,
So I'm glad I'm in the department that's supposed to stay at home and knit socks.

Portrait of a Mother.

Memory always brings back her warm brown eyes first. They were merry eyes, full of the joy of life—full, too, of courage. They could flash gay mockery, or bright indignation at injustice. And I have seen them soft with unshed tears of sympathy. I have never known a woman more warmly human—yet she was sustained by a rigid sense of moral obligation from which there was no swerving. She enjoyed little things so much—small children, parties, family dinners, supper on the porch—even "doing dishes" was fun when she was there. Those fortunate enough to be within the sphere of her influence learned by example the lessons of womanhood—housewifery [there never was a better cook], efficiency, grace of mind and heart, gay acceptance of what comes, and an uncompromising attitude toward right and wrong. Words are too feeble to portray such a woman. Her portrait is better found in the lives of those whom she touched—and there were so many!

PRAYER FOR MOTHER.

To importune with anxious words,
To beg a boon from fate's caprice—
If this were all my prayer for you
Then supplication, vain, should cease.
I wish my prayers to live in deeds,
My hands to smooth ahead your way;
My strength to help to ease your load,
My songs beguile your every day;
And this to me were manly prayer,
More true than weak entreaty's speech
Since striving so I know your eyes
Will show a heaven within my reach.

Master Builder of Masonic Temple.

Questions have been coming in about the architect of the Masonic Temple [Capitol building], now being demolished; therefore: The architectural firm was the famous one of Burnham & Root. The design, in its principal features, was the work of John Wellborn Root, who died shortly after its construction. His son carries on the professional tradition. The mansard roof principle of the Masonic Temple design was also used by the elder Root for the Woman's Temple, on La Salle street.

THE STOMACH IS NOT "CAST IRON."

We find it difficult to realize that until the publication of the experience of William Beaumont, physicians knew nothing for certain about the beginning of the digestive processes. In that year [1833] speculation and theorizing gave way to accurate scientific data. Most of us are familiar with the incident in which a French-Canadian, Alexis St. Martin, received a gunshot wound in the region of the stomach and Beaumont, the post surgeon, was summoned. Fortunately the man recovered, but with an opening from the outside into the interior of the gastric pouch. Without the slightest discomfort to the patient the doctor was thus able to introduce various edibles and to withdraw them during the several stages in their solution. Pure gastric juice was collected and the time required for the disintegration of different foodstuffs determined. In addition, it was possible to obtain a fairly accurate idea of the condition of the lining of the organ during activity, as well as at rest.

From that time to the present the stomach tube, the Rehfuss apparatus, X-rays, the gastroscope—and the sciences of chemistry and bacteriology—have been brought to bear upon the "haps" as they happen.

It was once thought that gastritis—inflammation of the mucous surface—was the principal cause of distress in this region of the body. But somehow or other the mode changed and new medical styles came as with the Easter parade. As a result numerous fanciful diagnoses were substituted for the old fashioned concepts. Eventually, however, we learned through the gastroscope—the instrument which permits us to visualize the inside wall — that the human family is today suffering from just as much gastritis as ever.

Despite the fact that the mouth does its best to protect the "bread basket" from undue irritation, it cannot operate perfectly. It does warm cold substances, cool those that are overly hot, dilute strong chemicals, and break up coarse fibers that might prove annoying. Furthermore, it prepares all rations by mixing the particles with saliva, rendering swallowing easier.

Of course, we cannot compel every one to eat as he should. Some will gulp material long before it is ready; others will retain poor teeth; while still others will indulge in dietary excesses to the point where caution leaves and abuse becomes an actuality. Then, too, many forget that the constant dosing with drugs for constipation, headache, etc., may insult some of the delicate cells within the food reservoir to the point of destruction.

If we assume that all the mastication desirable has not been accomplished within the mouth, the stomach must then take over the job. Particularly is it called upon to withstand assaults from burning liquids and to hold large masses within its grasp until there is enough softening to warant passage into the intestine. Furthermore, at times it must supply great quantities of diluting fluids which calls for engorgement and congestion.

Another function which the first portion of the alimentary canal must perform is the neutralizing of septic matter which is swallowed constantly from abscesses about the teeth, the tonsils, the sinuses, etc. Here the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice constitutes an antiseptic barrier, and when the level of this vital fluid drops too low bacteria may flourish and find their way further along the tract. Try as we may we cannot get away from the fact that toxins circulating in the blood may reach the gastric organ where the mucous membrance will endeavor to get rid of them. This is frequently the explanation for vomiting. The poisons excreted into this area are thrown off rather than reabsorbed or passed along into the intestines.

The one who boasts "I have a 'cast iron' digestion" is self-deluded. One of our faithful and hardy structures, it may be injured seriously by overuse. It is just as vulnerable as its tissues are soft and fragile.

FOOD IS THE USUAL CAUSE.

N. E. writes: If I stay up late in the evening the next morning I awaken with a sour mouth. As the day wears on the taste disappears. My teeth, tonsils, sinuses, and digestive tract were found to be normal. I use a mouth wash after brushing my teeth at night. What to do?

REPLY.

Usually it is the food we eat or drink, rather than the hour of retiring, which is responsible for this condition. If you will take no food except the evening meal the taste will probably disappear. All sugars undergo acid fermentation within the mouth.

HOW MUCH SALT?

R. K. writes: How much salt should the average person use daily? How much in cases where water retention is present?

REPLY.

An ordinary well balanced diet contains enough salt to meet the body requirements. In cases of water retention in the tissues, as little salt as possible is advised. If seasoning is required, potassium chloride may be substituted.

DRINK MORE.

M. A. C. writes: What causes the saliva to be thick and sticky?

REPLY.

The most common cause is a lack of fluid. Drink more liquids.

VALID DEED.

Chicago, May 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Four years ago my mother left her five children a quitclaim deed to her real estate at her death. Up until now we haven't done anything about disposing of the property.

2. Does this have to go through Probate court before we can sell same?

3. Can any one whose name is not on the deed come in for any share of same?

A. M.

1. We assume that she died subsequently. In general, a deed is not valid unless legally delivered during the grantor's lifetime.

2. It seems probable that if the deed has not yet been recorded questions would be raised on the delivery point and your chances of success would depend on your proof at this point.

3. If the deed is set aside for lack of legal delivery then each of the heirs would inherit a share.

DEBT TO F. D. R.

Chicago, May 13.—I am indebted to Franklin D. Roosevelt because:

1. He has indirectly taught the American people the fallacy of the idea that we can get rich by producing less.

2. He has shown us that it is not the munitions makers today who are rattling sabers and trying to precipitate another world war.

3. By his attack on the Supreme court, his purge, and constant attempt to gain more power, the people have come to realize that they must be on guard to protect their liberties.

4. He has demonstrated that it is not safe to intrust the handling of relief moneys to politicians.

5. He has tried all of the socialistic schemes and has demonstrated to the American people the superiority of the free enterprise system.

6. He adopted Gen. Coxey's scheme of borrowing and scattering and thus has shown the people that this plan is unsound economically.

7. He told the children the reason he had accumulated a debt of over forty billion dollars was as a means of creating a new social and economic order for the children and has thus disillusioned the youngsters, because they know that he is sending them the bill.

8. He broke his campaign promises, thus demonstrating the fact that it is foolish for people to place their trust in politicians. J. G.

CITY BLUNDERERS IN THE WOODS.

Berlin, Wis., May 6.—I just returned tonight from fighting a forest fire at Silver lake, Wautoma, Wis., where we have 18,000 pine trees, some six years old, some younger, planted by hard labor at a great expense to my husband. A Chicago man built a bonfire this morning while a high wind was raging, cleaning up his cottage I suppose, and he started our whole pine forest on fire with one spark. Trees sixty to one hundred years old were also burned, ruined. He didn't care, for he does not know the value of a pine forest.

There will be thousands of resorters heading for the north woods next month. I am asking them to dig a hole and bury their rubbish in the woods, don't burn it. You can't control one little spark from a fire after it has blown two feet from you into a dense woods.

I was born and raised in Chicago and am now living in Wisconsin, where pine trees are loved by the natives, and I wish other Chicagoans could just see and know the beauty and value of our land and not destroy it just because they think they know more than the man who has toiled to make it beautiful.

BISHOPS AND THE COLONIES.

Chicago, May 12. — If your correspondent, "American," will look up the history of Virginia she will find that the house of burgesses, the oldest English speaking legislative assembly, resolved against the sending of a bishop to the dominions.

It may be that some of the colonies did also.

What about New Amsterdam, improperly called New York? COLONIAL DAME.

FRANCIS ENNIS VERITY.

CROWDED BUSES.

Chicago, May 9.—What can be done about a situation like this: The neighborhood lying along the lake between Foster avenue and Wilson avenue is dependent on the bus line as the only convenient means of transportation. During the last quarter of the morning rush hour only a single "limited" bus serves this entire section.

This bus is crowded way beyond the danger point and might easily be the means of a major catastrophe.

This morning two of us determined to count the passengers on the upper deck and the lower deck. We found these results: Upper deck, seated, 41; upper deck, standing, 6; standing or seated on iron stairs, 5 lower deck, seated, 31; lower deck, standing, 18; driver, 1; total, 102.

If such a crowded bus were suddenly to catch on fire, what chance would the passengers have of saving their lives? There would not even be room to stampede; they would be wedged in. If such a bus were to accidently hit a viaduct, as has happened before, what chance would the huddled passengers have for protection?

It seems to me that civic officials responsible for licensing the buses to serve this territory should see that adequate transportation facilities are provided or revoke the licenses. S. C.

STILL MOVING DIRT.

Chicago, May 9. — Well, believe it or not, they're at it again, lugging dirt back and forth in Winnemac park! One year ago, under date of April 25, 1938, I called attention in this column to the fact that for five years WPA crews had been lugging dirt from one side of the park to the other and back again. Today tons and tons of dirt have been heaped along the parkways and from here it is hauled by wheelbarrows to spots that had been graded and sodded and supposedly left as completed last summer.

The same old irrational, unplanned, inefficient management is still in control, building up today and tearing down tomorrow, then rebuilding on the third day. Evidently five and a half years of experience has taught nothing about how to handle dirt.

Who cares? This park is school board property, which may be the answer. But haven't we had enough?

H. H. SLAWSON.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR SAFETY LANE LAWS.

Chicago, May 9.—Last week I purchased a new automobile. I immediately applied for a driver's license and paid state and city vehicle tax. Then I tried to get a safety sticker, which was impossible. With a waiting line of three to four hours I neither have time before nor after work to get one.

Since I have paid for my right to drive upon the city streets I think this condition, making me subject to arrest, very unjust. Had the judges enforced the law as they should have before election the present deplorable conditions at the safety lanes would not exist. I have no excuse for the car owners who evaded the lanes before the drive. However, it is really the fault of the law enforcing bodies and their playing politics around the election that the present jam has occurred. S. LEE.

CLEANING UP THE HANDBILLS.

Chicago, May 11.—How long will it be before the handbill and door-to-door circularizing bogs down and dies under its own weight?

At my door today in a home on the southwest side of the city I had stuck in my door knob advertising of the newspaper sheet size which totaled the equivalent of eighty-five pages of newsprint. In addition I received a few small pieces of what might be termed neighborhood advertising.

This type of advertising must have a profitable place in the regular advertising scheme of merchants and the only objection that seems in order is the pieces of advertising which are constantly blown around the streets and parkways.

For their own protection and to insure their continued use of this means of getting their messages to the public I wonder why the advertisers do not request legislation which would place a small license fee on these handbill distributors, then seeing that these license fees are used as salaries for those special "clean-up" employés of the city who would patrol the streets with portable paper burners, burning the pieces of advertising which find their way to the streets instead of to the inside of the home. PAPER PICKER.

GOLD STAR MOTHER.

Morris, Ill., May 11.—I am a Gold Star mother. We had three sons in the service during the world war. One of them never came back. We have no sons who would have to serve now, should we have war, but for the sake of the mothers whose boys would have to go, and for the sake of the boys themselves, please keep up your efforts to educate the people against war. If we could only muzzle our President so that he could make no more speeches we would not be so likely to be dragged into war. We can't do that, but we can at least write to our congressmen.

A MOTHER WHO CANNOT FORGET.

FIVE MORE YEARS?

Chicago, May 9.—Mayor Kelly has stated before the house WPA investigating committee in Washington that one out of every five persons in Chicago is receiving relief. This condition exists after almost seven years of the New Deal that Kelly is favoring and wishes to continue. He also stated that it would be necessary to continue caring for the unemployed for many years. Evidently he is figuring on a third term for the New Deal.

IDIOTS' DELIGHT.

Chicago, May 9.—Anent the current delirium of swing fans over a new song known as "Our Love," pardon an ironical comment and a couple of irrepressible yawns. It is amazing, isn't it, that a bunch of bird brains will go berserk over a few bars of Tschaikowsky dressed up in some lovesick lyrics and managed by a Mr. Benny Goodman—while the original, the Romeo and Juliet overture, complete, as well as the lines that inspired it, written by a Mr. Shakespeare, will leave them absolutely cold. Idiots' Delight! Ho hum. F. H.

47 LIVE TO TELL OF SHIPS' CRASH IN FOG; 48TH DIES

Survivors Row More than 2 Days in Open Dories.

YARMOUTH, Nova Scotia, May 12.—(AP)—Forty-seven fishermen, all but one man of the crews of two New England schooners which collided and sank 100 miles at sea early Wednesday, were safe in port tonight after rowing open dories toward land for two days and a night. The forty-eighth was dead.

Most of the fishermen were picked up about twenty miles off the Nova Scotia coast and brought to Yarmouth. Three beached their dory near Jonesport, Me., none the worse for their long open sea pull which started when the Gloucester schooner Edith C. Rose and the Isabelle Parker of Boston collided in a fog and quickly sank.

Frank Nickerson, 62 years old, of Argyle Sound, Nova Scotia, died. Survivors said he apparently suffered a heart attack aboard the Isabelle Parker shortly after the collision. His body was brought ashore in one of the dories.

Without Food and Water.

Without food, water, or compasses the fishermen—many only partly clad—had rowed many miles before rescuers sighted them. Capt. Albert Hines of the Edith C. Rose said men in his dory rowed 150 miles before they were saved. A calm sea aided the fishermen, who were about midway between Boston and Yarmouth when the accident happened.

Survivors said the Edith C. Rose sank five minutes after the crash had opened a gaping hole amidships. The fishermen were able to launch two dories, but many were forced to jump into the chill sea with only lifebelts.

The Isabelle Parker settled quickly and sank twenty minutes later. Those in dories picked up men in the water before heading toward land. At first the dories managed to keep within sight of one another, but later were separated.

Treated for Exposure.

First to be picked up was a boatload sighted by the gasoline boat Amacita after they had rowed eighty miles. Others were rescued off the Digby county coast, where they were landed and transported overland to Yarmouth.

The bow watch on the Isabelle Parker, Fred A. Bourque of Lynn, Mass., said only twenty yards of water separated the schooners when he sighted the Edith C. Rose looming through the mist.

"I shouted a warning to the man at the wheel, Billy Gilman of Boston, but he had no chance to avoid the crash," he said. "I managed to jump back to keep from being crushed. Our boat went almost through the Rose.

"We had time to get some equipment ready, but we had no food or water, and we couldn't waste time looking, for the Parker was sinking under our feet. It wasn't a very pleasant sensation."

2 EXPERTS DOUBT THEORY INSANITY IS INHERITABLE

Doubt that insanity is inheritable was expressed yesterday before the ninety-fifth annual meeting of the American Psychiatric association by Dr. Horatio M. Pollock and Dr. Benjamin Malzberg of New York. They reported that a study of the relatives of 330 inmates of state asylums failed to show that mental derangements are handed down from father to son.

New officers of the association are Dr. William C. Sandy, Harrisburg, Pa., president; Dr. George H. Stevenson, London, Ont., Canada, president-elect, and Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles, Providence, R. I., secretary and treasurer. Dr. Richard Hutchings of Utica, N. Y., is the retiring president. Dr. Stevenson will take office next year. The convention was held in the Palmer House.

ONE EMBITTERED BITTERN AT ZOO; SAYS 'KA-POOMP'

The Lincoln Park zoo was richer yesterday by one embittered bittern. Mrs. N. W. Birkleaff, 6974 Woodlawn avenue, found the long legged, dagger beaked bird exhausted in her yard, but later it revived and became hostile.

She called the Anti-Cruelty society. After the bird made several determined efforts to peck out the eyes of Dr. W. A. Young, society manager, he called Floyd S. Young, the zoo director. Young said the bird was probably unhappy because its migration had been interrupted, but that he was willing to add it to the zoo.

The bittern is a common wading bird in midwestern marshes. It is well known to country boys as the bird that goes "ka-poomp."

Prince Olav Rides Mule to Grand Canyon's Floor

Grand Canyon, Ariz., May 12.—(AP)—Crown Prince Olav of Norway rode a sure-footed mule down winding Kaibab trail today to the floor of the Grand Canyon. Crown Princess Martha, not as venturesome as her royal husband, took a short trip down Bright Angel trail. She explained she had not ridden a horse since she was a child.

James C. E. Allum Gets a Divorce at Wheaton

James C. E. Allum, insurance broker, was granted a divorce yesterday in the Du Page county Circuit court at Wheaton from Mrs. Genevieve Fay Allum of Glen Ellyn. Allum charged desertion. He told Judge William Fulton his wife ordered him from their home April 1, 1937, after twenty years of marriage. Allum lives at 408 Gary avenue, Wheaton.

AUTOIST SEIZED AFTER PERILOUS SKID ON A BLUFF

Frederic McLaughlin II. of Lake Forest, who narrowly escaped death or serious injury in Lake Bluff early yesterday when his car skidded 60 feet down a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan, appeared last night in the Lake Bluff police court to answer a charge of driving while intoxicated.

McLaughlin obtained a change of venue and was taken before Justice of the Peace Samuel Sorenson in Lake Forest, who continued until May 23 the hearing on charges of driving while intoxicated and reckless driving. The defendant is the son of the late George D. McLaughlin, who was killed in 1931 in an auto crash.

Robert Brin, 25, of 1223 North Claremont avenue, was injured seriously yesterday when a loaded trailer truck, out of control of the driver, ran over the sidewalk and pushed him through the window of the store of W. F. Nichols at 8427 South Chicago avenue. Nichols and his wife, Josephine, escaped injury by jumping aside. Brin was taken to the South Shore hospital. The truck driver was Walter Huesman of Toledo, O.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 311 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 241 were killed in Chicago, where 6,981 were injured in the same period.

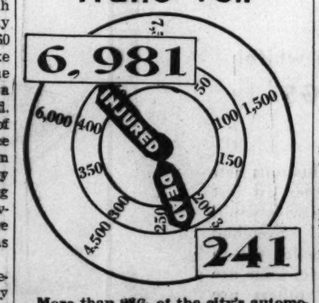
Chester Clarkson, Flour Broker, Dies in His Home

Chester Clarkson, 56 years old, a flour broker, was found dead yesterday in his apartment at 102 East Chestnut street. Death was attributed to heart disease. Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Lucy Clarkson. Funeral services will be held in Sioux City, Ia.

Brother of Park District Official Found Dead in Bed

Nathan Golan, 31 years old, a liquor salesman, was found dead in bed last night in his room in the Eastgate hotel, 162 East Ontario street. A heart attack is believed to have caused his death. He was a brother of Louis Golan, a member of the Chicago Park district board.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

KATZ NEW DEAN OF LAW SCHOOL AT U. OF CHICAGO

Wilber Griffith Katz, professor of law at the University of Chicago, was named dean of the university law school yesterday by President Robert M. Hutchins. He will replace Dean Harry A. Bigelow, who will reach the retirement age of 65 this summer and automatically becomes dean emeritus. Dean Bigelow will continue to teach his courses in property law, Hutchins said. Dean Katz is 36 years old and lives at 5626 Blackstone avenue.

Runs a Red Light; Honks and Honks; Gets 30 Days

Irving Gentry, 35 years old, 4658 Flournoy street, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green in Safety court to thirty days in the Bridewell for driving while intoxicated. Gentry was arrested May 4 for driving through a trafic light in the loop. Policeman Alvis Myers testified Gentry kept blowing his car horn and refused to stop at the policeman's request.

CHICAGO PUPILS WIN NATIONAL POSTER CONTEST

Chicago high school pupils won all honors in the cleanup campaign division of the National Fire Protection association's poster contest. The announcement was made yesterday by the association at its convention in the Stevens hotel.

First honors went to Sylvester Zuk, a last year's graduate of Harrison Technical High school; second place to Evelyn Correll, 1939 graduate of Amundsen High school. Honorable mentions went to Florence Curtis, senior at Roosevelt high, and Jean Waszak, junior at Englewood high.

Samuel D. McComb, manager of the Marie Office of America, New York, was elected president of the association; Alvah R. Small, president of the Underwriters Laboratories, Chicago, vice president. Richard E. Vernor, Chicago, was among the directors named.

Woman Once Held Captive by Indians Dies at Age 88

Concordia, Kas., May 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Brooks, 88 years old, who as a girl of 18 was captured by a raiding party of Cheyenne Indians, died last night at home near Jamestown, Kas. Mrs. Brooks, then Sarah White, was held by the Indians for several weeks, finally gaining her release after troops under Gen. George A. Custer took two tribal chieftains as hostages. She was married to E. O. Brooks in 1869. Five of seven children survive.

$15,000 Awarded to Boy for Coaster Wagon Mishap

A verdict awarding $15,000 to Herbert Kanthak, 13 years old, 1426 Orleans street, in his $150,000 suit against the Railway Express Agency was returned yesterday by a jury before Judge Roman Posanski of Calumet City, sitting in Circuit court here. Herbert's foot was injured on Nov. 1, 1937, when a Railway Express truck crowded his coaster wagon into a row of parked cars, the jury was told.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Emma J. Weidenbaum.

Mrs. Emma J. Weidenbaum, who as a girl was driven out of her home by the Chicago fire, died yesterday in her home at 2926 Burling street. She was 79 years old. Mrs. Weidenbaum lived at Wells and Erie streets at the time of the fire. The home escaped destruction and now is used as a factory. Mrs. Weidenbaum's father, a contractor, helped rebuild the near north side residential district after the conflagration. Surviving Mrs. Weidenbaum are her husband, William F., and three daughters. Funeral services will be held Monday at 3 p. m. in the chapel at 5501 North Ashland avenue.

Col. James W. Gilson.

Hartford, Conn., May 12.—[Special.]—Col. James W. Gilson, former postmaster of Hartford, died today at the United States Veterans' hospital at Newington. He was 67 years old. Manager and director of the Mitchell Motor Car company of Racine, Wis., at the outbreak of the world war, he became a captain of the First Field Artillery of the Wisconsin National Guard which was incorporated into the 32d division.

Henry W. Paschen.

Funeral services for Henry W. Paschen, 4124 North Menard avenue, employed by THE TRIBUNE as a photo engraver, will be held at 3 p. m. today in the chapel at 201 Lake street, Maywood. Mr. Paschen died Wednesday in Hines hospital. He was 45 years old. Surviving are his widow, Nettie, and two daughters.

Frank Barchard Sr.

Funeral services for Frank Barchard Sr., publisher of two newspapers at Foley, Ala., were held recently in Foley. Mr. Barchard was born in Des Plaines in 1869 and was for twenty-two years a member of the Chicago Police force. Later he served as an employé of THE TRIBUNE. He went to Baldwin county, Ala., thirty-five years ago and entered the real estate and later the newspaper business. He was active in the Republican party there. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ella Cunningham of Foley, and two sons, Ira of Chicago and Frank of Foley.

Mrs. Carrie D. Martin.

Mrs. Carrie D. Martin, a resident of Glencoe since 1895, died yesterday at the age of 78 in the North Shore Health resort. She was the widow of Calman Martin. Two daughters, Mrs. William M. Reay of Nokomis, Fla., and Mrs. M. Edward Stephenson of Kalamazoo, Mich., and a son, James K. Martin of Glencoe, survive. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Glencoe Union church.

Mrs. Clara Patch.

Mrs. Clara Patch, postmistress at Wadsworth, Lake county, for the last twenty-one years, died Thursday night in St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, following an operation. She was 43 years old. Her husband, Oliver, survives. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Monday in St. Patrick's church, Wadsworth.

EXHIBIT NIPS HONOR GUEST AT EVANSTON SCHOOL'S DOG SHOW

Frederick W. Nichols, 81 years old, was the honored guest last night at the seventh annual dog show in the Nichols school at Greenleaf street and Elmwood avenue, Evanston. There was nothing unusual about this. Mr. Nichols, who lives at 615 Sheridan road, Evanston, is a retired superintendent of schools of the southern part of the city, and the institution was named for him.

As is the custom with honored guests at dog shows, he inspected and petted the 160 exhibits. One of them, a German shepherd dog, bit him on the right hand. As a result Mr. Nichols was treated by a physician, and the dog, belonging to June Dailey of 319 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, was sent to the pound for a rabies examination.

MAJ. MULLER, 74, VETERAN OF U. S. SERVICE, IS DEAD

Maj. George W. Muller, who spent 48 years in government service, died yesterday in his home at 3232 Lake Park avenue. He was 74 years.

Maj. Muller enlisted in the army in 1887 at Vancouver barracks, Washington. He was transferred to the hospital corps in 1889 and served in that organization until 1913, when he was retired. At the outbreak of the world war he was recalled to active duty, and served until 1919 as a captain. On his discharge he was appointed major of the reserves. Until 1935, when he retired, Maj. Muller served as chief clerk in the Chicago headquarters of the medical corps.

His widow, Selma, survives. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday in the chapel at 2917 South Michigan avenue. Burial will be at Fort Sheridan.

GRANT-SCHAEFER, COMPOSER, DIES AT 70 IN HOSPITAL

George A. Grant-Schaefer, widely known composer of children's music, died Thursday night in the Evanston hospital, where he had been ill for more than a year. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Grant-Schaefer was professor of voice culture at Northwestern university from 1910 until 1923, when he retired. He also served as organist at the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago for many years. In recent years he had devoted his time to musical compositions. Five of his operettas for children are to be published soon.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in St. Luke's Lady chapel, Evanston. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery.

Armour Tech Finds This Better than Gulping Fish

People threw eggs. Every one yelled, and a number of apparently happy young men fought violently. When it was all over the Armour Tech sophomores had managed to carry 20 bags of straw over the freshmen goal line yesterday afternoon and were declared winners. They do the same thing each year. No one knows why. It's better than eating goldfish.

FALL DOWN STAIRS IS FATAL.

Nicholas Gloodt, 68 years old, died yesterday in County hospital from injuries suffered May 7 in a fall down stairs at his home, 5032 Elizabeth street.

STUDY CHANGES IN WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Members of a sub-committee of the judiciary committee of the Illinois house of representatives met in the Union League club last night and agreed to recommend important changes in the Ellison-Lager bill, now under consideration in the legislature.

The bill as originally drawn provided for a 20 per cent increase in workmen's compensation for occupational diseases and injuries. The sub-committee will recommend, it was announced, that the increase be limited to 10 per cent. Representative Joseph Sam Perry [D., Wheaton], a member of the sub-committee, said representatives of labor and manufacturing interests had agreed to give their support to the amendment.

Speaker Hugh W. Cross [R., Jerseyville] and Representative Edward P. Saltiel [R., Chicago], chairman of the judiciary committee, attended the meeting. Representative I. H. Streeper [R., Alton] is chairman of the sub-committee.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

CARUSO—Rose Caruso. In cherished memory of our dear wife and mother.
In silent sorrow we live each day
For all two years you passed away.
LOVING HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

LIND—Stanley Olof Lind. One year has passed since we were parted, Stanley dearest, but some day you and I will be together again. May 13, 1938.
How often do I tread the path
That leads me to the grave
Where rests the one I love so much
But whom I could not save.
Friends may think I have forgotten
When at times they see me smile;
But little do they know the heartaches
That my smile hides the while
Just longing to be with you.
BROKEN HEARTED.

MORTON—Lieut. Samuel Jules Morton, war hero, passed away sixteen years ago today.
We miss you yet, and always shall,
But through our falling tears
We see your image, comrade true,
Advancing through the years.

Ah, may you find the Heaven
You earned through mortal deed,
For duty was your watchword
And honor was your creed.
PETER MONDANE.

Two Weddings Will Take Place Saturday, July 1

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE will be two pretty weddings on the north shore on Saturday, July the 1st. Miss Frances Bell of Winnetka and Miss Isabelle Tennant of Highland Park both have decided upon that date for their marriages.

Miss Bell, one of the four daughters of the Laird Bells, will become the bride of Gilbert H. Osgood, one of the four sons of the Roy C. Osgoods of Kenilworth. Miss Tennant will be married to Robert Ainsworth Morris.

The Morris-Tennant wedding will be a garden ceremony, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lufkin Tennant. Mr. Morris' mother is Mrs. George Huckins Morris of Evanston.

On June 22 last year Miss Bell's sister, Miss Helen Bell, was married to Geoffrey de Freitas of London, in a quiet ceremony in Christ church chapel, with a small reception following at the Bell home in Tower road.

Younger Sisters to Be Attendants.

Miss Frances is planning to have much the same sort of wedding. She will not have her sister as matron of honor, for Mrs. De Freitas will not be able to come from England for the occasion. Frances was her sister's only attendant last summer. The two younger girls, Margaret and Nathalie, will attend Frances.

Mrs. Osgood is going east on Monday to visit her son, Alfred M. Osgood, and her fiancée, Miss Betty Paine of Portland, Me. Alfred Osgood has another year at law at Harvard, so no plans for his marriage to Miss Paine have been made. He will be his brother's best man in July.

Miss Bell's aunt, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, has arrived at home from Germany, but her daughter, Miss Janet Fairbank, did not accompany her. Miss Fairbank will be here for her cousin's marriage, however, for she will arrive in about two weeks. Mrs. and Miss Fairbank will open their Lake Geneva home shortly after the latter arrives.

Dartmouth Alumni Carnival Tonight.

The spring carnival of Dartmouth alumni at the Drake hotel tonight will be ushered in with a round of gay dinner and cocktail parties. Robert S. Critchell, chairman of the committee that has planned the affair, reports that an unusually large crowd is expected. Miss Gertrude Lawrence will be the especial guest and among those who will sit with her are Miss Betty Bryant, Miss Adelaide Moffett, Miss Harriet Rush, the Robert Harveys, Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, the Otis Chatfield-Taylors, Frank Mandel, Andrew Dudley, Jerry Freshman, the Victor Hunters, the Benson Martins, Thompson Bartlett, and Graham Smith.

Miss Bell and Mr. Osgood will be among the guests of Wells Sinclair tonight. Among others who will have tables are the John Goodwillies, the "Ted" Parkers, the Charles C. Bunkers, the Gilbert Robinsons, the John Dingles, and the young Carleton Blunts.

Mrs. Warren Fairbanks is entertaining at dinner and dancing tonight at the Saddle and Cycle club for Mrs.

New Accessory Items Ideal for Gifts to Mother

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some of the most feminine finds of the week are the costume accessories featured for Mother's day. The gay array includes sheer white gloves of slightly crisp embroidered organdy, equally thin tucked sheers of plain materials, fascinating combines of cool white piqué with lace trim and fingers of lace, and the newest dress parade beauties of swanky white kidskin with such stunning decoration as eyelet forget-me-nots.

The glove counters also offer thick doeskin street or daytime gloves with snippy little bows of the doeskin at the sides or dozens of tiny bows all over the backs. Gloves this summer are just about the most romantic things ever presented.

Stunning handbags in white come in effective big blistered kidskins, or with quilted designs, or, still more fancy, those made with folds, tucks, and simulated plaits. Frames are resplendent in silver or gold metal. Some of the snow white alligator creations can be made individualistic with a huge three letter monogram in copper, silver, or gold, or in combines of all three.

Dress parade bags come in grosgrain ribbon in white or gay gypsy stripes. Other outstandingly different bags are those of crocheted string in a large shell pattern. Colors include white, yellow, chartreuse, raspberry, and street shades. The linings are of smooth linen in a harmonizing color. Deep midnight blue or black dull crêpe envelopes have silver bead embroidery in a leaf pattern all around the edges . . . linings are of sleek black satin.

Few women, young or not so young, can resist the lure of frilly sheer blouses. See any of the late arrivals and succumb. Tucked nets, exquisitely sheer chiffons, fine organdies, and snappy white piqués come in long and short sleeve versions of the ever popular suit blouse models. Fagoting, val lace ruffles, deep turnover collars of Irish lace, English eyelet embroidery, and net flutings make them superlative eye catchers for the accents of all dark suits.

Collar and cuff sets come into the fashion spotlight this summer. They're important high lights for slim one piece dresses as well as the clever two piece affairs that look like simple suits. Vestees, waistcoats, and boleros run the sets a good race for favor because these are the telling trifles that transform all costumes in any wardrobe.

Tie-on turbans of white and colored fish net and the latest arrivals—the cool white dotted black and navy blue taffetas—bring the list of finds to a good finish . . . just in time for the rush of last minute shoppers.

New Hospital of St. George Will Hold Open House

The Hospital of St. George, 449 Winneconna parkway, was dedicated yesterday by high Catholic church officials. The hospital was formerly known as the Auburn Park hospital. It was recently purchased by the Religious Hospitalers of St. Joseph, who also conduct St. Bernard's hospital. Sister Mary Kelly, R. N., is superintendent of St. George hospital. Open house will be held at the hospital from 2 to 5 o'clock tomorrow.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Jean Henning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Guy Henning of Winnetka, to Jack Walker Hoerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Hoerner of Hastings, Neb., will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church. A reception will follow at the Winnetka Woman's club. Mr. Hoerner, known as a golfer, and his bride will make their home in Evanston.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

The Reviewing Stand.

Hollywood, Cal., May 13.—The Kid from Kankakee is on the upgrade again, booming along in high gear. The Kid from Kankakee is Fred MacMurray, and for a time it appeared that bad pictures were poisoning him to death, but "Invitation to Happiness," with Irene Dunne, following on the heels of "Sing, You Sinners," with Bing Crosby, and "Café Society," with Madeleine Carroll, have put him back on the Hollywood high road and the five year jinx has been overcome. The fifth year in Hollywood always is the tough year to overcome. By that time the player has been typed, and the alarums and tomtoms which accompanied him in his early pictures have died away. MacMurray in his fifth year [he was signed in 1934] is more than holding his own, and the tom-toms are beating again.

Fred MacMurray.

It was in 1934 that "Roberta" was enjoying a considerable musical comedy success on the Broadway stage. MacMurray was a saxophone player and singer in a small, corny band that appeared in the production and, oddly enough, he was the first of the big company signed to a movie contract. Bob Hope, one of the stars, didn't get a movie contract until a year and a half ago. Tamara, the other star, never did get a movie contract. Lyda Roberti, the comedienne of the show, was signed, but died just at the moment it appeared she'd go places. MacMurray, the itinerant saxophonist, beat all of the stars of the show to the punch and was a big name nationally while they were still laboring for Max Gordon.

Just how thin is the margin between success and failure in this town was illustrated in MacMurray's experience at Paramount. One of his first pictures was "Car 99," in which Paramount used a lot of the stock company youngsters to get a line on them. MacMurray was one of the youngsters. Another was Ann Sheridan, who had won a Paramount talent-and-beauty contest. Now "Car 99" may not have been the worst picture made in Hollywood, but it could make considerable claim for that distinction. Immediately it was previewed, Ann Sheridan was released. MacMurray would have shared the same fate, but, luckily for him, in the meantime he had appeared in "The Gilded Lily," with Claudette Colbert and the Colbert flicker won him a reprieve and national attention. So he became a featured player and Ann Sheridan became an outcast, and wandered about this town for five years until "Letter of Introduction" gave her an overnight bust at stardom.

While all of these things were occurring, Bob Hope, star of "Roberta," was being ignored consistently. Between musical comedies Bob played vaudeville—and golf. It can be stated truthfully that he played more golf than vaudeville because there are more golf courses than there are vaudeville stages. A year and a half ago Hope was signed by Paramount, and he arrived here a few days before I arrived to cover the Hollywood beat. In fact, one of my first afternoon assignments was to go to Paramount to see the rushes of Hope and Shirley Ross in a love song in a W. C. Fields picture. Returning to the hotel, where his pretty wife was waiting anxiously to get the verdict, I assured her that the song would make him a star. "You're just saying that because you like him," she protested. The song was "Thanks For the Memory," and it did, indeed, make him a star. He amplified that with his radio success.

Hope and MacMurray continue the legend that youngsters from the Great Lakes area seem to have an edge on the rest of the country when it comes to crashing Hollywood. Hope is from Cleveland, O. MacMurray was born in Kankakee, Ill., and went to high school and college in Wisconsin. A whole slew of performers have emerged from those areas.

Performers, to win success, and to maintain it, must have stories that provide situations and lines. MacMurray's comeback stems directly from three fine pictures.

Wisecrack.

Everett Crosby, entering the Blackhawk, was asked by his brother Bob how he was.

"Sick as a jitterbug," answered Everett. Then at his bandmaster brother's look of inquiry explained, "One foot in the groove."

Scotch.

A taxicab passenger, arriving at his destination, paid the fare but did not tip the driver.

"You forgot something," said the driver.

"What?" asked the passenger in honest bewilderment, slapping his pockets and peering back into the cab.

"Your bagpipes," retorted the driver.

Cuff Notes.

Flagstad's husband told her in Cincinnati the other day that next year is her last year of public life. . . . There will be no Toscanini performances at the world's fair. . . . The advent of James Joyce's Finnegans Wake brings to mind that a Chicagoan, Hazel Felman (Mrs. J. R. Buchbinder), wrote music to Anna Livia Plurabelle. When Philippe Soupault (who translated Anna Livia Plurabelle into English] was in town several years ago lecturing at the Arts club he came to hear Mrs. Buchbinder play it [then in manuscript form] at the home of Mrs. Moise Dreyfus. Joyce himself is said to like the music and to play it frequently. . . . There are recordings of James Joyce reading his work, difficult to get. Maude Phelps Hutchins has one. . . . A biographical sketch of Chicago composer John Alden Carpenter is in preparation by Carleton Smith.

Musical Big Shot.

Dr. Frederick Stock arrived late at one of the Kolisch String Quartet concerts in Mandel hall, sponsored by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, and was ushered in during the playing of the Bartók numbers. Then the usher came back to apologize to a young woman, Miss Gladys Finn of the University of Chicago, who had not been admitted during the playing of the number.

"I'm sorry not to let you in like him, but he's a musical big shot," he apologized. "I think he's the Mr. Sprague who's sponsoring these concerts."

Good Morning!

Once upon a time—in 1933 to be exact—a picture called "Penthouse" was released. "Society Lawyer" is a remake of this movie.

The former version featured Myrna Loy, Warner Baxter, C. Henry Gordon, and Phillips Holmes. In the current venture Virginia Bruce plays the glamorous night club entertainer. Walter Pidgeon portrays the well born attorney who becomes involved in investigation of a girl's murder by her ex-sweetheart—a dangerous gangster who has never forgotten nor forgiven the lady's desertion of him for one Phil Siddall [Lee Bowman]. Eduardo Cianelli is this gangster.

Another but far more likable racketeer is played by Leo Carrillo. His devotion to Lawyer Durant, who has saved him from the chair, causes him to surround the latter with assorted protective agencies, which, believe me, the handsome mouthpiece discovers he needs aplenty!

The story is swift moving, interesting, excellently acted and directed. . . . It should please devotees of this type of drama.

See you tomorrow.

Sovereign Club.

The Sovereign club of St. Brendan's church will hold its first annual spring dance next Saturday in the Venetian room of the Southmoor hotel.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

All the women who like luxurious baths and particularly those who are mad about a certain French perfume will welcome a new package that smartly combines scented bath powder and a liquid that makes the bath water bubble like crazy. Both are in the blithe fragrance of the popular perfume.

It's really a very tricky package, and it's a bargain. The blue box is filled with the feathery, fragrant powder almost to its brim. Above the packing of powder is a fat puff, slit to make an opening for the flat bottle of bubbling bath essence. It's all arranged to make a pretty, compact ensemble and one that's practical in small bathrooms. You have your two nice bath aids in one package.

The liquid for the bath is great fun. A few drops make a billowing sea of snowy bubbles—bubbles that stand pat longer than many, by the way—and perfumes the water, the room, and the bather. The fragrance is a very light, gay one—wonderful for routing the blues and bringing out the orchid in you.

The powder is generously scented with the same perfume. When you step out of the foaming tub—and this won't be a minute before you have to, because it's such fun to wallow—you should dry yourself carefully and then dust lavishly. Your skin feels much smoother and actually the surface is smoother when it's powdered. On hot days, especially, climbing into your clothes isn't the sticky task it usually is if you've fluffed powder on first.

You'll find this combination of bath essence and powder, both in the same box, in almost all the shops.

The River Bend Feud

By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1939: By William MacLeod Raine.)

SYNOPSIS.

Jeff Hunter, an American mining engineer, awaits execution in a Mexican jail by order of Pancho Banderas, rebel leader. A peon friend helps him escape to Texas. Jeff meets Joan Raleigh, lost in the vastness of her feudal estate, and assists her home. He meets her brothers, Bill and Phil, and Phil's wife, Mary Lou. When they learn Jeff went to college with their cousin, Raeburn, he is invited to be their guest. An old feud against the Raleighs is being renewed under the leadership of Butler Lane, suspected of poisoning their aunt, his wife, and forging her will. Banderas, routed from Mexico, has joined Lane. Jeff offers to try to make peace with the better element and, with Jim Williams, starts for the ranch of Carl Nielsen. They are pursued and fired on by Banderas and his men, but manage to reach the Nielsen ranch. Banderas and his men appear. Jeff disarms the bandit and his men. Nielsen is shocked by the outlaw. The feud has prevented a romance between beautiful Olga Nielsen and Bill Raleigh. Next morning Nielsen leaves with Jeff for a conference with Phil Raleigh.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

THE PEACE MISSION OVER.

The foreman squinted into the sky. "Isn't that a plane—way off there, coming out of the clouds. Sure it is. We'd better ride out to the landing field." He called to a man at the corral. "Saddle a horse for Mr. Raleigh and bring it out to the field."

"Miss Raleigh is piloting the plane," Hunter suggested.

"Another horse for Miss Raleigh," McGill bawled.

The plane landed before the riders arrived. Phil and his sister walked across the field to meet them. There were greetings but no handshaking. Neither of the principal antagonists was sure enough of the other's position to indulge in amenities as yet.

Jeff and Joan dropped behind the others as they rode to the house. Even in the sacklike pilot's uniform the girl sat the horse with flatbacked grace.

"For a man so devoted to peace you get into an awful lot of trouble," she drawled. "Seems to me you count that day lost whose low descending sun views from thy hand no deadly battle won."

She laughed at him with friendly derision.

Jeff included her brother and Nielsen in a sweeping gesture. "The fruit of my humble efforts as an envoy," he said.

"Didn't I hear something about a Mexican you shot up?" she inquired blandly.

"I was trying to teach him and his friends the wisdom of peace."

"I see. And you were still inculcating peace when you knocked out poor Pancho Banderas?"

"Phil didn't need to pass that on to you," he reproached. "I only told him because I thought Pancho might be a little annoyed at us and I thought he ought to be prepared."

"I believe you're a fraud," the girl scoffed. "You're only looking for a chance to edge into this fight. Fact is, Jeff Hunter, you have done all the fighting that has been done on our side. You're a nice one to send out to preach pacifism." She abandoned, almost in an instant, her raillery. "Now tell me all about it—everything that happened."

"Nothing much happened. I talked with several ranchmen. They weren't very friendly. Pancho and his friends caught sight of us while we were headed for Nielsen's and took some shots at us. They hit the car and we crashed. We scooted into the chaparral. I did hit one of them—in the leg. They followed us later to Nielsen's, but the boss of the C N fixed a trap for them. Into it they blundered. Nielsen sent them home with their tails between their legs."

"You had nothing to do with that, of course?"

"O, we all played up to Nielsen."

"And what about Miss Nielsen?"

"He has two daughters."

"Olga is the one we're both thinking of. Did you lose your heart to her?"

"I'm not sure. She's a grand girl, lovely to look at, fine and simple and direct. She would make a wonderful wife and mother."

"I don't know whether to wish you luck or not. Oughtn't I to be loyal to Bill? He saw her first." She slanted an impudent grin at him.

"Bill may take some beating," he admitted. "She doesn't approve of him or of his family, but I noticed she blushed when his name was mentioned. She has a lovely complexion, and her color comes and goes easily."

"Don't you like my complexion?" she asked anxiously. "I buy it at the most expensive places."

He ignored that. "I thought it a bad sign—I mean her blushing when Bill's name was mentioned. It was discouraging. Naturally I stuck in a probe to find out where my rival stands. It appears that Bill has been civil to her—in fact, several times. But hang it, I've been civil to you occasionally, and I haven't changed a jot the color in your cheeks."

She shook her head regretfully. "If some one would invent a rouge with which one could turn on and off blushes he would become a billionaire." She added: "I'm deeply impressed by you. Any woman would be, of course. But I just can't manage any blushes."

Those in advance had reached the house. All of them but Williams disappeared into it. Old Jim dropped back to join the other two.

"They've done gone into a huddle to make peace talk," he explained.

"Mr. Hunter gets the credit of that," Joan said, a touch of irony in her demure drawl. "If he stays with us long enough we'll all be one loving family, won't we? Dear Uncle Butler Lane—and gentle Pancho—and that good Dave Mallow with the heart of gold. All working with us to promote harmony and good will. O, happy days!"

Old Jim grinned. "Seems like I read about that, where the wolf lies down with the lamb—inside of him. But I don't reckon you Raleighs are lamb enough for that. The boys have got too much hell in them."

"But under Mr. Hunter's softening influence," Joan suggested.

The old cowpuncher discharged a shot of tobacco juice accurately at a flat rock. "He sure softened up Pancho, Miss Joan, but he did it with the blue barrel of his gun."

"All in the interest of peace."

"Maybe so." Jim rubbed his bristly chin, considering that. "All I got to say in regards to that is, he's a top hand at being right in the rumpus when the fur begins to fly."

"That is peculiar, isn't it?" the girl replied. "But he can explain that to us. Can't you, Mr. Hunter?"

Jeff swung from the saddle. "Have a good time, both of you," he said cheerfully, and offered them cigarets.

Phil came out of the house ten minutes later. To his sister and Jeff he said:

"We're getting somewhere. Nielsen is reasonable. We can work out of any trouble we have had with him and his friends. I am glad of that. What Dave Mallow and his riff-raff think I don't care. . . . You'd better take Jeff back in the plane, Joan. Old Jim is going to stay here for a few days to help McGill. When Bill gets back to the house, if he isn't there yet, ask him to come over in the plane to pick me up."

Williams rode out to the field with them to bring back the horses. Jeff could see that Joan knew her business. She was as sure of herself as if she had been driving an automobile. He admired her cool efficiency with which she took off and lifted the plane to a sufficient altitude. They circled above the ranch lazily, then struck off toward the River Bend.

Joan made a perfect landing, dropping to the ground as smoothly as an expert professional could have done. They taxied to the hangar and stopped not fifty feet from it.

As they walked to a car parked back of the hangar Jeff said, almost casually, "Some pilot, Joan."

The girl's eyes were shining. He could see she loved flying.

"Not yet, but I mean to be some day," she corrected.

Bill had not yet returned, but before they had been at the house five minutes a Mexican drove up in a rackety flivver. Joan had gone to get out of her flying togs, but Mary Lou hailed the man.

"Any news, Felipe? Have they found Mr. Hauck?" she asked in Spanish.

"Si, señora," the man answered, and poured out a jet of rapid explanation.

Buzzards circling in the sky had led one of the searching parties to the scene of the tragedy.

Chicago Home Show to Open at Coliseum Today; Runs for Week

The rule of the goldfish has been challenged by the Chicago Aquarium society. The society will present at the National House and Garden exposition, opening today in the Coliseum, a piscatorial beauty show featuring such fish as the angel, bumble bee, and zebra fish and the kissing Gourami.

The general plan of the exposition runs to large landscape settings flanked by more than 100 commercial displays of building equipment, furnishings, and decorative and time saving devices. American Legion auxiliaries will exhibit handicraft of veterans at Hines hospital. The Chicago Business Men's Art club will have a gallery of paintings.

Mayor Kelly has proclaimed the week of the show as Chicago Home Show week. The opening ceremonies will be held at 2 today.

Your Stars' ★ Today ★

—By WYNN—

Saturday, May 13.

Today looks better than recent days, provided we can keep our feelings under control. Tendency to let off steam, with no benefit to any one ensuing. Evening hours show improvement.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead if today is your birthday looks active, with confidential interests strong. Seek to widen your life and mind. Danger: Oct. 30-Nov. 11, March 8-26, 1940.

Tomorrow.

Good for planning ahead, but hold back when personal feelings rise.

Charts Offer Tape Measure Figure Gauge

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Recently we've been deluged with queries about figure proportions, which we take as a healthy sign. We like it when women become interested in their tape measure reports. That sounds more like business to us than does just weight talk.

So today let's review a few of the "ideal" measurement figures we have collected from different sources.

From actual statistics compiled in the physical education department of the American Woman's club we have the following good matron's figures:

YOUNG MATRON.

[Average]—Age, 28-35 years. Height, 5 feet 6½ inches. Weight, 134-138 pounds. Arm, 11½ inches. Bust, 36 inches. Waist, 29½ inches. Hips, 38½ inches. Thigh, 21 inches.

[Perfection] — Age, 28-35 years. Height, 5 feet 6½ inches. Weight, 134 pounds. Arm, 11½ inches. Bust, 35 inches. Waist, 29 inches. Hips, 37 inches. Thigh, 21 inches.

OLDER MATRON.

[Average]—Age, 35-40 years. Height, 5 feet 6½ inches. Weight, 143½ pounds. Arm, 12¼ inches. Bust, 36½ inches. Waist, 31½ inches. Hips, 39½ inches. Thigh, 22½ inches.

[Perfection] — Age, 35-40 years. Height, 5 feet 6½ inches. Weight, 138-140 pounds. Arm, 12 inches. Bust, 36 inches. Waist, 28 inches. Hips, 38 inches. Thigh, 21 inches.

MODEL TYPE.

These are the measurements of June Cox, a John Powers model, whose beauty has been acclaimed by experts.

Although she weighs only 124 pounds [she is 20 years old], according to life insurance statistics she should weigh 135 pounds. Miss Cox is 5 feet 6¾ inches tall. Her head size is 21½ inches; neck, 12 inches; upper arm, 9½ inches; bust, 34 inches; waist, 24 inches; wrist, 6 inches; hips, 34 inches; thigh, 19½ inches; calf, 13½ inches; ankle, 8 inches.

Polish Official, Wife Welcomed to Chicago; Big Reception Today

An attractive Polish couple who were welcomed in Chicago yesterday are Col. Alexander Bobkowski, vice minister of communication in Poland, and his wife, who is the only daughter of the president of Poland, Ignaz Moscicki. The Bobkowskis came to the United States for the opening of the Polish pavilion at the New York fair.

They will be the especial guests at a large reception this afternoon at the Polish consulate on Lake Shore drive. They dined with the Polish consul, Dr. Waclaw Gawronski and Mme. Gawronska last night, at the consulate, and will be their guests at dinner again tonight at the Tavern before taking the train to Buffalo. There was a luncheon yesterday for Col. Bobkowski given by railroad executives at the Continental Illinois bank, and at the same time the Polish Women's alliance gave a luncheon for Mme. Bobkowska.

Last night Col. Bobkowski spoke at a reception the alliance gave for him and Mme. Bobkowska at 1309 North Ashland avenue. Today the visitors will attend a luncheon the Council of Polish Organizations is giving at the Palmer House.

The William M. McGoverns are having a house-warming in their new home at 1412 Judson avenue, Evanston, tomorrow, from 5 to 9 o'clock.

Give Party Tomorrow for Charles F. Boweys.

The junior Ray Prescott Johnsons are entertaining at cocktails tomorrow afternoon for the Charles F. Boweys, who were married a few months ago. Since coming to Chicago Mrs. Bowey has become interested in the Margaret Etter crèche, of which her sister-in-law, Mrs. Donald F. Bowey, is a member of the board. A rummage sale for the benefit of the crèche will be held next Thursday at 420 North Clark street.

Countess Guy de Baillet Latour of Brussels, Belgium, the former Miss Marianna Dunn of Washington, D. C., is arriving Monday to visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III., in Lake Forest.

The countess, who is in Washington for a visit with her parents, the James C. Dunns, will be here just a week. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Watson Armour, who have moved to Lake Forest for the summer, will entertain in a small way for their niece while she is here.

Mrs. Burnaby Leaves for East Tomorrow.

Mrs. Algernon Burnaby, who came to Chicago on May 2 expecting to stay only two days, enjoyed seeing relatives and old friends so much that she prolonged her stay until tomorrow. When she leaves here she will return to Southboro, Mass., for another visit with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Lindsay, and then will go to York Harbor, Me., for the summer.

Mrs. Burnaby, the mother of Henry Field, will not return to her home in England until autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Haines [Marguerite Fralick Wakem] became the parents of a daughter on Wednesday at the Passavant hospital. The baby has a half sister and brother, Miss Celeste Wakem and Wallace S. Wakem.

The daughter born on May 6 to Mr. and Mrs. John Dudley Clemens [Louise Stanton] in Erie, Pa., has been named Linden Collier Clemens. The baby, who has a sister, is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Stanton of Wayne.

"Little Girl" Effect Created in New Sweater

By JEAN MACDONALD.

For that "little girl" effect so sought after at the present time, we present the two-toned sweater with the turnover collar. Definitly youthful, it is a simple hand knitted garment which may be worn by women of all ages. The ribbing around the bottom, cuffs, and turnover collar is white, while the body of the sweater is a rich black or navy. The sizes available for this sweater are 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions in knitting the "little girl" sweater, No. X-260, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

ON WAFFLES AND WAFFLE-MAKING—There's a waffle for every occasion. Try codfish waffles for breakfast [just add flaked fish to the batter], cheese waffles with broiled tomato and bacon for lunch, and cake waffles à la mode for dessert at dinner. But not all on the same day, of course!

Don't use much sugar if you want your waffles crisp—none at all or not more than a tablespoonful for plain waffles. When you eat them with something sweet, such as sirup, you don't miss sugar from the batter.

Plain waffles topped with creamed foods—chicken, dried beef, crabmeat, ham, asparagus, peas, or other vegetables—make excellent luncheon dishes, simple to prepare.

NEW KIND OF DOUBLE BOILER—It's a revolutionary type, for it's in one piece, not two. Of fine quality cast aluminum, it has a second bottom insulated from the rest of the pan by an air space. The special bottom is designed to conduct heat evenly and to eliminate any danger of scorching or burning. Puddings, sauces, cereals, and other foods which are prepared usually in two piece containers cook in less time this new way. The utensil may be used for vegetables, too.

ANOTHER COFFEE FILTER—This is something different, too, a china filter, for use in any glass coffeemaker. Works with a little spring and filters coffee to amber clearness. Easy to use, easy to clean, and makes good coffee. Fifty cents is what it costs.

Call Superior 0200 or write this department if you're interested in knowing what stores carry these items.

STRAWBERRY-PINEAPPLE SAUCE—This is an elegant sauce to serve hot or cold on puddings, ice creams, cakes, and other desserts. Slice a cup of fresh strawberries. Combine a cup of sugar and 1½ cups pineapple juice [unsweetened] and boil to a thick sirup and add strawberries. Cook about five minutes longer. Serve hot or cold. This amount will top six servings of something good and make it even "gooder."

MOTHER'S DAY SUGGESTION—Since tomorrow has been labeled Mother's day, it might be an idea to take the dinner getting job off mother's shoulders for once and give her orders to loll around in the living room with a book and the radio while other members of the family get a meal in her honor.

Not too difficult for daughter, son, or husband is this good Sunday menu: Roast leg of lamb, potatoes browned with the meat, buttered asparagus, apple, celery, and grape salad, hot rolls [buy them if you can't make them], ice cream with fresh sweetened strawberries, plain "store" cookies. And, to make it a three course affair, you might start off with chilled fruit juice.

Remember to roast the lamb without a cover in a slow oven, about 325 degrees. Allow about 30 to 35 minutes to the pound.

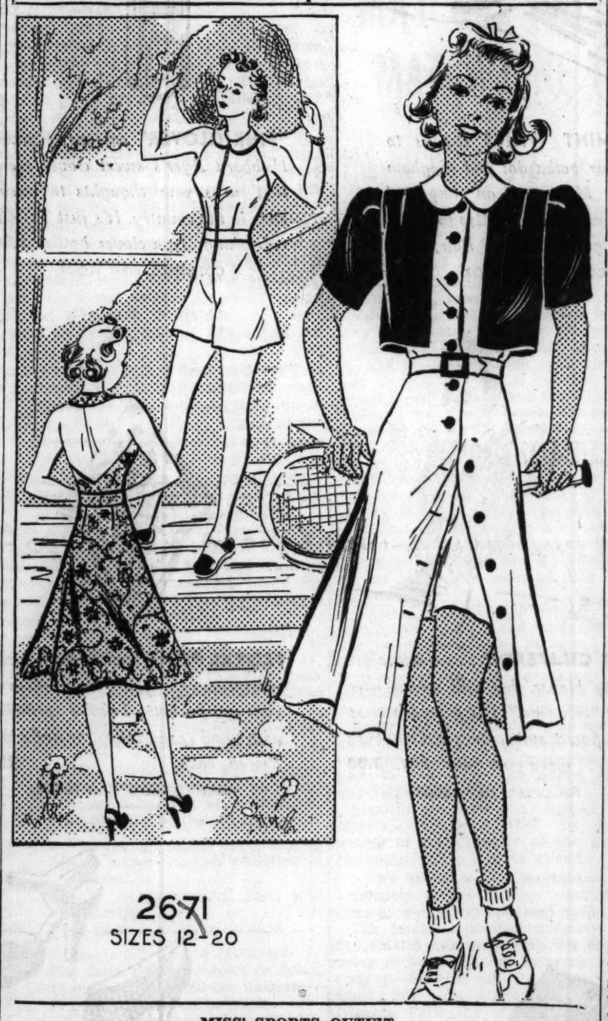
Summertime Sports Costume



MISS' SPORTS OUTFIT.

It's the middle of May and time you were thinking seriously of your summertime sports clothes. For tennis, cycling, golf, hiking, and the beach nothing could be more practical and attractive than a three piece costume. Usually the three pieces consist of shorts, shirt, and skirt, but we're being original in this costume by cutting the shorts and blouse in one piece, adding the wrap-around skirt and making the third item a bolero.

The one-piece garment has a halter neckline and bare back. It may have buttons or a slide fastener extending from under the Peter Pan collar. The skirt is buttoned and there is a belted waistline. The bolero has no collar and extends only to the waist. It has short puffed sleeves.

All sports cottons and the heavier washable silks make up well in this version, and you can mix colors and fabrics to suit yourself.

Style No. 2671 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Clotilde patterns are 10 cents each. Address orders to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Mundelein Will Dedicate Wilmette Church Tomorrow

Cardinal Mundelein will dedicate the new $200,000 church of St. Francis Xavier, Wilmette, at a noon service tomorrow. The cardinal will be assisted by the Rev. M. D. McNamara, the pastor, and by the Rev. Bernard Brady of St. Brendan's church, former Wilmette pastor. The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Francis J. Magner of St. Mary's church, Evanston.

This 'Career' Woman Misses Love, Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Do you think there is such a thing as a state of mind one must have in order to attract romance? Do you think that the lack of it might be what's wrong with me? I'll explain myself.

"I'm at an age at which talk of romance may sound utterly ridiculous, with a 38th birthday not far away. You can guess from this that I started out with big career ambitions when that talk was more generally in the air than I find it today.

"Yes, I came to the big city when I was 18, intent on nothing so much as making a successful career. Well, I've accomplished that. I have a fine position, command an excellent salary, and am financially independent. But that was my only ambition up until comparatively recently. Now, to be perfectly frank, thoughts of a loveless old age assail me.

"I have an apartment that friends exclaim over because of its attractiveness. I have been a collector, in a way, and a slow and careful buyer, so that I have accumulated some charming things. But there I sit in the midst of my achieved ambition wishing, wishing for something, some one.

"So obsessed about making a success of my work was I that I neglected making friends when that chance was more easily available than now. Nor have I, as so many women like me have, dependent nieces or nephews to fill my life. I had but one sister and she was childless and died a few years ago. My parents died years ago, so a terribly forlorn stretch of time unfolds before me.

"I'm not seeking advice as much as I am wondering how many other women of my day and age are in the same position? How many of us, now that we have our so-called success, would exchange it all for the normal way of a woman's life? How many of us, I wonder, can recapture that state of mind I spoke of in the beginning that invites companionship.

"Although I asked the question, I am fairly well convinced that is what is wrong with me. What do you say?

"DISCONCERTED."

We agree, yes, Disconcerted, that the state of mind that invites romance it vital, but we can't see why a woman of your intelligence, with your charming setting, and your financial independence, couldn't win an agreeable companionship, provided you dismiss thoughts of attempting to recover the pure gold of young romance.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Last night I played in a match-point tournament with my wife and a hand turned up that caused a memorable battle which is still raging. I have decided to let you tell us who was to blame for the atrocious contract we finally reached. Sitting South, I do not feel that I was entirely to blame.

"The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	1 spade	Pass	3 diamonds
Pass	3 spades	Pass	4 clubs
Pass	5 clubs	Pass	6 spades
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

"My wife claims that my first bid should have been one no trump and, failing to show heart strength then, I must bid three no trump over her forcing three diamonds. She says she went to a slam thinking all my strength was in the black suits. The play was bad, as I went down four tricks—one more than I should have. However, when we marked the score on the traveling sheet we found that the majority of tables had wound up with bids of five or six diamonds or spades, one redoubled, going down four tricks, and two others the same as we were. I did not feel quite as bad then, as there are many pretty fair players in the group. Please comment. N. E. B., Wisconsin."

The difficulty in this hand arose largely from a psychological factor that one finds constantly at work around the bridge table. I refer to North's reaction from South's rebid of spades. Obviously, North was a victim of "wish fulfilment," i. e., she wanted to believe that South's spade suit was a strong rebiddable suit, hence did believe it. She overlooked what so many other players overlook—that after a forcing bid partner may be in a position where the least of evils is to rebid a suit that he would not voluntarily rebid.

In this specific case South was somewhat up against it when North forced with three diamonds. He might bid three hearts, but this would be highly ambiguous to North, who might read it as a mere announcement of heart control, not as a legitimate five card or longer suit. Three no trump was out of the question, just as one no trump over East's opening bid would have been an atrocious call. To bid no trump at any stage of the bidding, when holding 5-5-3 distribution, is usually one of the worst crimes in bridge. North should have been quite satisfied with the contract of five clubs.

Australians to Visit City on Way to Welcome King

Two Australians who have been invited to the British embassy garden party in Washington on June 8 for King George and Queen Elizabeth are George Bingham and his daughter, Miss Rosalie Bingham. They will arrive in Chicago next Friday to visit Mr. Bingham's daughter Mrs. Martha Woodard, 102 East Bellevue place.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Irving S. Florsheim of 334 Wellington avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Robert K. Schwab, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Schwab of New York. Miss Florsheim will be graduated next month from the Mar[illegible] for college in Connecticut. She also has attended St. Margaret's in Connecticut and the Girls' Latin school in Chicago. Mr. Schwab, who is in business in Chicago, and Miss Florsheim plan to be married in June.

The Housewife

Some new lamps are shaped with glass bases filled with lovely artificial flowers. Tiny pink rose buds and lilies of the valley, or deep crimson roses, or old fashioned nose-gays are made the more charming when the light is turned on. These delectable lamps are, of course, perfect for a be-flounced and be-ruffled dressing table. They can be used on a chest of drawers, too, or one of them may be placed on a bedside table.

The shades are dainty and mostly of white or eggshell silk or taffeta or parchment. EDITH WEIGLE.

Teach a Child Fearlessness, Not Timidity

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

On my first visit to a nursery school the thing that impressed me most I remember, was the physical fearlessness and venturesomeness of the children.

Here were youngsters climbing on boxes, mounting small ladders, and going up and down stairs and sliding down the wooden inclines with a sureness and a balance that were surprising, if you don't know children. Of course, the watchful eyes of the teacher were ever on them, but they did not know it.

Little children can be kept fearless or made fearful to a great degree by the attitude of their mother. If she surrounds her baby by phrases such as "Take care, you'll hurt yourself," "Look out, that's dangerous," etc., she can, if he is sensitive or impressionable, kill his initiative and adventurousness and make him hesitant and fearful.

Of course, there are many things he can do that are dangerous, but with very little children it is necessary to guard them against such dangers by our continual presence. And there are other things they can do that are dangerous only if we are not there to keep a watchful eye on them.

A little girl of three was going up a long flight of stairs to her bedroom, alone. Under her arm was a large rubber ball, in her hand was clutched her wooden engine, and in the other one, the one nearest the banister, was her teddy bear. Laboriously, and puffing a little, but sure-footedly she made her way up the stairs and nearly reached the top.

Her father and mother both happened to glance up at the same moment. Her father's first impulse was to run after her or cry out some warning. But he realized that the baby would be startled and might turn around and lose her balance.

The mother, however, not quite so quick witted, cried out suddenly in fear: "Denise, put down your teddy bear and take hold of the rail. You'll fall." And Denise, startled, put down her teddy bear, turned around, lost her balance, clutched for the rail, and obeyed her mother by falling.

It was only a few steps, but Denise lost more than her balance that time. She lost a little bit of faith in herself.

Fearlessness is something to foster. It may be the foundation stone on which later initiative, fearlessness, and sureness, and other qualities we want our children to possess, are based.

Elementary Press Group Will See Tribune Movie

Chicago's youngest newspaper men and women, the Elementary Press association, will see THE TRIBUNE'S sound film, "From Trees to TRIBUNES," today in the Morrison hotel. The organization, an association of 200 grade school newspaper staffs and their sponsors, is holding its fourth annual exhibit and conference. Dr. William H. Johnson, president of the board of education, will speak Wednesday at the closing dinner assembly.

Music Notes

Frederick Stock will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra tonight in the closing concert of the Cornell May Music festival at Mount Vernon, Ia. This has been an annual event of the festival since 1903.

A benefit reception and concert for the University of Illinois' research and educational hospital, 1819 Polk street, will be held at the Cordon club tonight under the auspices of the woman's auxiliary of the University of Illinois college of medicine. Soloists are Bruce Foote, baritone, and Sherman Schoonmaker, pianist, both of the University of Illinois school of music.

The Chicago City Opera company announced yesterday that Naomi Cullen Cook, Chicago soprano, has been signed for the rôle of Marguerite in Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust." The performance is to be in concert form and will be given on a Sunday afternoon in November.

WHITE SOX STOP RALLY IN NINTH; BEAT INDIANS, 4-3

BROWN RESCUES RIGNEY WITH BASES FILLED

Allen Loses Temper and the Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Clint Brown, the old doctor of the White Sox pitching staff, had to be called into conference again yesterday in Comiskey Park. The old doctor was presented with an alarming case made up of three Cleveland Indians on the bases and with only one out in the ninth and the Sox only one run in front. He quickly applied his magic powers, the three enemy runners died on the spots they occupied when the doctor appeared and the James Dykes' third place crew triumphed by 4 to 3 in the series opener. It was Brown's eighth appearance of the year in the rôle of a trouble shooter.

The reason the doctor got a call was Johnny Rigney, the River Forest phenom, who after yielding three runs in the first two innings, devoted most of the remaining sessions to getting out of trouble. For seven innings he was successful as an artful dodger but when the ninth arrived his manager decided it was time for assistance. Brown supplied it by striking out Ben Chapman on four pitches, a happening over which the Indians' fly chaser objected so loudly he was chased from the game. Then the old doctor tossed out the next batter, Rigney was credited with his third victory of the season.

A Sad Day for Allen.

Winning alone was pleasant enough for the Sox, but their fun was doubled by the fact that the man they whipped was Johnny Allen, the stormy right hander who remained for seven innings, most of which were as loaded with trouble as some of the Rigney chapters. Allen's day was spoiled right at the jump when the Sox slipped two runs across. He recovered the lead immediately, but eventually ran into the payoff. It came in the fifth inning when Rip Radcliff, Marvin Owen and Luke Appling jarred him with hits. And the jarring was so effective that Allen lost control of his temper and forced the winning run home.

Two of the three men who did the best they could to make good Allen's pre-battle prediction that his arm wouldn't last more than five innings, also caused him annoyance in the earlier stages. Singles by Owen and Appling caused the temperamental right hander to separate himself from two runs in the first inning.

Tresh's Throw Costs Run.

The Indians were required to produce only one hit in exchange for their first inning run. Weatherly walked and remained on first long enough to see Pytlak fan and Trosky fly to Walker. Then he stole second and continued to third on Tresh's bad throw. Campbell hit a two bagger down the right field line and Weatherly scored.

Allen's fielding as well as his pitching was helpful to the Sox in their half when they scored twice. Owen singled to center. Walker tapped to the pitcher and a double play was at hand, but Allen heaved the ball into center field, Owen taking third. A hit and run play pulled Grimes away from short and Appling singled through the vacant spot, Owen scoring. Walker dashed home on Bejma's fly to Chapman.

The Indians moved back into the TOM SHARKEY, the old heavyweight fighter, had no use for a loser, as this tale, probably new to the present generation, aptly illustrates. . . . Tom dropped into a famous oyster and fish house on Clark street in his boxing days and ordered broiled lobster. . . . The waiter brought a live one for Tom's inspection. . . . "Where's the other claw?" asked Sharkey, noting a missing member. . . . "Lobsters get into fights in transit, Mr. Sharkey," the waiter explained. "He probably lost it in a brawl." . . . "Take this bum away," commanded the fighter, "and bring me the winner." . . . John Behr, coach of Chicago's Golden Gloves squad, who handled America's team in the 1936 Olympic games, undoubtedly will be chosen to lead Uncle Sam's boxers in the 1940 meet at Helsingfors. . . . Bill Watson, Michigan's shotput champion, emits a loud grunt each time he tosses the weight. . . . Rudy Simonich of Ironwood, Mich., brother of Ed Simonich, Notre Dame full back, will enroll at Boston college in September. . . . He is a 200 pound lineman, who also excels in basketball and track. . . . Red Kenney, 17 year old Cedar Rapids American Legion junior baseball star, recently struck out 34 men in 12 innings. . . . In a seven inning game he fanned 20, winning by 8 to 0. . . . He struck out 14 in a five inning contest, but lost, 4 to 3.

An annuity in which Monty Stratton invested part of the money received from the benefit game between the Cubs and Sox will pay him $22,000 when he reaches his 42d birthday. . . . He used the remainder of the fund to pay off an $11,000 mortgage on his Texas farm. . . . Since Lon Warneke pitched that one-hitter against the Cubs his roommate, Don Gutteridge, has been functioning as his valet. . . . The two have a deal whereby if one turns in an outstanding performance, the other takes the rôle of lackey. . . . A total of 154,425 attended 237 showings of the National Professional Football league's movie, "Champions of the Gridiron," during April. . . . The Boston park district, which added the film to its regular recreational program, gave 60 showings to an aggregate audience of 90,000. . . . The Bears lead in advance bookings with 116. . . . Paul Waner has wagered six hats he will hit .340 this season. . . . Stella Walsh recently broke her own world record for 60 meters when she ran it in 7.2 seconds during a Polish Olympic club meet in Cleveland.

My Ma.

She found so little time to go to school,
For peasants took no stock in bookish lore—
Hard toil from dawn to dusk was grandpa's rule,
Life was too full for her to be a bore.
Then later on she had to make a home
For pa and us in this new wonderland;
She cooked, and sewed, and scrubbed till all things shone,
Sent us to church on Sundays in a band.
She had no time for pleasure or for play,
Each day was dedicated to her brood—
Her greatest blow came when pa passed away,
It even now o'ershadows some gay mood.
From my proud heart this tribute I bestow—
My ma's the grandest lady that I know.

—Anne C. Korpics.

My Mother.

Because you understand I always bring you
All my broken hopes and tears to mend;
Because you understand I always tell you
Of my fears and know you'll comprehend.

If I seek pity or compassion ofttimes
And my courage falters overnight;
Because you understand my heart will call you,
Hoping you can help me find the light.

When with you greener pastures seem to beckon,
Twilight falls in softer shades of rose;
Because you understand I see a newer
Loveliness in everything that grows.

The golden starlight has a warmer welcome,
Summer roses bloom in deeper tone;
Because you understand a silver rainbow
Shelters me when I am so alone.

Although it's hard to say good-by in parting,
As you leave and gayly wave your hand;
A benediction seems to fall around me,
It's because I know you understand.

The Boy in the Blue Beret.

I'm in love with a boy
Whose sweet, dimpled smile
Has stolen my heart away;
My head's in a whirl
Since I'm under the spell
Of that boy in the blue beret!

The sheer joy of living
Just shines in his eyes
Like sparkling turquoise pools,
And the things that he does
With innocent charm
I treasure as my precious jewels.

He's only a baby
And still very wee,
But I think with a thrill of the day
When I hear from his lips
That dearest word "Mom"—
My boy in the blue beret.

—Milly Walton.

My Ma's Old Fashioned.

She's never been seen in a night club,
She'd rather hear Chopin than Shaw,
Her heart has belonged to no "daddy,"
But she's certainly stuck on my pa.

She says you can have Mr. Crosby,
His horses, his shirts, and his croon;
She'd rather hear pa when he yodels
"By the Light of the Silvery Moon."

Ma says the old things are returning
[She's never stopped wearing a snood],
And, try as she might, she's still doubtful
That toast à la Melba is food.

Yes, ma is a trifle old fashioned,
She doesn't touch ciggies or drink,
But she's got it on all the moderns—
It's easy for my ma to think.

—Adam Antine of Archer Road.

Mother's Day.

The children all came flocking home
To honor Mother's day;
Frank and Rita, Maud and Ed,
Their homage came to pay
At the shrine of motherhood—
A lovely thing to do,
And, of course, to make it happier
They brought the children, too.

Frank brought four, Rita three,
And Ed, you know, has five;
So, really, what with Maudie's twins,
The place was quite alive;
So mother baked and scrubbed and cooked
For many days before,
That everything might be "the tops"
Within her shining door.

And when they came she wouldn't think
Of letting them pitch in,
"Land sakes, no—you're company,
That would be a sin,"
So the children talked and visited
With ardor and with zeal
While mother in the kitchen
Cooked a great big whopping meal.

L'Envoi.

And now they've all gone home again
While mother, worn and gray,
Is recovering in a hospital
From her "holiday."

—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

When Dreams Come True.

My mom always makes my dreams come true
When things seem hopeless and dismal, too;
While holding my head in her careworn hands
She tells me how much she understands.

When your best friends forget and leave you
And you find your sweetheart is untrue,
Just to look at mom's smile on her weary face
Makes all my cares so easy to erase.

When my castles begin to tumble around me
And my dream boat is tossed upon the sea
Mom is always there to see me thru—
It's mom that makes those dreams come true.

KING AND QUEEN MAY SEE POLO MATCH JUNE 11

They'll Be in New York and They're Invited.

BY JACK FELT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 12.—Eastern polo fans today were discussing the interesting possibility that King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of England may witness one of the matches between Great Britain and the United States at the Meadowbrook club near Westbury June 4, 11, and 18.

No reigning British sovereign ever has visited any part of this country, much less witnessed a match on an American polo field, but today it appeared that the British royal couple's precedent setting visit to the United States may be followed by another precedent certain to fire the interest of this area's thousands of polo enthusiasts.

Officials of the United States Polo association, sponsor and arranger of the international cup matches, admitted today that it is possible the king and queen may be among the thousands of spectators at the second match of the series, on June 11.

Robert E. Strawbridge Jr., chairman of the U. S. P. A., said he personally had extended a formal invitation to the king and queen and was awaiting a reply.

Strawbridge said he wished it clearly understood that he had doubts of the prospect of the king and queen being able to attend.

No Word from Consulate.

Officials at the British consulate general would not comment today.

The carefully planned itinerary of the British monarchs calls for their being in New York on Saturday and Sunday, June 10 and 11. They will come into the United States at Niagara Falls the evening of June 7 and will proceed to Washington, where they will stay till the evening of June 9. That night they will entrain for New York.

On June 11, day of the second match in the international polo cup series, their majesties, at present, are scheduled to remain at Hyde Park, President Roosevelt's Hudson river estate. That night their special train will carry them back to Canada, preparatory to the homeward sailing set for June 15.

There has been no explanation of what may be packed into the program of events for the "day at Hyde Park." A motor trip to Long Island for the match easily could be fitted into the program. Also, on the side of possibility, are the facts that King George is a fine rider and an ardent polo fan.

Close Series Predicted.

Polo fans are looking forward to one of the most keenly fought series in the long history of the international competition.

This year, it is possible for the United States to put on the field a team having the highest handicap rating in international cup history. Four ten-goal American stars are candidates, but it will not be known until a day or so before the opening match whether or not this forty goal combination will be selected to ride against the thirty-one goal British lineup.

Thirteen American players of six goal rating or more comprise the field invited by the U. S. P. A. to try for the team. Three of these, Strawbridge said, have found it impossible to participate. The remaining ten include the veteran star, Tommy Hitchcock Jr., ten goal man; Michael G. Phipps, Stewart Iglehart, and Cecil Smith, all three ten goalers, and Raymond Guest, eight; G. H. Bostwick, seven; Winston Guest, seven; Billy Post, seven; Ebby Gerry, seven, and C. V. [Sonny] Whitney, six.

Veteran observers are of the opinion that this year's British team is capable of making the most serious bid since 1914. The team with its composite rating of thirty-one goals, is composed of Bob Skene, No. 1, seven goals; Aidan Roark, No. 2, eight goals; Gerald Balding, No. 3, and field leader, eight goals, and Eric Tyrrell-Martin, back, eight goals.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Among the many representatives of the sports world at last night's eighth International Golden Gloves bouts in the Stadium were Will Harridge, president of the American league, and his son, Will Jr.

May Eliminate Show Betting on Preakness

Baltimore, Md., May 12.—[Special.]—Because the Johnstown-Gilded Knight entry is such a standout in the small field, Pimlico officials took steps today to save themselves thousands of dollars by eliminating show betting on the $50,000 added Preakness tomorrow.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, president of the course, applied to the state racing commission for permission to limit the wagering to straight and place bets and a decision was expected tomorrow morning.

With only seven entered in the race and three of them an entry trained by Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, the Preakness becomes a five horse race for betting purposes. A bet on Johnstown, the Kentucky Derby winner, gives the better undefeated Gilded Knight and Challenge as running mates.

A Cinch Bet.

It is inconceivable that both Johnstown and Gilded Knight should finish worse than third. As a result a lot of sure-thing betters planned to bet the entry to show and pick up one dollar for every ten bet with practically no risk, whatever. After all banks don't pay 10 per cent for a two minute investment.

Mutuel tracks must pay off at least ten cents on a dollar, even though the money in the pool does not cover the payoff. The mutuels must dig into their treasury to make up the difference. With everybody betting every dollar he could beg or borrow, the loss, it is believed, would run high in the thousands. The minimum mutuel payoff is $2.20 for a $2 ticket.

Johnstown paid $3.20, $3 and $2.80 in the Derby last week, but eight horses started.

Show Betting Is Rule.

Almost without exception there is show betting on five horse races at mutuel tracks. In a four horse race betting is usually restricted to straight and place, as it was at Havre de Grace recently.

When War Admiral ran in a three horse race at Hialeah last winter only straight wagers were permitted. War Admiral won at $2.40, or 20 cents on the dollar.

Finnish Consul Is Jubilant as Lehtinen Wins

Finnish Consul Elmer A. Forsberg was so jubilant when Olli Lehtinen defeated Willie Moon of Chicago in the flyweight bout of the eighth international Golden Gloves show last night that he congratulated the little fellow before he reached the dressing room. Vice Consul Ernest Knuti also complimented Lehtinen on his fine performance, an achievement which avenged Olli's setback at the hands of Walter Cavalieri in last year's international 112 pound battle.

Just about every prominent person in the religious, political, judicial, medical, business, industrial, and sports world was on hand to see the bouts.

Will Harridge, president of the American league, and his son, Bill Jr., reached the arena long before the first fighters entered the ring. So did Judge Cornelius Harrington of the Circuit court and his three sons, Jim, Neil Jr., and Bob.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, former head of the Illinois Athletic commission and National Boxing association, also took his young son to the show.

Another father and son combination in the crowd were the Phil Collinses. Collins is in charge of the National American Legion convention to be held in Chicago next September.

State Senators William J. Connors, Richard V. Graham, and Peter Granata had ringside seats.

Golf was represented by Alex Cunningham, Jock Hutchison, and Dick Metz. Cunningham is the veteran North Shore Country club professional and president of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association of America. Hutchison is pro at Glen View.

Elmer Layden and Mrs. Layden headed a group from Notre Dame. The party included Bill Sheehan, former Notre Dame baseball and football player; Joe Boland, line coach; Joe Benda, end coach; Chet Grant, backfield coach, and George Keogan, basketball coach. Their wives were with them.

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois boxing commission, was host to a party which included Herbert Loeb, vice president of Stop and Shop, and Joseph Lizak, member of the state industrial commission. Triner occupied a seat in the press row alongside his co-commissioners, Sheldon Clark and James R. Fitzpatrick.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil reached his first row seat at 9 p. m. He was accompanied by Dr. Richard Tivnen.

The reign has ended!

Last night, eight years to the day after Chicago's Golden Gloves boxers first ascended the throne of international supremacy, a sturdy team from Europe ended Chicago's reign, five bouts to three. Twice Chicago previously had been tied, but no foreign international squad ever had won.

Last night was the first defeat for a Chicagoland Golden Gloves team since New York won an intercity match in Madison Square Garden in 1934.

More than 20,000, a near capacity crowd, watched the colorful series, the eighth international bouts sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Start of a Tough Evening.

They saw Europe win the opening bout as Finland's Olli Lehtinen whipped Willie Moon. They saw the score tied by the surprising defeat of Guido Nardecchia, captain of the visiting team, and then, almost scarcely believing, the thousands watched Europe roll on to a 4 to 1 advantage, pause momentarily while Jimmy Reeves, Chicago's middleweight, disposed of Anton Raadik of Estonia, and then go on to victory when Luigi Musina took the deciding bout.

That Altus Allen, Chicago's heavyweight, who was outweighed twenty-two pounds, whipped Nemesio Lazzari of Italy to make the final score, Europe 5, Chicago 3, was an anticlimax. Hundreds already had started for the exits, despite the valiant efforts to Chicago's Allen to drop the Italian. Throughout the final round Allen shot his right repeatedly, but his lumbering rival, badly hurt at least twice, staggered through to the finish.

Officials Please Fans.

Six of the eight fights were so evenly contested that in each, the result could not be determined until the last rally. And to the credit of Chicago's referees and judges, let it be added that the majority of the crowd approved all decisions.

When Chester Ellis, the Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, took the decision from Nardecchia, Europe's captain, there was a mild, brief boo, more in sympathy than in derision. That disapproval was a bit more pronounced, without more basis for argument, when Paddy Dowdall of Ireland, was awarded the decision over Roy Lewis.

Europe's boxers won because its boys displayed amazing ability to sustain their attacks for the full three rounds. They had said they would end Chicago's amateur supremacy and they did it by determination and a will to win that carried the majority to victory.

What's a Defeat or Two?

Not even the unexpected defeat suffered by Nardecchia disturbed the others. Each succeeding boy fought as if he personally was responsible for defeat or victory of the entire squad—as indeed, he was in the final standings. And this factor carried Europe to its long sought goal, a conquest of the eight boxers representing more than half of the states of this country.

The presentation of the rival squads was the high point in the ceremonies preceding the international fights. Promptly at 9:50, at

CARDINALS BEAT REDS, 8 TO 7, TO INCREASE LEAD

Johnny Mize Hits Two Home Runs.

Cincinnati, O., May 12.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cards strengthened their National league lead with home runs today, defeating Cincinnati 8 to 7 in an attack led by Johnny Mize and Pepper Martin, who, between them, accounted for seven scores.

Martin hit his homer in the third with Mort Cooper aboard and in the fifth Mize hit the first of his two homers to climax a five hit five run outburst that also included three singles and Stu Martin's triple. Score:

Cubs Do Battle with Pirates; Lee Will Pitch

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 12.—Big Bill Lee, only Cub pitcher to win as many as three games, only one to lose as many as three, and only topflight Cub tosser to score a victory on the late lamented eastern trip, will try his hand against the Pirates here tomorrow. It will be the first game of a three game Chicago-Pittsburgh series before the Cubs return home Tuesday to entertain the eastern clubs.

Bob Klinger will pitch for Pittsburgh.

The Cubs face the Pirates with considerable confidence. They have won eight straight from them in National league competition last fall and at the start of the current season.

Earl Can Beat Them.

In the belated Wrigley field opener on April 24, Earl Whitehill bested the Pittsburghers, 6 to 2, and the following day Lee was the victor in a 5 to 3 engagement. In this earlier Lee performance, Big Bill yielded a run in the first inning and two more in the eighth. In the third and final game of the April series, Gene Lillard was a 3 to 1 victor in his major league pitching debut.

The aforesaid three games were units in an eight game Pittsburgh losing streak. Since losing eight of their first nine games, however, the Pirates have shown marked improvement and had the best record of the four western teams which have just concluded their first eastern invasion.

Hartnett Hits Rumors.

Manager Hartnett tonight declared an open season on rumor mongers. He exploded when, after telling friends he believed the National league season would be "one of the closest in history, he was asked about the truth of a report that there is dissension on the Cub team.

"Just because some of the boys weren't hitting and I benched them somebody thought up the idea we were having trouble," he said. "Because I benched Billy Herman they said there was dissension. But nobody mentioned anything about Herman's getting back into the lineup next day. They just shut up."

Browns Win, 1-0, as Kramer Yields 2 Hits

St. Louis, Mo., May 12.—(AP)—In one of the best pitched games of the season, Rookie Jack Kramer held the Detroit Tigers to two singles today and topped his performance by driving in the only run to give the St. Louis Browns a 1 to 0 victory.

The Browns scored in the fifth after Harlond Clift walked and went to second on Joe Glenn's single. Johnny Berardino struck out and Don Heffner fouled out, but Kramer singled to left, scoring Clift. Score: lead, 3 to 2, in the second. Keltner led off with a single to left and Shilling fanned. Grimes drove a two bagger over Kreevich's head, Keltner scoring. Allen flied deep to Kreevich and Grimes sprinted to third. Weatherly slapped a bounder to Rigney, who reached for the ball but couldn't hold it. He tried to recover it, but slipped and sat down. It went for a cheap hit and Grimes scored.

Sox Halt Rally in Ninth; Beat Indians, 4 to 3

Appling Delivers Again.

The fifth inning, in which Allen was forced to surrender two runs, began with Radcliff's single to center. Owen tried to bunt but fouled off a couple so took a swing and singled to right, Radcliff moving to third. Radcliff scored on Walker's fly to Weatherly. Appling responded again on a hit and run play, his single to right sending Owen to third. Bejma walked, filling the bases. Rosenthal also walked and Owen was forced in, putting the Sox ahead, 4 to 3. Then Mr. Allen was very fortunate. Kreevich smacked a liner which Shilling leaped to catch and Bejma was doubled off second.

The Indians got nothing from two singles with none out in the third. A double at the start of the fourth availed them nothing. But the escape staged by Rigney in the seventh exceeded his previous deeds. Pytlak opened with a triple off the left field bricks and Trosky drew a pass. Campbell fouled to Owen, who an instant lated speared Campbell's line drive. Keltner, with a 3 and 2 count, flied to Walker and Rigney's one run lead remained intact.

Then that Shaky Ninth!

Rigney was perfect in the eighth and might have survived the ninth if Bejma hadn't fumbled Weatherly's grounder. Averill batted for Pytlak and rolled to Radcliff whose throw to Appling forced Weatherly. Trosky caused complications by singling to center, Averill going to third. Trosky went to second on the throw. Rigney was informed that as soon as he could complete an intentional pass for Campbell he would be excused. Then Brown fanned Chapman who didn't offer at any one of the three strikes but did kick so strenuously that Umpire Basil gave him the air. Keltner tapped to Brown for the final out.

SMITH TO PITCH

Manager Jim Dykes has concocted a dose of left handed pitching for the Indians in the two remaining games of their current stay in Comiskey park. Today Edgar Smith, the ex-Athletic who beat the Yankees in his White Sox debut, will be given the job and tomorrow the assignment will go to Thornton Lee. The Indians' starter today will be Willis Hudlin.

Joe Kuhel and Eric McNair, the two Sox regulars who have leg ailments, felt good enough to hobble to the park. Kuhel injured a knee sliding a week ago today and McNair suffered a twisted ankle when treated to a football block by Joe Gallagher of the Yanks last Tuesday. McNair was ordered to remain in bed for a week but felt so chipper he decided to disobey instructions. Both men will accompany the team east tomorrow night.

ILLINOIS ANGLERS TREK NORTHWARD AS SEASON OPENS

Get First Chances at Pike Monday.

BY BOB BECKER.

Thousands of Illinois fishermen who annually visit Wisconsin lakes and streams are going to be absent from their homes this week-end. The first army of anglers that headed north was made up mostly of white bass fishermen. The white or striped bass are running in the Wolf river and excellent catches have been made.

The second migration of fishermen to start north will be made up of wall-eye and northern pike enthusiasts who want to be close to their favorite waters by sun up Monday morning, the official opening date of the 1939 season. Several days ago it looked as if the Wisconsin law makers might move the trout fishing opening ahead two days so that every one could go trout fishing this morning, but the plan didn't go through.

Report Excellent Fishing.

The latest tales from the white bass fishermen along the Wolf river report excellent fishing. Last year Wisconsin set the white bass daily limit at fifteen, but this year the conservation commission has placed the limit at twenty-five, which makes it possible for a fisherman to go out and get a real string of fish. Jack Burns writes us that it took him and his fishing partner just one hour and ten minutes to catch their limits a few days ago when fishing in the upper Wolf river.

He writes: "We used casting rods with a four ounce lead weight. Casting down stream, we let the line go to the bottom and then retrieved our bait. We had to retrieve only ten feet of line and then wham! There was fish." The common bait used in white bass fishing is a live minnow.

Wolf River Spots.

There are several spots along the Wolf river where Illinois fishermen may get a boat, either with or without power, and fish for white bass. Included in the list are the following:

Weyauwega, Wis. . . . This is on the upper reaches of the river, southeast of Waupaca. Accommodations just 10 minutes from the river. Boats available at reasonable prices. During the pike run fishermen got good walleye fishing here, too.

Fremont. . . . Long a favorite white bass fishing spot for Illinois anglers.

Tustin. . . . You can get 'em here, too. This town is on Poygan lake.

THERE'S JOY—BUT NOT COMPLETE—IN EUROPE'S CAMP

Losers Cheer Team Victory but Wish They'd Won.

BY STEWART OWEN.

There was almost unalloyed joy in the dressing room of the all-European boxing team in the Stadium last night after the Europeans had gained their first victory in an international Golden Gloves contest. Almost unalloyed joy, but not quite, because there were three boys whose rejoicing over the team's triumph was tinctured by personal disappointment.

None of the three thought he had been deprived of a decision. All of the three who lost—Guido Nardecchia, the Italian bantamweight team captain; Anton Raadik, the Estonian middleweight, and Nemesio Lazzari, Italian heavyweight—were ready to admit they had been beaten fairly but none would concede that he had fought the fight of which he was really capable. They did, however, share the happiness of their five teammates who battered their way to victory.

Musina Win? Naturally.

"I am happy that we won, happy for the whole team," said Nardecchia, "but I'm sorry for myself. The captain should not lose. I think I fight better other times. That Indian, Chester Ellis, he's a very tough fighter."

Luigi Musina, the glamor boy of the European team, who gained a hard-fought decision over Ragon Kinney, swaggered into the dressing room with his usual elan.

"I'm all right, huh?" he asked. "I win, all right. I said I would win in two rounds, but I made a mistake. He's a very tough fighter and he gave me a hard time. But, of course, I won."

Anton Raadik, who was dressing after his defeat by Jimmy Reeves and bemoaning his loss, perked up a little as he heard that Musina had won and Europe had won a team title for the first time.

Peire Is Delighted.

"I am happy that we have won," he said. "Five against two now. Even if Lazzari loses, the Chicagoans cannot beat us. But I am disappointed that I lost. Reeves is a very hard man to fight."

"It was one of the best fights I ever fought," said proud little Olli Lehtinen, the Finnish flyweight who, in whipping Willie Moon, was avenging a defeat in last year's international tournament. "It was a much harder fight than any I had in the European tournament."

Egisto Peire, the Italian lightweight whose one ambition since he took up boxing has been to win an international title, was perhaps the happiest boy of the bunch. He grinned as he displayed the watch he had won by whipping Chicago's Johnny Pleasant.

Agren, Too, Is Happy.

Paddy Dowdall, the Irish featherweight, took his triumph as a matter of course.

"Sure, I told you I would win for Ireland, sir," he grinned. "I told you I couldn't let all me home folks down by getting whipped on my first visit to America."

Eric Agren, the Swedish welterweight, was just one huge Nordic smile after it was all over. Speaking through his brother, Karl Agren, 1931 Golden Gloves champion, who was in his corner, Eric praised Pauli.

"He's a very hard man," he said.

"I did not fight my best," Nemesio Lazzari moaned. "I should have beaten Allen but I didn't. Perhaps, if the victory had not already been won, I would have fought better."

Trainer Steve Klaus was naturally elated over having coached the first victorious European team, but he shared the views of Nardecchia, Raadik, and Lazzari.

"Every one of those three could have won if he had fought the fight of which he is capable," Klaus said.

Bowbeer's 78 Wins District Golf Opener

Despite a cold northeast wind, a goodly crowd turned out at Westmoreland yesterday for the Chicago District Golf association's opening handicap tournament. Hank Bowbeer of Riverside proved the best golfer in the crowd with a 40—38—78, closely followed by Stanley Grauman of Northmoor, a 21 year old art student, and Howard Baal of Western Springs, each of whom had 79.

In Class A, Matt Niesen of Tam O'Shanter won low net with 80—9—71, while a teammate, John Slater, and Ed Stundl of Butterfield, tied at 73. Slater was given second on his lower handicap.

In Class B Ed Bittler, Western Springs, with 90—17—73, was first and R. C. Cotrell, unattached, with 91—17—74, was second. In class C William Otter of Westmoreland, chairman of the Greens committee of the C. D. G. A., won first place with 96—19—77. The best scores:

MOON MULLINS—A PILE OF TROUBLE

SOME PEOPLE GETS SMALLPOX, OTHERS HAS TH' DEE-TEES—BUT I'M AFFLICTED WITH YOUR RELATIONS.
LISTEN, HONEYBUNCH, COUSIN ELMO AND ROSIE WENT THROUGH A LOT TO COME VISIT US... THEY TRAVELED MILES AND MILES AND HAD A VERY TOUGH TIME.
THEY JEST HAD HALF A TOUGH ENOUGH TIME—ELMO FOUND US.
WELL, I THINK YOU'D OUGHT TO LET ME GO HELP ELMO FIND ROSIE, IF I AND YOU HAD GOT SEPARATED IN A STRANGE CITY—AND I DIDN'T LOOK FOR YOU FOR DAYS, YOU KNOW GOOD AND WELL YOU'D MISS ME.
NOT IF I COULD FIND ME A PILE OF PAVIN' BRICKS AND GIT WITHIN' TROWIN' DISTANCE OF YOU, I WOULDN'T!

Europe Wins International Battles, 5 to 3

the conclusion of the eighth preliminary, all lights in the Stadium were turned out. Then, as giant spotlights picked up the file of white jersied boxers at the northwest corner of the arena, the organ blared forth a triumphal processional.

Flags Are Unfurled.

Led by Lehtinen, the European boys, escorted by their coach, Steve Klaus, came to attention facing east and lined up along the ropes on the north side of the ring. Other spotlights then swung to the east, where the American boys advanced to the ring.

After both squads had come to attention, with the arena still darkened, spotlights caught the unfurled flag of Estonia as it was drawn forth high above the ringside sections. In succession, as the national anthems of each nation were played, the flags of Finland, Sweden, Ireland, and Italy slid along the cables.

"To the Colors" was sounded, and from the east side of the ring a huge American flag was swung aloft. As it reached the dome thousands joined in singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Ellis Meets Speed with Speed.

The Ellis-Nardecchia fight provided the thousands with the first real occasion to cheer. Lehtinen's victory over Moon, marked by an occasional rally by the defeated Chicagoan, had run entirely too much to pattern. But Nardecchia, one of Europe's finest boxers, captain of the team, was determined to win even as he had last year from Walter Cavalieri.

Ellis met speed with speed. The first round was even, with each taking a slight advantage in turn. The second round was the same, and then came the decisive third. Each boy must have known that the final minute would be decisive. Nardecchia, cool, determined, found he had at last met a boxer who had even more stamina and equal determination. Ellis rallied in the last twenty seconds, caught Guido with a series of four successive punches without a return, and by that margin the Italian boy lost his second international fight in forty-six engagements.

Dowdall's victory over Lewis failed to keep up the pace set by the bantamweights. There was no question of the Irishman's victory, but it was far slower.

A Real Disappointment.

Not so the lightweight battle. Here Chicago really met crushing disappointment, for Johnny Pleasant, Golden Gloves champion and intercity winner, never did find a target for his right hand punches, any one of which might have ended the bout had it landed. Egisto Peire, rugged and possessing the accurate left hand of all the European squad, won by jabbing and retreating. Occasionally when cornered he fought his way clear, but as the bout wore on it was apparent Pleasant was taking entirely too many lefts to the face to win unless he knocked out his rival. Failing, he lost.

Trailing, 3 to 1, Chicago's hope for victory was gone unless Bill Pauli of Cleveland could whip Erci Agren. Pauli started splendidly, winning the first round easily by virtue of his left hand, even as had Peire. But Pauli weakened. Perhaps it should be said he could not keep Agren away in the following rounds, for Eric rushed and finally broke through that rapier left hand defense.

Reeves Keeps Hope Alive.

The tide turned when Pauli was dropped for a nine count in the second round by a hard right to the jaw. Chicago still had a chance to tie, and Jimmy Reeves, who last night proved he was the best of the eight Chicagoland boxers, kept that hope alive.

Reeves, who is Golden Gloves champion and winner of the National A. A. U. title this year, completely outclassed Anton Raadik of Estonia. Raadik was willing, but he was befuddled by a hurricane of blows, stabbing lefts, and countering rights, so that he must have been more than glad when the bell ended the one sided contest.

Capt. Ragon Kinney, Chicago's light heavyweight, could not match Musina's strength in the first two rounds. In this time Musina, who whipped Herman West in the same ring two years ago, piled up the points for the deciding victory of the series. It was well he did, for Musina tired in the third round, was repeatedly punched solidly on the jaw, and forced to retreat. But Kinney couldn't overcome his disadvantage, and with that victory Europe won its first international match with Chicago.

Preliminary results:

147 POUNDS—Vernell Williams beat Johnny Preston [3]; Milton Jones beat George Dion [3].

160 POUNDS—Joe Benna beat Harold Rodie [3].

118 POUNDS—Earl Reid beat Earl Merritt [3].

112 POUNDS—Al Noto beat Vic Saccoia [3].

126 POUNDS—Harold Baggerly beat Francis Smith [3]; Homer Williams beat Sammy Consolo [3]; Tony Ancona beat Hymie Dabbs [3].

International Bouts Blow by Blow

112 POUNDS

Olli Lehtinen, Finland, beat Willie Moon, Chicago [3].

Moon found the range with a series of lefts to the face. Lehtinen, however, nailed Moon with a solid right. Moon tried with a few hard rights, but found Lehtinen elusive.

Olli Lehtinen.

Moon began the second round by pumping straight lefts to the head, but Lehtinen retaliated with hard rights. Along the ropes Lehtinen threw several rights, but Moon ducked most of them. A solid left hook shook Lehtinen, but he bounded right back in with both hands to Moon's body. Moon forced Lehtinen back across the ring with lefts and rights to the head shortly before the bell.

Lehtinen landed a right to Moon's face. Moon went down, but bounded up without taking a count. They started throwing punches from all angles. Lehtinen at one time missed a punch and almost fell from the force of it. At the bell they were engaged in another wild exchange of blows.

118 POUNDS

Chester Ellis, Chicago, beat Guido Nardecchia, Italy [3].

Nardecchia wheeled around the ring at a fast pace throwing left hooks to Ellis' head. A hard right to the body shook Nardecchia. Nardecchia drove several lefts to the face, but took two rights to the body. Ellis lunged in and landed several left hooks to the face. At the bell they were trading body blows.

Chester Ellis.

Ellis met the European in the latter's corner, drove Guido into the ropes, and landed lefts to the stomach. Guido countered with left hooks to the face. Ellis' left drew blood from Guido's mouth with a series of left hooks. The fast pace continued until the bell.

Ellis scored with a straight left to the face and followed up his attack with a bombardment to the midsection. Nardecchia, however, started an attack and counted with numerous blows to the head. After an exchange of jabs they brought their attack to the midsection.

126 POUNDS

Patrick Dowdall, Ireland, beat Roy Lewis, Chicago [3].

Dowdall gave early evidence of knowing what to do about Lewis' southpaw style of fighting. As Lewis came in close he was greeted by several rights to the head. Dowdall took a left hook to the head, Dowdall made Lewis' head bob from a right cross. Lewis jabbed with his right to the head.

Patrick Dowdall.

Early in the second round they stood toe to toe and peppered each other around the body. The Irishman scored with a left to the head, followed with a right to the same spot. Lewis scored with lefts to the face. Dowdall threw several rights to the head, but took a hard left to the chin. Lewis' short left hook to the body made Dowdall wince. Lewis scored with lefts to the head. At the bell Dowdall connected with a right to the head.

Dowdall landed terrific rights to the head that made Lewis back up. Once again Dowdall landed a hard right to the head. Dowdall made Lewis miss, then countered with a right to the head. Lewis scored with several punches to the head. Lewis landed a left to the head, but Dowdall scored with two solid rights to the face.

135 POUNDS

Egisto Peire, Italy, beat John Pleasant, Chicago [3].

They fired punches to the head from the opening bell. Peire used long left jabs to keep Pleasant off. Pleasant connected with two left hooks to the face but the Italian pumped rights to the stomach. Peire more than held his own in an exchange in mid ring. Pleasant caught Peire with a right to the chin just before the round ended.

Egisto Peire.

Peire's left jab worked with pistonlike regularity. Pleasant moved in close and landed lefts and rights to the head, but the European stabbed him with straight lefts. Pleasant landed a right to the head. Peire landed a right to the head that made Pleasant's knees buckle.

The fighters rushed from their corners and tried for a knockout. Exchange after exchange of hard blows brought the crowd up cheering. Peire fired a straight right to the head, but took two hooks to the stomach. They stood at arm's length for thirty seconds and both counted with high rights and left to the head. Peire landed a hard right to the head. They had to be separated by the referee at the bell, so furious was their attack.

147 POUNDS

Eric Agren, Sweden, beat William Pauli, Chicago [3].

Agren weaved in close and threw punches to the body. Pauli stuck a long left into Agren's face, then nailed him with two hard rights to the head. Agren continued his body attack, feinted, then landed a left hook to the head, but Pauli countered with a right to the face.

Eric Agren.

Agren took the play away from Pauli for the first minute of the second round and finally dropped Pauli for a nine count with a right. Agren rushed in and tried for a knockout. Pauli caught him lunging in and landed a right to the chin that made Agren's knees buckle. Pauli almost went down as Agren swarmed all over him, driving both fists to the face. Pauli scored with rights to the face at the bell.

Agren threw punches from every angle, but Pauli stabbed him several times with a left. They traded terrific rights to the head. Pauli had the better of an exchange that followed. Agren shook Pauli with a right to the head. Agren drove Pauli into the ropes with both hands flailing to the head and kept it up to the finish.

160 POUNDS

Jimmy Reeves, Chicago, beat Anton Raadik, Estonia [3].

They drove hard punches to body and head from the start and kept it up. Reeves ducked a right hand and countered with a two fisted attack to the head. Reeves landed a sharp left hook to the chin. The Estonian waded in with both fists driving to the body but Reeves connected with two hard rights to the head.

Jimmy Reeves.

They shook each other with rights to the head. Reeves landed a solid right to the head that hurt. Raadik put his head against Reeves' chest and threw a series of body blows. They fired blows toe to toe to the head without a letup.

Reeves landed left hooks to the body and rights to the head that drew blood from the Estonian's nose. Reeves landed a hard right to the head.

175 POUNDS

Luigi Musina, Italy, beat Ragon Kinney, Chicago [3].

Musina's first punch, a left hook to the face, shook Kinney. Musina landed two more hooks to the jaw. Kinney scored with two straight lefts to the face. They then traded lefts and rights to the face. Kinney landed a right to the face. Musina lunged in and missed and Kinney stuck a left in his face. Just before the bell Musina connected with a right to Kinney's head.

Kinney opened with a right to Musina's jaw but the Italian countered with a hard left to the stomach and a right to the head. Musina scored with a left hook, but Kinney drove both fists to the head. Musina landed a left to the stomach but Kinney countered with several rights to the head. They landed terrific rights and lefts to the head. Kinney nailed Musina in a neutral corner and pounded him with rights to the head.

HEAVYWEIGHTS

Altus Allen, Chicago, beat Nemesio Lazzari, Italy [3].

In close, Allen began pumping lefts to the Italian's head. Allen sent several sharp jabs to the head. Lazzari scored with light rights to the body. Allen's left jabs kept Lazzari off balance. After Lazzari started a mild body attack, Allen sent several short lefts to the face.

Altus Allen.

Allen connected with a right to the face. At close quarters Allen scored with a short right to the face. Allen made Lazzari's head bob from a right, then followed it with more rights that had Lazzari floundering and trying to hold on. Lazzari worked his way in close but took several hard rights to the head.

Lazzari lunged in and drove both hands to Allen's body. Allen scored with several sharp rights to the head. Allen smashed a hard right hand to Lazzari's head and met a Lazzari lunge with a left to the face. Lazzari came in with his head down and absorbed a right uppercut that shook him. They were trading rights to the body at the bell.

FENSKE BEATS SAN ROMANI AND CUNNINGHAM

Memphis, Tenn., May 12.—(AP)—Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin, running unattached, beat Archie San Romani of Kansas by a yard tonight to win the E. H. Crump mile in the Cotton carnival track meet. Putting on a burst of speed in the stretch, Fenske pushed ahead of San Romani from the third spot after passing Kansas' Glenn Cunningham, who finished third. The time was 4:11.5.

Dr. Franco Fontana, Italian consul, was one of the most excited fans in the big red arena during the thrilling battle between Guido Nardecchia of Italy and Chester Ellis of Kansas City.

Immediately after his contest with Nemesio Lazzari, Italian heavyweight, Altus Allen signed a contract to make his professional debut in a four round event against John Brown in White City next Thursday.

Karl Ogren, 1930 Golden Glove welterweight title holder, is making arrangements to obtain a six months visitor's visa for his brother, Eric Agren of Sweden, who won the 147 pound bout for the European team.

Paul Spica, 1936 Golden Gloves featherweight runnerup from St. Louis, escorted the European champions back to their quarters in the Medinah club. Spica will accompany the invaders to St. Louis, where they appear next Wednesday in a show sponsored by the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

375 TO COMPETE IN ELMHURST'S 7TH TRACK MEET

Seven Records Expected to Fall Today.

Track and field athletes representing nineteen schools will compete today in the seventh annual Elmhurst intercollegiate invitational meet. The events will be run off on the eight lane quarter mile track and the 220 yard straightaway on the Elmhurst college athletic field. Individual entries total 375.

Judging by the best performances of the athletes entered, at least seven records are in danger. These are the mile relay, the mile run, the two mile, the quarter, the 100 yard and 220 yard dashes, and the javelin.

North Central Relay Favorite.

The North Central college relay team has run the mile in 3:19.8. The meet record is 3:37. Three milers, Lenover of Loyola, Hussung of De Kalb, and Jenkins of Iowa State Teachers, have done better than the meet record of 4:26.5.

Wagner of North Central, Elson of Loyola, and Hardgrove of Illinois Normal are considered the outstanding threats in the quarter mile event.

Javelin Mark May Fall.

Peters of De Kalb has thrown the javelin 214 feet, which is more than 14 feet better than the present record. None of the athletes has heretofore equaled the marks of 46 feet 7 inches in the shot put and 13 feet 4¾ inches in the pole vault.

Schools entered, in addition to Elmhurst, the host school, are the American College of Physical Education, Armour Tech, George Williams, Loyola, Wilson Junior and Wright Junior, all of Chicago; Bradley Tech, Peoria; Carroll, Waukesha, Wis.; Illinois State Normal, Normal, Ill.; Iowa State Teachers, Cedar Falls, Ia.; La Grange Junior, La Grange; Milwaukee Teachers, Milwaukee, Wis.; North Central, Naperville; De Kalb Teachers; Wheaton college, Wheaton; Whitewater State Teachers, Whitewater, Wis., and Morton Junior, Cicero.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 12.—The stock market lost ground for the third successive session today. Losses ranged from fractions to about one point. Volume continued restricted, only 343,530 shares changing hands. The bulk of activity was attributed to professional traders.

Stocks started lower and wabbled in a narrow range for most of the session. President Roosevelt's disclosure that he is not opposed to some form of tax revision brought about some hardening of the list, but softness cropped out later.

Motors were weak despite the reported increase in automobile production. Chrysler, selling ex-dividend, slumped 1 point. General Motors lost ½ point. Losses in steels ran to ¼ point in United States Steel and ¾ point in Bethlehem. Rubbers and coppers dipped fractionally.

In the merchandising section, Montgomery Ward firmed a fraction, but Sears-Roebuck and Woolworth lagged. Oils were mostly lower, except for Texas corporation, up ⅛ point.

Rails surrendered gains made recently. Reports that President Roosevelt is contemplating a special appeal for congressional action on railroads was of little help.

Brooklyn Union Gas was a bright spot, rising 2 points to a new 1939 peak of 21¾.

Aviations followed other sections lower. Losses in heavy machinery issues ran to 1¾ points in Westinghouse. Chemicals gave ground.

New York Bonds.

New York, May 12.—(AP)—Traders shopped selectively in today's bond market, which closed with about an even distribution of fractional gains and losses.

Bids were entered for various miscellaneous corporate loans on the theory that they represented good buying levels for trading purposes, or on good news affecting individual issues. This support was partly offset by scattered selling in other ratings. Like stocks, bonds showed only a lukewarm response to indications of an early termination of the soft coal controversy.

United States governments were mildly reactionary in spots after several sessions of steady gain. With declines predominating, the list closed 6-32ds lower to 6-32ds higher.

Chicago Stocks.

Although most of the volume leaders maintained firm prices, a majority of stocks closed lower on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Of eighty issues traded, forty declined, while nineteen advanced and twenty-one closed unchanged.

Commonwealth Edison, most active issue on the list, finished at Thursday's final level. Hall Printing joined the ten volume leaders, closing up 1¼ points at 11⅝ after selling at a new 1939 high of 12. Borg Warner, which lost ¾ point on Thursday, slipped a minor fraction yesterday in New York.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks remained firm in quiet trading yesterday. Bids were raised on Continental Illinois, First National, and Chicago Title and Trust. Other stocks were quoted at the same prices as on the preceding day.

COAL PARLEYS ADJOURN WITH PACT UNSIGNED

Meet Today; South's Group Holds Out.

New York, May 12.—(AP)—The full Appalachian coal conference took no action in a two hour discussion tonight on an agreement reached today by its negotiators to grant the "union shop" to John L. Lewis' union miners. Thus a final settlement of the controversy that has tied up the bituminous mines of twenty-six states was postponed until tomorrow at the earliest.

The conference—made up of 150 representatives of operators and an equal number of representatives of the union—ended without public expression from either side as to the prospects for tomorrow, but a high operators' spokesman said privately that it almost unquestionably would see the signing of a contract.

Union Spokesman Agrees.

A union spokesman of equal authority put forward a similar view, with the statement that a general reopening of the mines by Monday seemed certain.

Both described tonight's discussion as having cleared up questions as to the effect of the union shop upon management, and an operators' source said further that it had been instrumental in dispelling at least some of the southern hostility to granting that extension of power to Lewis.

The adjournment without a vote on the agreement drafted by the negotiators was moved by Charles O'Neill, a New York operator, but it was authoritatively said to have been motivated largely by a desire to let southern groups have time for further full discussions among themselves.

There remained the possibility that some southern operators would hold out to the end and withdraw from the conference rather than agree to the union shop.

The conference, a six year old organization which is the largest collective bargaining agency in the country, votes under the unit rule. That means its contract decisions must have a unanimous vote—but only of those voting. In the past irreconcilable opponents to some contract provisions sometimes have refrained from voting.

Specifically, the conference acts only for the eight-state Appalachian area, but since that section produces 70 per cent of the country's bituminous, its labor decisions usually control in the rest of the belt.

Make Individual Settlements.

This time, contrary to usual practice, individual settlements had been under way since yesterday in bituminous areas outlying the Appalachian, under Lewis' authority and at what almost amounted to the command of federal mediators.

Two lines in the proposed new contract described the union demand:

"It is agreed that the United Mine Workers of America is recognized herein as the exclusive bargaining agency representing the employés of the parties of the first part. It is agreed that as a condition of employment all employés shall be members of the United Mine Workers of America, except those exempt classifications of employment as provided in the contract."

No change in pay—a basic $5.60 a day in the south and $6 in the north—was made in the agreement.

Anthracite operators and miners agreed today to extend the present contract to midnight May 20. This is the third such extension made pending the outcome of negotiations on the contract, which expired April 30.

SIGN ILLINOIS CONTRACT

Twenty-five thousand Illinois coal miners will return to their jobs Monday under a new contract signed here yesterday by the mine operators and the United Mine Workers.

The contract extends to March 31, 1941, the agreement that has been in effect in Illinois for the last two years. In addition the new contract contains two sentences relating to exclusive bargaining that were not included in the old agreement.

The agreement was announced by Ray Edmundson, state president of the union, and M. F. Peltier, president of the Illinois Coal Operators association.

Edmundson said that contract provides that miners return to work immediately. Monday, however, is the earliest that they will return to their jobs because the mines normally do not operate on Saturdays.

A. F. of L. Mine Union to Push Fight on Lewis

Springfield, Ill., May 12.—[Special.]—The Progressive Miners of America will continue with full force the fight on John L. Lewis' C. I. O. mine union both in the organization field and before the National Labor Relations board, Joe Ozanic, president of the Progressives, said here tonight.

He pointed out that numerous individual operators, faced by the Roosevelt administration's support of Lewis in his demands in the Appalachian coal fields, have indicated they will open their mines to organization by the American Federation of Labor, of which the Progressives is an affiliate.

"It is a direct violation of the Wagner act for employers to sign with Lewis' United Mine Workers of America in instances where they have been notified by the Progressive union that a majority of their employés are Progressives," Ozanic declared. The Progressive union will take all steps possible to invalidate such contracts.

Will Protect Members.

"To the extent of contracts having been made with employers where the Progressives have not yet a majority, the Progressive union intends to continue the organization of the miners of this country and will extend to them all the protection they can give under the law should any of these employés desire to join the Progressives.

"In any case where such contracts have been made and Lewis cannot show definitly a majority of the employés, such a contract will not protect the U. M. W. A. against the Progressives' demands that the employer bargain with the Progressives should a majority of the employés join the Progressives hereafter.

"Should an employer attempt to fire any employés not belonging to the U. M. W. A. and desiring to join the Progressives instead of the C. I. O. union, the Progressives will take action against that employer for committing an unfair labor practice under the Wagner act.

Sees Progressive Victory.

"The fact that Lewis is now apparently willing to deal with the Appalachian operators individually, as indeed he must deal, is in itself a victory for the Progressives and for the position of the A. F. of L.

"The Progressives and the parent federation hold that every employer should have the right, as he should be required under the law, to bargain only with the representatives of his own employés.

"No bargaining unit should be permitted which imposes involuntary servitude on employés without their consent, and subjects them to terms and conditions of employment imposed by competitors of their employer."

BLAMES BRITISH INSURANCE FIRMS FOR GOLD FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 12.—A charge that London insurance firms are advocating flight of British capital to the United States is to be made in the house of commons on Tuesday.

R. R. Stokes, Labor member from Ipswich, will ask Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, if he was aware that certain firms are circulating people in the city urging transfer of funds as a result of the unsettled conditions in Europe, and, if he is, what he is doing to halt the practice.

Apparent loss of faith in the pound sterling by the insurance companies was revealed to Stokes by a number of letters received from those who had been advised to get their money out of the country.

Stokes told THE TRIBUNE the advice took the form of a personal letter suggesting investment in endowment policies in the United States in dollars instead of in London in sterling.

CHICAGO GROCER GROUP TO HEAR BILL ANALYZED

Sidney M. Libit, general counsel for the Associated Grocery and Industries council, and State Representative Edward P. Saltiel will speak Monday night at a meeting of retail and wholesale grocers in the Chicago Arena. The speakers will analyze the unfair sales practice bill now before the lower house of the state legislature.

The legislation would outlaw sale of goods at less than 6 per cent above the invoice cost. Its proponents state the bill will prevent merchants from taking a loss on some sales in order to induce purchases of marked-up goods.

Mrs. Wilbur D. Fribley, president of the National Housewives league, will speak on behalf of the consumer and City Controler Robert B. Upham will represent the city.

WEEK'S OUTPUT OF AUTOS GAINS; FAR ABOVE 1938

Automobile production by United States and Canadian plants this week increased to 72,375 units, from 71,420 last week, according to Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc. The current figure is an increase of 49 per cent over production of 49,415 cars and trucks a year ago.

Ward's termed sales "spotty," but said that manufacturers have launched intensive merchandising campaigns which are expected to stimulate business.

The publication placed the week's production by General Motors subsidiaries at 27,120 units, against 26,599 last week and 30,369 a year ago; Chrysler 17,690 against 17,590 and 10,850; Ford 16,900 against the same number in the preceding week, and 13,385 a year ago.

New Dealers Rescue Lewis and CIO Again

that they would withdraw from their conference, and their mines will be open to A. F. of L. organization.

Lewis demanded either abolition of the 17 year old penalty clause, inserted originally at his own demand, or else a closed shop. There was no dispute over wages, hours, or working conditions. The penalty clause requires the operators to pay a fine of $1 per day for each miner kept idle by a lockout, and requires the union to pay a fine of $1 per day for each miner kept idle by a strike.

Lewis denied that he wanted a closed shop, saying he wanted only a "union" shop. Actually, in a letter to Dr. Steelman on May 7, he demanded the following clause: "It is agreed that as a condition of employment all employés shall be members of the United Mine Workers of America." This clause was contained in the agreement reached by the subcommittees of the operators and miners today.

Difference Is Slight.

As a matter of practice, the only difference between a closed shop and a union shop is a matter of 30 days. A closed shop requires union membership as a condition precedent to employment. Under th so-called union shop, an employé must become a member of the Lewis union in thirty days.

Lewis' anxiety for the abolition of the penalty clause or else a closed shop grew out of a decision on April 15 by J. J. Fitzpatrick, trial examiner for the National Labor Relations board, at Ward, W. Va. The trial examiner ruled that the Kelley's Creek Colliery company violated the Wagner act in discharging one Eugene Shifflett because he joined the Progressive Mine Workers' union. The company officials testified that they discharged Shifflett because the U. M. W., the Lewis union, had threatened to call a strike.

The trial examiner held that the contract did not require a closed shop. Even a closed shop contract, he ruled, would not permit the employer to discharge a man for joining a second union.

"It would be a strained construction of the exemption [for closed shop contracts] to say it went beyond that and permitted the employer to dictate with impunity all other union activities or affiliations of its employés," said Fitzpatrick's decision.

Gives C. I. O. Strong Weapon.

With the penalty clause abrogated, Lewis could call strikes to force employers to violate the Wagner act by discharging all employés who joined the Progressive Mine Workers. The penalty clause was not abrogated, but the closed shop provision will enable Lewis to circumvent the Wagner act, as applied by Fitzpatrick.

Under this decision, operators cannot, without violating the law, discharge miners for joining the Progressive Mine Workers. But Lewis, under the U. M. W. constitution, can kick them out of his union for dual unionism if they join the Progressives. Once they were kicked out of the U. M. W., the operators would be forced to discharge them by the terms of the contract, since it requires U. M. W. membership as a condition of employment.

The operators took the position throughout the negotiations that Lewis' demands would subject them to prosecution for violation of the Wagner act.

Wagner Act Made Issue.

In their final proposal, rejected by Lewis yesterday morning, they promised to continue negotiations "for the purpose of finding some formula agreeable to both parties which will preserve the integrity of the agreements and the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers of America from attacks made under the provisions of the national labor relations act." This recognized that some means of circumventing the Wagner act was the issue.

Dr. Steelman took cognizance of the Wagner act issue in his formal statement yesterday morning, saying: "The operators' representatives have stated emphatically that they desired to safeguard in every legal way the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers throughout the industry."

Lewis had to find a way to get around the Wagner act because the Progressive Mine Workers have served notice upon 250 operators in the Appalachian field that they represent a majority of the miners. The Progressives have filed complaints with the National Labor Relations board in 100 of these cases, accusing the operators of violating the Wagner act in refusing to recognize them as the exclusive collective bargaining agency. The 250 operators employ about 150,000 miners.

Financial Angel for C. I. O.

The United Mine Workers is the only prosperous union and only source of ready cash in the C. I. O. Since the C. I. O. was organized in November, 1935, the U. M. W. has poured more than $4,000,000 into its coffers in the form of dues, special assessments, and loans. Under the checkoff provision of the contract operators deduct dues of 50 cents a month and all special $1 assessments levied by Dictator Lewis from the pay envelopes of the workers.

Even with the checkoff provision, however, the C. I. O. revenue from the Mine Workers has been falling off. The report of Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy for the six month period ended Dec. 1 disclosed that U. M. W. income from all sources was $1,358,304, as compared with $2,263,049 for the previous six months. Income from dues was $1,121,061, which represented a dues paying membership of 373,687. Income from dues in the previous period was $1,343,474, representing a dues paying membership of 447,491.

Lewis still continued to pad the membership to 600,000 in order to exact a total of $180,000—5 cents a month per member—from the treasury of the Mine Workers for the C. I. O. The C. I. O. took a total of $385,377 from the Mine Workers during the six month period, most of it in loans for other C. I. O. unions.

REPORT STEEL PRICE CUTTING IS INCREASING

Cleveland, O., May 12.—(AP)—"Price shading on flat rolled products in the Detroit area has spread to other districts, but producers have taken no official action in the matter of announcing formal price reductions," the Daily Metal Trade said today.

"Shading up to $11 a ton is reported, but $4 to $5 per ton under the published market appears to be the extent of the concessions on the bulk of current offers.

"Some business, it is understood, has been placed at the lower prices, but the tonnage is said to be relatively small."

USED CAR BIG ASSET TO AUTO INDUSTRY, SAYS HUDSON CHIEF

Instead of a problem, the used automobile is one of the greatest assets the automobile industry has, A. E. Barit, president of the Hudson Motor Car company, said at a meeting at the Drake hotel yesterday. He explained this by pointing out that the value of all automobiles in this country two or more years old is estimated at 5 billion dollars. And nearly the entire amount is ear-marked for eventual payment on new cars.

A. E. Barit.

Barit addressed several hundred Chicago area Hudson dealers and their salesmen at the Drake hotel. By a telephone hookup he talked at the same time to hundreds of others in leading middle western cities. The occassion was a celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Hudson company.

"Once money is invested in an automobile, that money stays in the automobile industry, because people keep on buying cars," Barit said. "So we have five billion dollars of prepaid down payments."

Stored Butter at Record; U.S. Chief Owner

The heaviest May 1 supply of stored butter on record was reported stocked away in cold storage warehouses yesterday as the butter industry entered a period of seasonally heavy production.

The monthly report of the bureau of agricultural economics said storage butter stocks amounted to 70,861,000 pounds. The federal government, through various agencies, is still the biggest "butter man" in the world. It holds about 87.5 per cent of the total reserve, or the larger part of 62,055,000 pounds owned by the Dairy Products Marketing association, the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, and federal and state relief agencies. The DPMA owns 56,859,000 pounds and the FSCC 5,196,000 pounds.

Price Pegging Boosts Supply.

The unprecedented supply of stored butter is a result of the government's attempt to peg down prices during 1938 and the early part of this year. The artificially high prices served to accelerate production, and by the time the effort was abandoned on March 8, the government had taken over 155,000,000 pounds. The purchases cost the government about $43,000,000, exclusive of storage charges and losses resulting from deterioration of the stored butter.

The May 1 reserve total of 70,861,000 pounds compares with 20,144,000 pounds in storage on the same date a year ago, and is nearly seven times as large as the five year average reserves for May, which was 9,812,000 pounds.

Stocks Decline In April.

However, supplies showed a decline from the 78,816,000 pounds in reserve on April 1. At that time the government owned 91.8 per cent of the total. During April, the DPMA sold 8,454,000 pounds to its only customer, the FSCC, and the latter agency and state relief agencies reduced their holdings 1,846,000 pounds. Private interests owned a little more than 8,800,000 pounds on May 1.

The huge stock of butter hanging over the market has tended to restrict buying, and prices, seeking a natural level since the peg was withdrawn, have hovered near five year lows. Should the butter be put on the open market, demoralization of the butter trade would result. However, the government's butter has thus far been distributed to relief agencies only.

More Eggs in Storage.

Yesterday's report showed that the movement into storage of shell eggs during April put May 1 supplies on a surplus basis compared with a year ago. Total cold storage supplies amounted to 3,347,000 cases, compared with 3,204,000 on May 1, 1938, and a ten year average of 4,321,000.

Warehouse stocks of American cheese declined to 62,870,000 pounds from 68,812,000 pounds. The new total compares with 65,767,000 pounds a year ago and the May 1 five year average of 58,183,000 pounds.

Frozen poultry supplies declined seasonally during April. Stocks in storage May 1 were 70,580,000 pounds, down 20,407,000 pounds and comparing with 60,053,000 pounds last year.

Eggs at Five-Year May Low.

Indications that April hatching established an all-time record and continued liberal production in the central west area caused heavy selling of eggs yesterday. Cash wholesale prices cracked the lowest May prices in five years on declines ranging to ½ cent a dozen.

The May storage futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange responded with a loss of ¼ cent a dozen, touching a new low price since 1934. October refrigerators reached a new seasonal low, off .56 cent.

November butter gave up 0.24½ cent a pound in the face of smaller receipts. Slow cash demand despite wholesale reductions of ¼ cent a pound on 90 and 92 score proved depressing.

TAX REVISIONS UP TO CONGRESS, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Will Not Oppose If Revenues Hold Up.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 12.—President Roosevelt said today he would not oppose repeal of the controversial tax on undistributed corporation profits, provided that other means were found to maintain government revenues and prevent tax evasion by the wealthy.

He declared, at his press conference, that the matter of tax revision was up to congress and that he would not take the initiative. The treasury will soon submit to congress its studies on various revisions to remove so-called business deterrents from the tax structure and still maintain revenues.

The President took particular pains to forestall comments that he was retreating on tax punishment by warning that the treasury suggestions would merely be alternative proposals which would be workable and were not to be construed as administration recommendations.

Possible Treasury Proposals.

It is believed that the treasury proposals will include the following:

1. Repeal of the present undistributed profits, capital stock, and excess profits taxes and substitution of a flat corporate income levy of not more than 22 per cent. The income tax now ranges from 12½ per cent on small corporations to about 19 per cent on large companies.

2. Possible reduction of higher bracket personal income taxes from a maximum of 75 per cent to a maximum of about 60 per cent. Critics, including Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee, assert that the high tax has reached the point of diminishing returns and a reduction is imperative.

3. Permission for corporations to carry over tax credits for losses for 2 or 3 years instead of 1 as at present.

4. Modification of the capital gains tax in an effort to encourage investment by private capital.

Tax Conference Monday.

There will be an important tax conference at the White House Monday afternoon at which wrinkles in the treasury proposals are due for some ironing. The finance leaders who will meet with the President will include Harrison, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Representative Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the house ways and means committee, and Jere Cooper [D., Tenn.], member of the same committee.

Aware of the tremendous pressure being exerted by business groups and conservatives in congress for technical changes in the tax laws to encourage business, the President spoke for 15 minutes on the tax situation, yielding a little ground, but strongly defending his punitive taxes. He declared flatly there must be no reduction in the total tax yield to the treasury, which is hamstrung by its ninth annual deficit, amounting to nearly 3 billion dollars, and a record federal debt of more than 40 billions.

Would Maintain Revenue.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the leaders of the house and senate agreed with him that if revision took place, laws would have to be provided to make up for the lost revenue.

In discussing the excess profits tax he said that it was drafted and passed for a very special reason—to prevent rich men in the upper income brackets from leaving profits in closely held companies without paying income taxes on the money. Although eventually the government would get a certain percentage of that money through the inheritance tax, he said, this was nothing compared with what would be received if the income tax rates were applied to it.

Asked if he favored a new corporate tax structure at this session, the President said any increase of the flat corporate rate to make up for the $250,000,000 lost by repeal of the capital stock and excess profits taxes would bring protests from both small and large business.

Predicts "Terrible Squawk."

If we adopt the theory of spreading the tax on a straight percentage basis, he said, there will be a "terrible squawk" from the little corporations of the United States, because, of the 200,000 corporations, about 160,000 are earning less than $10,000 a year.

As a matter of practical politics, he said, congress would not vote to increase the percentage tax on small or medium sized corporations. The net result would be that the loss of $250,000,000 on repealed taxes would have to come out of the pockets of the very large corporation, which, he said, would produce the big squawk.

If congress repeals the remaining 2½ per cent on undistributed profits of corporations as a business deterrent, that is all right, he said, as long as the same amount of money is provided and some method is found to prevent legal evasion of taxes.

Loose Talk, Says President.

The President said there has been a lot of loose talk about deterrent taxes. He said that taxes on cigarets and farms could be regarded as deterrents. For example, he added, if the farmer paid less taxes he would have more money to clothe his wife.

On the heels of the President's tax lecture, the senate military affairs committee again reported favorably, by a vote of 12 to 2, the bill of Senator Josh Lee [D., Okla.] to draft private capital in war time by forcing citizens with a net wealth of $1,000 or more to buy 50 year 1 per cent government bonds on a rate basis corresponding to the income tax classifications.

Senate Votes Farm Bill of 1¼ Billions

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—The senate, casting aside all attempts to economize on government expenditures for the farmer, passed a record breaking $1,218,666,572 farm bill today by a vote of 61 to 14.

Senator King assails federal deficits.

The huge annual supply bill now goes back to the house, where a battle is expected over the $383,647,959 increase made by the senate over the total previously voted in the house. Economy minded senators made two unsuccessful attempts to trim the total of the measure, which carries funds to operate the department of agriculture and the Farm Credit administration for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Economy Moves Are Beaten.

Senator Glass [D., Va.], chairman of the senate appropriations committee, asked unanimous consent for reconsideration of $338,000,000 added to the bill by the senate for farm benefits, in addition to $500,000,000 voted by the house.

"I object," shouted Senator La Follette [Prog., Wis.], jumping to his feet.

Senator Johnson [D., Colo.] moved that the bill be sent back to committee with instructions to remove $376,540,521 of increases over the budget estimates of President Roosevelt. This move failed, 42 to 28. Fifteen Democrats and thirteen Republicans supported the economy move.

Only eleven Republicans and three Democrats opposed the measure in the final vote.

Democrats Carry Measure.

Voting in favor were forty-nine Democrats, eight Republicans, two Farmer-Laborites, and the only Progressive and Independent senators.

Senator King [D., Utah] sharply criticized the series of government deficits. He had read into the record an editorial charging that the farm bill resulted from "log rolling" and "scratching each other's backs."

Senator Russell [D., Ga.], floor manager for the bill, told the senate much of the criticism resulted from misunderstanding. He said the agriculture department had more than $1,500,000,000 to spend on its far-flung activities during the present fiscal year and would have about $141,000,000 less during the next year.

[The $1,500,000,000 to which Senator Russell referred was not all included in the agriculture department appropriation bill last year. Part of the money came from unused balances of previous appropriations and from other sources.]

Denies Drain on Treasury.

Russell said the present bill "does not constitute any greater drain on the treasury than did appropriations for the current year." He added that most opponents of the bill would not spend "one dime to save agricultural interests of this country from wreck and ruin."

Two senate veterans, Borah [R., Idaho] and Norris [Ind., Neb.], defended the appropriations. Borah reminded the senate that it had approved more than $2,000,000,000 for military purposes "without five minutes' debate."

NEW AIRCRAFT COMPANY FILES ISSUE OF STOCK

Plans for public financing were disclosed yesterday by Northrup Aircraft, Inc., a newly organized California company, in a registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange commission.

The statement covered 687,185 shares of $1 par value common stock and stock purchase warants for 133,333 of the shares. Public offering of 400,000 of the shares will be made at $6 a share; 133,333 shares will be reserved for underwriters for purchase at $7 a share, and 153,852 shares issued to promoters of the company.

Of the proceeds, $225,000 will be used to build an aircraft factory, $252,000 for equipment, $350,000 for experimental work, and the balance for working capital.

STORES' SALES DIP BELOW 1938; SLUMP GENERAL

Department store sales throughout the country declined 3 per cent in the week ended May 6, compared with 1938, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. The slump was general, only the Philadelphia district showing an increase.

In the week ended April 29 store sales gained 6 per cent over 1938. In the four weeks ended May 6 sales were 5 per cent below 1938.

The 7th reserve district, which includes Chicago, showed a sales decline of 2.7 per cent. In Chicago alone it was 8.1 per cent. In the four weeks ended May 6 sales in the 7th district dropped 2.0 per cent and in Chicago alone 6.2 per cent.

Sales in the Philadelphia district gained 30 per cent.

Morgenthau Appoints Bell as His Liaison Officer

Washington, D. C., May 12.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today assigned his assistant, Daniel W. Bell, former acting director of the budget, to serve as liaison officer between the treasury and other government agencies on financial matters. He gave Bell jurisdiction over the commissioner of accounts and deposits, the public debt commissioner, treasurer of the United States, and the baby bonds division.

CHICAGO A. OF C. SUPPORTS SLUM CLEARANCE PLAN

Will Urge Passage by Legislature.

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday went on record in favor of pending legislation providing for creation of "public service building corporations" as a means for eradicating depreciated areas of the city and stimulating the construction industry.

Its executive committee composed of leading Chicago business and industrial executives adopted a report of the association's development group and authorized a representative to appear next week before a state legislative group to advocate passage of the bills.

The report, which urged enactment of the legislation with certain amendments, was accepted at a meeting of thirty-five members of the executive committee, presided over by Harvey S. Eldred, chairman of the committee and vice president of Armour & Co.

Most Effective Means.

Eugene A. Rummler, patent attorney and chairman of the development committee, expressed that group's approval in a report following a number of meetings on the problem of improving conditions in neglected areas of the city. The public service building corporation legislation was selected as the most effective means of achieving improvement in these areas and bring about a stimulation of construction and reëmployment of jobless building trades mechanics.

Rummler is expected to appear next week before a special subcommittee of the revenue committee of the state house of representatives to urge enactment of the bills, which are sponsored by the Chicago Building Congress, Inc., and supported by leading interests in the construction field, including labor groups.

Bill Permits Condemnation.

The legislation provides that, under the jurisdiction of city and state housing authorities, private building corporations will be empowered to obtain property needed for housing projects. If normal means of negotiation fail to give the corporation the necessary land, the corporation will be empowered to obtain land through condemnation proceedings, as public utilities now acquire property.

This is designed to surmount the obstacle presented when a minority of property owners refuses to sell land at prices agreed to by the majority. The type of corporation authorized in the bills would not be allowed to invoke the law unless it already had obtained 51 per cent or more of the land required through normal negotiations.

Protects Chicago Interests.

Rummler said that one of the amendments advocated by his group was designed to strengthen the provision against any possible domination by state housing authorities against the interests of Chicago. Housing authorities of Chicago are given supervision over city housing in the pending bills, and backers of the legislation at previous hearings have insisted their authority will be sufficient to protect the city's interests. Rummler's group would strengthen its section of the bill as a precautionary measure, however.

"This is one of several steps which must be taken by the city to eliminate the blighted areas and restore construction," Rummler said in urging adoption of the legislation. "It offers a promising avenue for inducing private capital to invest in building. Rezoning and replanning are other requirements.

Seeks to Prevent Abuses.

"This legislation gives to private corporations the right to eminent domain under specified conditions. This may prove valuable in restoring values in neglected areas throughout the city, but safeguards must be thrown up to prevent abuse of the privilege. We would not want a state organization to force Chicago to take any course against its best interests."

The committee which studied and approved the legislation, with these modifications, is composed of C. L. Rice, vice president of the Western Electric company and past president of the association; Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee of the Chicago Rapid Transit company; Hugh Young, engineer of the Chicago plan commission; W. W. Deverard, editor of Engineering News-Record; Loran D. Gayton, city engineer, Newton C. Farr, real estate dealer, and R. L. Fleming, engineer of the Chicago Surface Lines.

The legislative committee which will hear the association's arguments in favor of the bills is composed of Representatives Arthur W. Sprague [R., River Forest], chairman; Edward J. McCabe [D., Chicago], Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago], John C. Kluczynski [R., Chicago], Oral P. Tuttle [R., Harrisburg], and Arthur J. Quinn [D., Chicago].

Chairman to Hear Arguments.

Representative Everett R. Peters [R., St. Joseph], chairman of the revenue committee, who named the group, is also a member of the committee which will meet here.

James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, declared the legislation offers a challenge to private capital to complete a housing job which the government has failed to accomplish. He asserted governmental housing projects have resulted in a great waste of money and a waste of opportunity.

Clearing of depreciated districts and replacement of run down homes with modern housing facilities is a job for private capital, provided it is

INTERLAKE IRON MERIT PLAN CRUX OF LABOR CASE

Discrimination Charged and Denied.

Legality of a "merit" system, under which the most efficient employés and those enjoying seniority are kept at work when declining business necessitates layoffs, was the vital issue at stake yesterday in a National Labor Relations board hearing here.

The Steel Workers' Organizing committee, C. I. O. affiliate, has charged the Interlake Iron corporation with discrimination in the discharge of sixteen men, the last of whom was heard yesterday by Herbert Wenzel, NLRB trial examiner. The union filed the charges after the layoffs. It also branded Interlake's employés' association a company union.

Employés Win Plant Election.

However, the employés' association won a plant election in January, 1938, under labor board jurisdiction by a vote of 438 to 280. The employés' association has adopted a stand supporting the company in the controversy.

The company has maintained that seniority and efficiency are the only factors to be considered when promoting its employés and when layoffs are necessary. The S. W. O. C. has countered with a charge that a single foreman, operating in secrecy, determines all issues.

With yesterday's testimony the S. W. O. C. had virtually completed its testimony against the company, which is the biggest pig iron producer in the Chicago area.

Will Deny Union's Charges.

Henry Seyfarth, representing the corporation, whose plants are at 112th street and Torrence avenue, announced he will present a number of witnesses in an effort to prove the S. W. O. C. charges unfounded. Additional witnesses for the independent union will also be heard, according to John F. Cusack, representing that organization.

The charges are an outgrowth of two layoffs in November, 1937, and the following June. Although 494 were dismissed, the C. I .O. case is confined to the sixteen men.

Under labor board procedure the board issues a complaint when charges are filed which it considers to have sufficient merit to warant a hearing. The present charges were filed last June.

STORING OF MEAT UNUSUALLY LOW FOR LAST MONTH

Storing of meat in cold storage plants last month was abnormally small the department of agriculture reported yesterday. The aggregate tonnage of all meats in store on May 1 at 627,360,000 pounds was off 1,736,000 pounds from the April 1 stocks, and third smallest on government records for that date.

A year ago there were 606,725,000 pounds on hand, which was also below normal. Two years ago the total was 972,012,000. The five year average stands at 726,230,000.

A small increase in pork in the month was more than offset by the decrease in beef and lamb meat.

Atlantic Coast Line Road Earns Less than Year Ago

March quarter net income of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad was $1,046,060, equal to $1.27 a share, the company announced yesterday. This compared with net income of $1,659,563 in the first three months of 1938, or $2.01 a share. Railroad reports issued yesterday follow:

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Hogs recovered fully 10 to 15 cents more of the recent loss in one of the liveliest sessions of the season yesterday. Buyers scrambled for the scant supply offered and in many instances paid more than 15 cents advance for some of the heaviest butchers as well as the underweights that were hardest hit on the break earlier in the week.

Less than 1,000 cattle were offered for sale and none of them was good enough to best the quotations above $10.35. Best grades of fat lambs held firm, but others weakened slightly.

WARD'S PROFITS SET PEAK FOR FIRST QUARTER

Net profits of Montgomery Ward & Co. in the first quarter of its fiscal year were the largest for that period in the company's history, a report to stockholders disclosed yesterday.

For the three months ended with April net earnings of the company, second largest chain store and mail order organization in the United States, reached $4,423,175. This was equal to 78 cents a share on common stock, after dividends on the class A shares. Profit was $2,101,946, or 34 cents a share, a year earlier.

Although the earnings set a new first quarter record, other periods have yielded higher income. Like other retail organizations, Ward's most profitable period normally is the final quarter which includes the period of Christmas shopping.

Air Line Completes Half of Its Equipment Program

The equipment expansion program of Northwest Airlines, Inc., was 50 per cent completed yesterday with delivery of the third of a total of six 21 passenger Douglas airliners on order, My Ubl, district trafic manager, announced. Delivery of the fourth transport plane is scheduled for May 31 and the other two will follow during June, he said.

General Motors Trust Case Hearing Is Set for Oct. 9

South Bend, Ind., May 12.—(Special.)—The federal government's antitrust case against General Motors corporation will be tried in the United State District court here Oct. 9, according to a tentative decision today by Judge Walter C. Lindley, special judge in the case. Judge Lindley took under advisement a motion of the General Motors counsel for a bill of particulars in the case. A petition of the corporation to set aside Judge Thomas W. Slick's order overruling a demurrer against the government's indictment also was held for study.

OUT OF MOTH BALLS.

Investors' Guide: That sample of warm weather last week-end in Chicago is responsible for this letter. For out of the moth balls came my Palm Beach suit. An idea popped in my mind at the same time. Here it is: I know these Palm Beach suits are getting around. You see them in greater number each summer, particularly so last year. For that reason the company which makes them must be doing well. Is it? And how is the stock rated?—K. S.

Answer: No, the present showing is disappointing. Earnings of Goodall Worsted company, which makes Palm Beach cloth, took a sharp nose dive in the last fiscal year. Net income for the period ended July 31 totaled $36,879, equal to 51 cents on each common share outstanding. This compared with net income of $615,007, or $8.47 a share the preceding year, and $841,657, or $11.58 a share in 1936.

The stock is considered speculative.

BOOK PROFITS UP.

Investors' Guide: I would like to know how Holt & Co., Inc., the publishing concern, has been making out in recent years. At one time, it seems to me, they were losing money or were at least uncomfortably near the ragged edge.—A. H.

Answer: The record of Holt & Co., Inc., shows an unbroken income since it was formed late in 1928. This is tempered, however, by the company's showing in 1936 when it nearly called for the red ink. Net profit for that year was down to $575. Since then profits have climbed steadily although sales have been about the same.

Here's the record for the last ten years:

	Sales.	Net Inc.	Earn. per Cl. A shr.
1938	$1,114,097	$ 54,219	$1.30
1937	1,073,097	18,694	0.41
1936	1,032,583	575	0.01
1935	1,000,620	35,753	0.76
1934	883,495	17,043	0.35
1933	835,081	9,659	0.19
1932	1,090,172	80,009	1.50
1931	1,426,777	122,279	1.80
1930	1,714,110	225,487	1.80
1929	1,775,682	235,241	1.80

CHECKING ACCOUNTS.

Investors' Guide: Please help us settle an argument on the question of insurance on bank deposits. Does this insurance take care of only savings deposits or does it also include checking accounts up to $5,000? Our argument is that no checking accounts are insured.—L. S. J.

Answer: The act which created the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation defined deposits to include commercial, checking, savings, time, or thrift accounts. Checking accounts, therefore, are insured to the maximum of $5,000 the same as savings deposits.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Barn Swallows Home.

May 12, 1939.

EARLY in the season scores of ewes and noisy young lambs kept in and around the sheepbarn made it one of the liveliest places on the farm. Recently this building has been rather quiet, for the sheep were moved into the fields. But now the old sheepbarn again is the scene of considerable activity, thanks to the daily flying circus staged by a pair of barn swallows back from the south. They built their nest and are raising their family in the barn.

A BARN SWALLOW.

At least one pair of barn swallows has nested in the sheepbarn for many seasons. Three years ago we had two pairs occupying cleverly made mud nests which are attached to the rafters. Last year just one pair made its home in the barn. The boys on the farm like to think that the same pair or some of its offspring come back to the sheepbarn every year to raise a family, a supposition that may be correct. Birds which have been banded and retrapped the following season prove that many species of birds do return to their old nesting locations year after year.

They Pay Their Way.

We stood in the barnyard for several minutes one morning this week just to watch the graceful flight of the barn swallows. While these birds are with us they will pay their rent by killing and eating thousands of insects. From daylight until dark on tireless wings the barn swallow seeks insects, thus helping the farmer in whose barn it lives. The barn swallows which spend the summer with us stay somewhere between Mexico and Argentina during the winter months. They are such skilled and strong flyers that they are not afraid of a long, dangerous journey to the far south every winter.

Two bluebirds that now are building a nest in the orchard near the sheepbarn also may be counted on to kill countless insects this season. The boys noticed the birds carrying nesting material to a small hole in one of the apple trees. These beautiful songsters, early arrivals in the spring, may nest in holes in fence posts, tree cavities, or in bird boxes especially set out for them.

Lavish Array of Flowers.

Any outdoor fan visiting the farm woods this week would find it difficult to leave, so lavish and beautiful is the array of wild flowers and so continuous the songs of birds noted for their spring melodies. With no destructive fires to kill the wild flowers and no overgrazing of the timber lots [another practice that kills wild flowers and shrubs], the farm woods burst forth every May with a dazzling display of flowers. We noticed this week the purple and yellow violets, thousands of tall dark colored trilliums, the first flowers of Jacob's Ladder [deep bluish purple], delicate pink rue anemones, and the first blossoms of the wild phlox.

The purple phlox, one of the most colorful and abundant wild flowers in the farm woods, will have its chance to play a dominant rôle in numbers and beauty about next week. By that time thousands of these blossoms should be open. The common mandrake or May apple now is acting as a sort of "spring decorator" in the woods. The umbrella-like leaves of this wild flower are visible in many parts of the timbered areas, forming an attractive carpet of green on the forest floor.

CHALLENGE USED CAR SALE! at James F. Goodwin

19 YEARS WITH DODGE.

"With us used cars are a definite part of the business and when they crowd our floors and retard the sale of new cars, then it is time for drastic action. It is a shame that we have to cut prices drastically right at the very start of the big used car selling season, but our loss is your gain. Prices on our used cars will definitely be stabilized after this sale."
